A member of an investigating committee may, during the interim between sessions of the Legislature, resign from such committee by transmitting to the Senate Committee on Rules his written resignation and transmitting a copy thereof to the chairman of the committee from which he is resigning. Such resignation shall be effective for all purposes upon receipt thereof by the Committee on Rules.

No warrant shall be drawn in payment of any claim for expenses until the approval of the Committee on Rules, or its authorized representative, has been obtained in accordance with the provisions of this Rule.

The Committee on Rules may adopt rules and regulations limiting the amount, time, and place of expenses and allowances to be paid to employees of Senate interim investigating committees and regulating the terms and conditions of employment of such employees. Copies of all rules and regulations adopted pursuant to this Rule shall be distributed to the chairman of every such investigating committee.

In order to avoid unanticipated reversions of appropriations for contingent expenses, the Senate Committee on Rules may designate the appropriation from which payment shall be made pursuant to allocations to interim committees or for other purposes. If there should be insufficient money available in any such appropriation to pay all claims pursuant to allocations charged against it, the committee shall designate another appropriation from which such allocations shall be paid.

14. The Committee on Rules shall propose to the Senate such schedules for regular meetings of the standing committees as will permit a full attendance of their members without conflict of committee engagements.

Bills may be carried on the inactive file by author and bill number without setting forth the title.

An enrolled copy of every such bill, amendment or resolution shall be printed and examined to ascertain that it is a true and accurate copy of the measure as it was passed. 2. No Senator shall speak more than twice in any one debate on the same day, and at the same stage of the bill, without leave; and Senators who have once spoken shall not again be entitled to the floor (except for explanation) so long as any Senator who has not spoken desires to speak.

3. When two or more Senators arise at the same time to address the Senate, the presiding officer shall designate the Senator who is entitled to the floor.

4. No Senator shall be interrupted when speaking, and no question shall be asked him except through the presiding officer.

If a Senator be called to order for words spoken, the objectionable language shall immediately be taken down in writing by the Secretary of the Senate.

Right to Address the Senate

37. No person other than a Member of the Senate or the President thereof, shall address the Senate while it is in session but the Senate may resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole and while sitting as such committee may be addressed by persons other than members.

Questions and Motions

Amendments to Bills

38. When amendments to a bill are reported by a committee or offered from the floor, such amendments shall be submitted in quadruplicate.

Adoption of amendments to any bill in the Senate prior to third reading, other than by roll call, shall not preclude subsequent consideration in committee or on the third reading of the bill, of such amendments or any part thereof, by the Senate.

Motion to Lay on the Table

39. When an amendment proposed to any pending measure shall be laid on the table, it shall not carry with it or prejudice such measure.

40. If a question in debate contains more than one distinct proposition, any Senator may have the same divided.

The Previous Question

41. The previous question shall be put in the following form: "Shall the question be now put?" It shall require a majority vote of the Senators present; and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate except that the author of the bill or the amendment shall have the right to close, and the question under discussion shall thereupon be immediately put to a vote.

Call of the Senate

42. Upon a motion being carried for a call of the Senate, the President shall immediately order the doors to be closed, and shall direct the Secretary to call the names of the absentees as disclosed by the last previous roll call. Thereupon, no members shall be permitted to leave the Senate Chamber except by written permission of the President pro Tempore or in his absence of the presiding officer. Those members who are found to be absent and for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made, may, by order of those present, be taken into custody, as they appear, or may be sent for and then taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms wherever found, or by special messenger to be appointed for that purpose. In the absence of a quorum, a majority of the members present may order a roll call of the Senate and compel the attendance of absentees in the manner above provided.

A call of the Senate may be ordered after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote.

No recess can be taken during a call of the Senate. During a call, the Senate may consider and transact any matter or business that the Senators then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the Senate shall be had during a call of the Senate, except that during a call which was ordered for the purpose of procuring sufficient attendance for the conduct of business of the Senate in general and not for any other purpose, such call may be made to apply also to not more than one item of business by motion made and adopted by a majority vote of the members present after the roll has been called and prior to the announcement of the vote on such item of business. Under such circumstances, when the call of the Senate is dispensed with as to the item of business to which it is so applied it shall be deemed dispensed with as to the purpose for which is was originally made. When a call of the Senate is ordered, pending the announcement of the vote upon the completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business, the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the Senate are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Senate.

Reconsideration

43. On the day on which a vote has been taken on any question a motion to reconsider the vote may be made by any member.

The motion may be considered on the day made or on the succeeding legislative day but may not be further postponed without the concurrence of 27 members.

No vote on a Senate bill may be reconsidered on or after the last day fixed for the considereation of Senate bills prior to adjournment and no vote may be reconsidered on the last day of the session.

When reconsideration of the vote by which any bill was passed has been demanded the Secretary shall not transmit it to the Assembly until the demand has been disposed of or the time for reconsideration has expired, but if the bill has already been transmitted to the Assembly the demand for reconsideration shall be preceded by a motion to request the Assembly to return the bill. This motion shall be put to a vote immediately without debate and if not adopted shall preclude a demand for reconsideration.

A demand to reconsider the vote on any debatable question opens the main question to debate and the vote on the reconsideration shall be on the merits of such main question.

No Senator shall be permitted to vote or change his vote after the announcement of the vote by the presiding officer.

Excused From Voting

45. When a Senator declines or fails to vote on call of his name he may, after completion of the roll call, and before the announcement of the vote be required to assign his reasons therefor, and having assigned them, the presiding officer shall submit the question to the Senate: "Shall the Senator, for the reasons assigned by him, be excused from voting?" which question shall be decided without debate. Unless the Senator is excused from voting he shall be required to vote.

Voting by Presiding Senator

46. When the President pro Tempore or any other Member of the Senate is presiding over the Senate he shall vote on roll call the same as though he were not presiding.

RALPH N. KLEPS, Legislative Counsel
By VIRGINIA COKER, Deputy

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 7, 1957

Mr. J. A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. BEEK: There is submitted herewith the report of the Legislative Counsel on the Uniformity of Statutes for the Publication of Legal Notices. This report was prepared pursuant to House Resolution No. 190 of the 1955 Regular Session.

Very truly yours,

RALPH N. KLEPS, Legislative Counsel

Report of the Legislative Counsel on Uniformity of Statutes for the Publication of Legal Notices

House Resolution No. 190 of the 1955 Regular Session recited the efforts of the Assembly Interim Committee on the Judicial System, the Code Commission, and the Legislative Counsel, during the period 1945 to 1951, to provide a uniform system for the publication of legal notices and the enactment of such a system in 1949 as Government Code Sections 6060 to 6066. It then directs the Legislative Counsel to report to the Legislature which statutes require amendment to bring them into conformity with the uniform system, and to prepare any new legislation for introduction at the 1957 Regular Session in accordance with the uniform plan.

Every effort will be made to comply with this resolution in the preparation of bills for introduction at the 1957 Regular Session.

With reference to existing statutes providing for the publication of legal notice, this office has examined each such statute enacted from 1952 to 1955 and has prepared a table showing those statutes which have not adopted the uniform system set forth in Government Code Sections 6060 to 6066. If uniformity is to be approached, each of these statutes must be amended.

The list of statutes not conforming to the uniform system is attached hereto as Exhibit No. 1.

RALPH N. KLEPS, Legislative Counsel

RESOLUTION OF THE WATER PROJECT AUTHORITY OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, ADOPTED AT REGULAR MEETING ON JUNE 26, 1956

WHEREAS, The State Legislature in 1953, by the Abshire-Kelly Salinity Control Barrier Act, Stats. 1953, Ch. 1104, directed the Water Project Authority to investigate and study the feasibility and economic value of construction by the State of a suitable barrier or barriers for salinity and flood control purposes, and for the purpose of affording a supply of fresh water for irrigation, domestic uses and related purposes; and

WHEREAS, On March 30, 1955, there was transmitted to the Legislature a "Report on Feasibility of Construction by the State of Barriers in the San Francisco Bay System"; and

WHEREAS, Said Report contained the recommendations of the Department of Public Works, Division of Water Resources, and the recommendations of the board of consulting engineers; and

WHEREAS, Pursuant to the recommendations of the Authority in said Report the Legislature in 1955 passed the Abshire-Kelly Salinity Control Barrier Act, Stats. 1955, Ch. 1434, which made appropriations to the Authority for the further investigation and study of the Junction Point Barrier and Chipps Island Barrier as described in said Report, for the purpose of developing complete plans for accomplishing delivery of fresh water to the San Francisco Bay Area, including the Counties of Solano, Sonoma, Napa, Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda, Santa Clara, San Benito, and San Mateo, and the City and County of San Francisco; providing urgently needed flood protection to agricultural lands in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta; conducting subsurface exploration work in the delta and designing facilities appurtenant to the proposed cross-delta aqueduct, including the so-called Biemond plan; obtaining more complete information on the hydrology of the delta; and study-integration of the proposed project in The California Water Plan; and

Resolved, That the chairman be and he is hereby requested to transmit copies of this resolution to the Governor of California and to each house of the State Legislature.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA, DEPARTMENT OF STATE

To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting:

I, THAD EURE, Secretary of State of the State of North Carolina, do hereby certify the following and hereto attached (5 (five) sheets) to be a true copy of Resolution 4—1956 Extra Session, General Assembly of North Carolina, the original of which is now on file and a matter of record in this office.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal. DONE IN OFFICE, at Raleigh, this 1st day of August in the year of our Lord 1956.

(SEAL) THAD EURE, Secretary of State

The General Assembly of North Carolina

H. R. 8 Resolution 4

A joint resolution of condemnation and protest against oppressive usurpation of power by the Supreme Court of the United States, calling upon the several states of the Union and the Congress of the United States to bring to an end this tyrannical usurpation of power.

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of North Carolina recognizes its allegiance to the Constitution and Government of the United States and is ever mindful of its responsibility to defend the Constitution of the United States against every attempt, foreign or domestic, to undermine the dual structure of this Union or to destroy those fundamental principles embodied in the written Constitution of the United States; and

WHEREAS, The founders of this great Nation, fearful of the tyranny that naturally and always follows the unrestricted concentration of governmental power, secured the passage of the "Bill of Rights," consisting of the first ten amendments to the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, The Ninth and Tenth Amendments to the Constitution expressly and explicitly limit the Federal Government to specific powers delegated to it by the terms of the compact and reserved to the States and their people all other powers, unless specifically prohibited by it to the States; and

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of North Carolina is ever mindful of the admonition that "frequent recurrence to fundamental principles is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessings of Liberty"; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution is a solemn compact between the States, and the Federal Government is the creature born of that compact from sovereign powers inherently residing in the States and their people but delegated solely for the purposes clearly and manifestly set forth in the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, The methods and procedures for amending the Constitution of the United States are distinctly and plainly stated in Article V of that instrument in these words: "The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress;" and

WHEREAS, The Constitution of the United States may be validly amended only in the manner prescribed by the Constitution itself, and the United States Supreme Court has never had, does not now have, and should never possess, the power and authority to amend the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, Neither the judicial power granted the United States Supreme Court in Article III of the Federal Constitution nor such appellate jurisdiction as Congress has conferred, or may confer, can constitute that Court the dominant and ultimate authority with the power of determining without regard for the Constitution what is and is not in the best interest of the Nation; and

WHEREAS, By its decision of May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court of the United States, in seeking to establish itself as the dominant and ultimate policy-setting agency of the Nation, in effect amended the Constitution by interpreting the Fourteenth Amendment in a manner clearly contrary to the well-settled construction of that Amendment; and

WHEREAS, The State of North Carolina in ratifying the Fourteenth Amendment did not intend to delegate to the Federal Government the power to deny to the States the inherent right to operate racially separate schools; and when the Fourteenth Amendment was ratified, there were thirty-seven States in the Union, and twenty-three of those states had segregated schools and others had no public schools at all; and the Congress which proposed the Fourteenth Amendment established segregated schools in the District of Columbia; and both State and Federal courts, without exception, beginning with a decision of the Massachusetts' Supreme Court in 1848, and subsequently followed by the courts of Connecticut, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and others, recognized the power of the States to operate a system of separate public schools; and

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of North Carolina relying upon the United States Supreme Court's own interpretation of the Fourteenth Amendment and the numerous and uncontradicted decisions of other Federal and State courts established and developed a segregated public school system; and North Carolina properly assumed that it could rely upon congressional action and earlier court decisions as is demonstrated by the language of the Supreme Court of the United States in Myers v. United States (1927): ". . . when Congress, after full consideration and with the acquiescence and long practice of all branches of the government, has established the construction of the Constitution, it may [not] by its mere subsequent legislation reverse such construction. It is not given power by itself thus to amend the Constitution;" and

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of North Carolina, mindful that powers assumed by the Supreme Court in one field today will become precedents for further assumption of power in other fields tomorrow and recognizing, as did the founders of this great Nation, that tyranny naturally and always follows naked power; and the Supreme Court of the United States has recently denied to the States the right to have laws of their own to deal with subversion or espionage against the Nation; and the states have been denied the right to dismiss individuals from their employment who refuse to answer questions concerning their connections with communism by invoking the Fifth Amendment; and the fears of Thomas Jefferson are rapidly becoming realities—"The great object of my fear is the Federal Judiciary. That body, like gravity, ever acting, with noiseless foot, and unalarming advance . . . is engulfing insidiously the special governments into the jaws of that which feeds them;" and

WHEREAS, There is implicit in these recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court a most grievous and deplorable disrespect for declared and established law; and

WHEREAS, By reason of this disrespect for declared and established law on the part of the United States Supreme Court, the people's faith and confidence in the judicial ability and temperament and judicial self-restraint of our highest federal judges has been most severly shaken; and

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of North Carolina recognizes its solemn duty to help alert the Nation to the fact that the Supreme Court of the United States, by interpretations and constructions of the Constitution, encroaches upon the reserved powers of the states; and our failure to discharge the solemn duty to alert our people and the Nation would constitute passive acquiescence in dangerous precedents aimed at undermining our democratic form of government:

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring:

Section 1. That the States have never granted to the United States Supreme Court, or any other court, the power to amend the Federal Constitution, nor does the Federal Government possess any powers not delegated to it by the Constitution of the United States.

Sec. 2. That the grievous and deplorable disrespect for the declared and established law of the land on the part of the United States Supreme Court constitutes a most dangerous and oppressive usurpation of the power of the Congress and the rights of the States and the people, and a grave threat to constitutional government in these United States.

Sec. 3. That the State of North Carolina does condemn and protest the oppressive usurpation of power by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Sec. 4. That the State of North Carolina does call upon all States and the Congress of the United States to bring to an end this tyrannical usurpation of power by the United States Supreme Court and to prevent now and in the future other and further encroachment upon the reserved powers of the States and the rights of the people, to the end that constitutional government shall ever be preserved.

Sec. 5. That a copy of this Resolution be sent to the Governor and Legislature of each of the States, to the presiding officers of each of the Houses of the Congress of the United States, to North Carolina's representatives and senators in the Congress, to the President of the United States, and to the several judges of the United States Supreme Court.

Sec. 6. This Resolution shall be in full force and effect from and after its adoption.

In the General Assembly read three times and ratified, this the 27th day of July, 1956.

ADDRESS BY THE GOVERNOR

MESSAGE TO THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT
GOVERNOR

Delivered to the Senate and Assembly in Joint Session, January 7, 1957

Mr. Speaker, Lieutenant Governor Powers, Mr. President pro Tempore, Mr. Speaker pro Tempore, Members of the Legislature, and my fellow Californians:

It is again my pleasure to welcome you to our State's Capitol as the California Legislature opens its 1957 sessions.

As we again assume our mutual obligations to the people of California, it is my duty under the State Constitution to report to you on the condition of our State and to invite your attention to matters which I believe should have your consideration during the coming months.

In a departure from the practice of past years, I have divided this message into two parts. First, I will give you a broad summary of conditions and I will seek to emphasize some of the more important questions which will come before you in the weeks ahead. I hope to accomplish this in less than half an hour.

The balance of my message has been committed to writing and, together with the printed text of my oral report, will be available for your more detailed perusal at the close of this day's business.

I trust that this innovation, instituted in the interests of your comfort and convenience, meets with your approval.

Characteristic of the vitality of our State, we have recently come through a very lively political campaign, during which healthy differences of opinion were pursued to the polls.

Symbolically, we have more recently come through the holiday season of peace and good will. In this spirit I extend to you my sincere good wishes for the new year. I also indulge the hope that the spirit of harmony and accord will supersede all but the most beneficial aspects of partisan differences during our deliberations here in Sacramento, with December 25th and January 1st more fresh in our memories than November 6th.

Authoritative estimates indicate California's population has increased by nearly 2,400,000 since the last decennial census in 1950. This places our population at about 13,976,000, with forecasts that, if California keeps growing at its present rate, its population will be nearly 16,000,000 when the next federal census is conducted in 1960—three years hence.

In the year just ended we have achieved new heights not only in our population growth but also in our economic expansion. We have gained approximately half-a-million new people during 1956. These have been largely productive citizens and not only has the volume of employment increased accordingly but the percentage ratio of unemployed to the total labor force has shown a marked decrease.

The Director of Employment reports to me that we had a civilian labor force of 5,729,000, as of November, 1956, the last full month on which statistics have been compiled and released. While this was 250,000 more than the corresponding month in 1955, the volume and percentage of unemployment was actually reduced during the intervening 12 months.

The number of new unemployment insurance claims initiated showed a decrease during last November as compared with November, 1955. This favorable employment picture is also reflected in the fact that the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund balance was nearly $84,000,000 greater in November, 1956, than it was 12 months earlier.

Manufacturing employment in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area rose to an all-time high in November and in the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area it was 3 percent higher than a year before.

The Director of Motor Vehicles reports that official estimates at the end of 1956 indicate there were 7,158,721 motor vehicles registered in our State. Simple arithmetic shows that the ratio of people to motor vehicles in California is slightly less than 2 to 1.

While these and other related economic facts of life are gratifying, they must not be permitted to lead us into complacency. It is imperative that we do everything within our power to enhance the favorable conditions which have attracted new business, new workers, and new families to our State in unprecedented numbers.

If we are to fulfill the promise of the future, we must provide needed services for between 150,000 and 155,000 new households annually. Our economy faces the challenge of providing approximately 2½ million additional jobs in California by 1970 at the present rate of growth.

We are blessed with a magnificent natural climate highly conducive to life and growth. We enjoy an excellent economic climate to sustain the business and industry of California. The necessity of maintaining this atmosphere of cooperative mutual respect among capital, labor, and government is a continuing and expanding need. The people of California look to us, ladies and gentlemen, to keep this tradition alive. With such an affirmative philosophy, there is no limit to our future.

There are many specific tasks immediately before us. Our State Government, to meet the needs of our people, must be many things. It must be dynamic, it must be evolutionary, it must be progressive, it must be humane, it must be efficient, and it must be economical.

Our approach to the needs of our people must be positive and constructive. We cannot tolerate short-sighted obstruction and negation. This, of course, does not preclude sincere criticism and honest differences. The vistas ahead are magnificent; we must be bold and imaginative to match the mood of the people as they hopefully look at the opportunities which daily open and grow almost before our very eyes.

Under the American way of doing things, it is imperative that we find adequate means of rendering to the people the services they have come to expect and to which they manifestly are entitled.

WATER PROGRAM AND PROJECTS

I congratulate the Members of the Legislature for the splendid, progressive steps taken at the last session toward administrative reform in the field of water resources.

As the result of positive action taken by you last year in adopting legislation creating the Department of Water Resources, we have made real progress toward meeting the needs of California for a dependable water supply and for control of floods. We must continue to work together in taking additional constructive steps forward to consummate the plans prepared after many years of study and investigation by actually undertaking proposed projects.

There are many items concerning water development on which legislative action and legislative determination of policy are urgently required.

For example, there is urgent need for acceptance of the California Water Plan as the physical and engineering basis for approaching all of our water problems, and as a guide for the future orderly and coordinated development of our water resources by all agencies to achieve maximum benefit therefrom.

To implement this plan, we must establish a water development program utilizing to the fullest extent cooperative efforts of all agencies—federal, state and local.

We need to establish policies for allocation of costs of multipurpose projects, policies for guidance in pricing water from state projects, and policies from which can be determined the proper role of the State in water project construction.

In order to meet our ever-increasing water needs and to insure stability in water development matters, I urge that a water development fund be established, adequately supported by a long-range financing program. This fund would be utilized in both construction of projects by the State and in providing financial assistance, where needed, to local agencies in the construction of their own projects meeting the objectives of the California Water Plan. I recommend that the presently uncommitted tideland oil funds and revenues from that source through Fiscal 1957-58 be used initially to establish this water development fund.

This fund will make possible specific appropriations to further water development projects as needed and as justified in all areas of the State as they are found to be in conformity with the objectives of the California Water Plan, according to policies to be established for an overall state water development program.

There will be several items before you regarding flood control, flood damage insurance, the Klamath River Interstate Compact, watershed damage caused by forest fires and construction of debris basins to prevent damage, operative and fiscal measures concerning the State Water Board, clarification of procedure for releasing state water filings, maintenance of flood control projects in which the State has made an investment, and other water conservation, control and investigation matters.

First in urgency for action, in my considered judgment, is the appropriation of funds to initiate actual construction work in preparation for building the Oroville Dam, reservoir and power plants.

The Feather River Project has been studied, engineered and authorized. The studies and conclusions of the State have been rechecked and verified in essentials by a highly reputed private engineering firm. A year ago, you authorized and appropriated money for the acquisition of sites and rights of way for the Oroville Dam and reservoir and for exploration work and preparation of detailed designs for moving railway, highway and other utility facilities. Relocation of these facilities must be completed before construction of the dam can begin. Exploration at the site is a prerequisite to final design of the dam. That work is now sufficiently advanced that we are ready to let contracts. All that is necessary in order to do this is to make funds available.

I recommend for your immediate consideration a total appropriation of $63,200,000 for the furtherance of this work between now and June 30, 1958. Of this amount, I recommend that you make immediately available an urgency appropriation of $25,200,000. Your concurrence in this recommendation will mean that, before you resume your deliberations after the constitutional recess, bid calls will have been prepared and formal legal advertising for bids will begin within a few weeks thereafter on the first phase of relocating the Feather River Highway and Western Pacific Railroad in Feather River Canyon.

By acting on the urgency appropriation in January, the State will gain from six to nine months in the construction schedule of this greatly needed project. We cannot afford to risk delays of even as much as six months. To do so is to increase unnecessarily the risk of future loss of human life and property damage, such as was experienced during the 1955 floods. Delay is unwise and dangerous in view of the urgent need for water supplies in the western and southern end of San Joaquin Valley, where highly productive farm lands are today on the verge of going out of production because of dropping water levels, and in San Diego County, where the water situation is critical after more than 12 years of drought.

The State recently was granted a license for the Oroville power features by the Federal Power Commission. This license is subject to the condition that building of the structures must be completed and operative within seven years. With that deadline, we simply cannot afford procrastination and delay.

We expect to ask the Congress now in session to approve flood control appropriations for Oroville Dam in the amount of $100,000,000. If we expect to receive congressional approval of such an appropriation, there must be evidence of the determination of the State to move forward immediately and affirmatively in initiating the construction of the project. The appropriation of $25,000,000 in the opening days of this legislative session should be ample evidence of such determination.

Other water projects worthy of your favorable consideration will be presented to you after their feasibility has been established.

AREAS OF ORIGIN

One of the most pressing problems before you is that of formulating adequate constitutional provisions and legislative enactments to provide adequate protection for the areas of origin, reserving water for their future needs, making the water physically available, when and where needed, and, at the same time, providing reasonably firm allocations of water from state projects to the various service areas to be benefited by those projects. Solution of the legal complexities involved in the "county of origin" problem involves not only the State as a construction agency but all water developing agencies, including the Federal Government.

This is a sensitive and difficult, but by no means insurmountable, problem. To a large extent, it is a problem of mechanics, because we do have sufficient water in California to meet all of the needs of all areas for all beneficial uses—IF this water is properly controlled, conserved and distributed. I believe that it is difficult for all of us to comprehend the full magnitude of the volume of water which occurs in our State. We look principally at the relatively small quantities of water which we have developed and made available for use, and fear that we may someday have an over-all shortage. Let me tell you briefly something of the size of the body of water which is now being "exported" from the areas or origin, exported without control, with violence and destruction—and into the ocean.

Present consumptive water use in all of California is 23,000,000 acre-feet annually. This water comes from many sources, including wells, and from streams and reservoirs in all parts of the State.

Yet a single Northern California stream, the Sacramento River, has an average natural annual runoff nearly equal to that figure.

Measured at Sacramento, the Sacramento River Basin has an average natural runoff of slightly more than 22,000,000 acre-feet per year. In contrast, the present consumptive use of applied water for all purposes, including agriculture, urban and domestic, in the entire Sacramento River Basin is only 2,500,000 acre-feet per year.

Under ultimate development, the Sacramento basin, many years hence, is expected to use 6,400,000 acre-feet per year.

Taking into account natural losses due to transportation and evaporation, consumptive use downstream, and present exports from the Delta, there still is an average loss of about 16,000,000 acre-feet of Sacramento River water into the Pacific Ocean each year—a staggering waste.

An even more dramatic example is seen on the north coast, where in December, 1955, the Eel River poured into the Pacific Ocean nearly 1,000,000 acre-feet of water in one 24-hour period. Eight months later, some of the residents along this river were hauling in drinking water.

Nature has richly endowed California with water resources, but it is up to us to control, conserve and transport them in order to have water when and where our people need it. Our engineers have determined methods for accomplishing these goals. These methods are within our grasp. It now becomes a matter of decision. And it is important to realize that these decisions are those of the people—and the authority to make them is held in trust by us as state officials and legislators charged with acting for and in behalf of all of the people of California. And these decisions must be made now, in 1957.

As we approach these legislative decisions, there may be at times strong pressures to introduce both partisan politics and sectionalism into the consideration of these matters. I am convinced that capitulating to these pressures would lead to disaster for the State of California.

There are many areas in which sincere conflicts of interest may occur. The most clear, logical and far seeing approach will be necessary in order to evolve solutions to our problems which will serve not only the State as a whole, but every portion of the State. It is essential that there be no yielding to pressures to use the issue of water development as a vehicle to further the interests of any individual, any group, or any political organization, nor to build one area at the expense of others, nor to hold back one area to suit the convenience of another. If we were to permit ourselves to become entrapped in such a course of action, we would be recognized by California today and recorded by historians of the future as preventing continued development and prosperity of all of the State. No segment of California can prosper while other areas and interests are impeded by the lack of water or plagued by uncontrolled floods.

STATE INSURANCE

In recent weeks, extensive scrutiny has been directed to the insurance coverage of the State of California, the methods which have been used traditionally in placing the policies and steps which might be taken to improve present practices.

Let me emphasize at the outset that the methods used did not originate in my administration. They have developed over a long period of years because of certain internal regulations within the insurance industry itself, together with considerations of administrative efficiency and the present laws of our State.

The State of California has consistently enjoyed excellent and favorable insurance coverage. At all times, we have had a maximum protection in relation to premiums paid. The companies dealt with are reliable, long-established and of exceptionally fine reputation. The people of California have received full value for their insurance dollars.

I welcome study and inquiry into the methods used in awarding the State's insurance business. This entire matter should be the object of extensive, objective study. If the Legislature can arrive at better, more equitable and practical means for handling these policies, I will welcome your explicit direction for any changes you believe would give us as good or better insurance protection than we now receive.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

In the beginning of our national history, government was a comparatively limited factor in the daily lives of the people. Its areas of operation were clearly and rigidly defined. Unless a citizen committed a crime or voluntarily enlisted in the armed forces, he was little affected by his government.

Modern concepts and progressive expansion of our social and economic systems have brought government closely, even intimately, into the lives of every one of us. I will not debate the philosophical questions involved as to the desirability of this tendency. The fact remains and must be reckoned with.

In a simple society a few hard and fast rules of prohibition can be set down and all elected representatives of the people could meet such minimum standards of conduct. Bribery, corruption, and wilful misconduct in public office are easy to define and to deal with.

However, ours is not a simple society. It is an extremely complex one. Every citizen has a personal interest in the actions of government.

Try as you will, you cannot avoid contact in large degree with official agencies of the State.

Anyone who has attained position in the community which commands sufficient respect to justify election to the State Legislature surely has some degree of personal interest in one or more phases of our government's operation which can be profoundly affected favorably or adversely by legislative action.

Every legislator is bound to be affected personally by a vote on a tax law, a motor vehicle regulation and other similar legislation. In our State nearly every profession and vocation is licensed or otherwise regulated by legislative action. The question then arises: "Must the State be deprived of the services of all but princes and paupers in order to avoid conflict of interests?"

Under existing policy governing the compensation of legislators, members of necessity must actively pursue outside, private vocations in order to sustain their appropriate economic and social positions as individual members of the community.

For example attorneys in the normal development of practice, are called upon to appear before numerous boards and commissions as well as courts, over which, as legislators, they have great power. Accountants, real estate and insurance brokers, doctors, dentists and pharmacists, publishers, labor union members and nearly every business or occupation are touched by legislative action. To exclude all such men and women from direct participation in government or, on the other hand, to expect them to sacrifice the legitimate fruits of their life work without adequate compensation is equally unjust and unrealistic.

Since the business of government is the business of all the people, it cannot and should not be separated from day-to-day lives of the individuals who compose the citizenry of the State. It seems to me that what is needed is not accusation and protestations, nor debate over differences of opinion. What is needed is clear appraisal and adequate definition.

The suggestion has been made that Members of the Legislature be precluded from pursuing their professions and business enterprises in direct connection with state agencies. To compensate for any sacrifice, it has been proposed that a constitutional amendment be presented to the people raising the pay of legislators so that they could reasonably be expected to devote the major portion of their time solely to their duties as Members of the California Legislature. At the same time, explicit prohibitions should be spelled out so that the entire question of conflict of interest and influence would be clearly defined.

California is a large and complex commonwealth, and each year the legislative process has become more involved and more demanding of the time and energy from each Member of the Legislature. It is not, therefore, outside the realm of probability that the functions of its legislators now justify such a course of action. I commend this to your attention as one possible solution to a most vexing economic and ethical problem in which each of you has a deep personal concern.

EMPLOYEES AND EXECUTIVE SALARIES

In the proposed budget which will be in your hands within a few days, I am recommending for your consideration salary adjustments for the civil service employees of our State Government in order that these salaries may be brought more nearly in line with compensations offered in other governmental agencies and in private enterprise for comparable service.

With record levels of employment consistently being achieved in our State, it is important that your State Government be placed in a favorable position when competing for new trained, skilled workers.

Considering California as an enterprise involving nearly 14,000,000 people and with an annual budget in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000, it must be recognized that we are engaged in a large, diversified and highly sensitive business. The multiple phases of State Government require the skill, talent and experience of highly trained, specialized executives of this highest calibre.

I am proud of the men and women associated with me in the administration of our State Government. However, the task of recruiting them and persuading them to enter public service is a difficult one. Moreover it is becoming increasingly more difficult to replace these fine people when their personal interests dictate that they leave state service for more lucrative, more attractive employment in other governmental agencies and in private employment.

Studies reveal that local government agencies in many cases are paying their executives far higher salaries than the State offers for corresponding positions which carry much broader and more complex responsibilities.

In addition to those state officials whose salaries are fixed by statute there are state boards and commissions which demand tremendous sacrifice from highly dedicated and extremely able people in order to carry on their duties.

I believe that questions involving both executive salaries fixed by statute and the compensation offered on a per diem basis to the members of the independent boards and commissions properly merit your urgent and earnest consideration.

You have consistently supported the sound policy of maintaining pay rates for state employees comparable to those prevailing in private employment. The State has not, however, kept pace with private industry in providing its employees with such fringe benefits as health and welfare benefits, disability insurance and unemployment insurance. The failure of the State to meet prevailing practice in industry is causing increasing difficulty in recruitment, especially of workmen for short term employment.

No employer as important as the State of California can afford to lag behind other employers in this regard. I recommend the adoption of the same benefits for state employees as now prevail in private industry.

GOVERNMENTAL REORGANIZATION

Questions arising from the basic organization and operation of California's State Government have been, for some time past, subjected to the penetrating scrutiny of committees in both houses of the Legislature. The results of their deliberations regularly come before you in various forms and I am confident all phases of this broad subject will continue to receive your earnest attention.

In particular, during the year past, considerable public interest has been dramatically focused upon the functions and conduct of the State Treasurer.

The confidence of the people of California was somewhat shaken when the spotlight of legislative study was recently directed upon the affairs of this office.

I commend the newly-appointed Treasurer of California for the vigorous, forthright manner in which he has undertaken the task of bringing new methods and concepts into the office. He has succeeded in a few brief weeks in restoring a large measure of public confidence and in stimulating widespread public interest in the affairs of that important but little-understood governmental function.

I concur in the conclusion of the present Treasurer of the State of California that his office should be removed from the rigidity of the State Constitution to give the Legislature full authority to determine which of several courses would be in the best interests of our people. From a standpoint of political philosophy, three possible courses suggest themselves:

1. The present method of selecting the State Treasurer by vote of the people could be maintained;

2. The State Treasurer could be made a member of the Governor's Council, subject to selection by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate; or,

3. The office and title could be abolished at the discretion of the Legislature, the functions being transferred to such other officer or officers as are deemed appropriate.

To open the way for full and proper consideration of these and other alternatives, I suggest that you consider submitting a constitutional amendment to the people at the earliest opportunity.

In the course of continuing studies into the conduct of the State Treasurer's Office, the question arose as to the propriety of that officer—having substantial and direct dealings with any bank or banks in California while such banks are depositories of state funds—becoming indebted or otherwise obligated to such banks. The state law lacks adequate provision covering this subject.

It has been pointed out the personnel of the State Banking Department have their obligation in this regard very definitely set forth by law. I refer you to Section 234, Article 3, Chapter 2, Division 1 of the Financial Code, which sets forth restrictions on employees of the Banking Department in their individual dealings with banks. I suggest this may form a practical basis for legislation in this field with reference to the State Treasurer's Office in dealing with banks which are depositories of state funds.

LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS

It has been a guiding principle of my administration that stable, fairly balanced labor-management relations are essential to the well-being of our State's dynamic industrial economy. I have consistently held that California has long since passed from that primitive time when differences between labor and management, which frequently worked to the grave detriment of the people of our State, could be viewed with indifference or apathetic tolerance.

In the sensitive sphere of industrial relations, I believe that State Government has an obligation to encourage harmony and to minimize controversy. The very existence of our Department of Industrial Relations emphasizes official cognizance of the prime necessity for labor-management cooperation.

Accepting our duty as public servants to foster industrial peace, we must at the same time recognize that essentially labor and management must determine their own functional destiny.

It will never be the policy of my administration to impose rigid controls on the processes of collective bargaining. Thus, I shall continue to discourage any form of punitive legislation which would cripple or punish either labor or management and which would serve only to aggravate the natural, normal areas of difference between them, the inevitable result being conflict, irreparable division and bitterness. Ours must always be the positive role—the constructive role of building a framework within which the various segments of society may meet and together serve the common good.

That such an enlightened policy is in the public interest is testified to by the fact that the year 1956 was a very peaceful one in terms of industrial relations. The Department of Industrial Relations reports that in 1956 we had a lower proportion of employed workers involved in work stoppages than in any other postwar year, and probably the lowest proportion for any peacetime year for decades.

MENTAL HYGIENE

Mental illness is America's number one health problem today. Reliable authorities on the subject report that there are 9,000,000 men, women, and children in the United States today suffering from some form of mental illness severe enough to warrant treatment. Only a fraction of these receive such treatment. The reasons for this are complex and manifold.

In recent weeks, public attention has been dramatically focused on California's mental health program and its attendant problems. I sincerely believe this will result in lasting benefit to our mental health programs.

It has been my continuing policy to relieve and effect cures of mental ailments as effectively, and rapidly, as possible; and to encourage sympathetic public interest in the problems of the mentally ill. I am keenly interested in advocating modern, adequate facilities and procedures for treating this all-too-prevalent malady.

Any violation of or deviation from these fundamentals is repugnant to me and any such conditions have been and will continue to be promptly corrected.

In my proposed budget, which you will soon receive, provision is made for an expanded mental hygiene program substantially beyond provision for normal case load increases. This will be dealt with in greater detail in my budget message.

At this time, however, I take occasion to commend your legislative committees which have been inquiring into various phases of our mental hygiene program. Because this is such an extensive and complex subject, differences of opinion will occasionally arise but there can be no differences as to the goal we all seek—humane, effective treatment of mental illness.

TRAFFIC SAFETY

The greatest single domestic tragedy of our day is the alarming incidence of traffic casualties attributable to motor vehicle operation on our streets, roads and highways.

There is no consolation to be found in citing statistics proving that California is proportionately no worse than any other part of the Nation. We have more miles of good roads, more vehicles per capita and better climate for driving, thus creating a greater exposure to potential accidents.

The stark, bleak facts are these. Each unit in the statistics on traffic accidents represents a vibrant, once happy man or woman, boy or girl, adult or infant. By the time that unit is added to the dreadful total, that person is either dead, forever crippled or—at least—subjected to unnecessary pain and suffering.

We must, with profound regret, conclude that prevalent conditions call for vigorous, immediate and positive action. We have passed the time for palliatives and well-intentioned persuasion. The vast majority of our drivers and pedestrians are law abiding and sensible people. They merit our serious consideration, and their protection from the careless, unresponsive minority is a primary obligation we cannot avoid.

Slogans and appeals to reason and fair play have their place and are effective with most people. However, there are evidently too many people who cannot be reached by such means. Here is an area where rigid surety of punishment and fear of apprehension must be employed to curb the needless, senseless slaughter of innocents.

Judges in certain communities have made it generally known that conviction of charges of drunken driving will result in the certainty of a jail term for the offender, in addition to whatever other punishment is provided by law. Study reveals that, coincidentally, accident rates involving injuries in those areas are much less than in other comparable areas.

I believe the course of action indicated is that the practice be made uniform throughout the State and I suggest that you enact legislation to provide mandatory jail sentences for drunken driving convictions.

I also suggest that you consider the possibility of increasing penalties to be assessed in cases of reckless driving.

The present vague and variously interpreted speed laws of California create a growing enforcement problem. After consultation with many outstanding authorities in this field, I am convinced it would be in the interest of public safety if California adopted a fixed and explicit maximum speed limit with heavy penalties for violations. The figure most generally suggested as a fair and enforceable maximum speed limit is 65 miles per hour.

Study also indicates that the present penalties for speeding violations do not serve the end of justice. I therefore suggest that you provide more stringent penalties, much more drastic punishment for the very high speeds.

It is also self-evident that surety of apprehension and punishment is a far greater deterrent than relative severity of punishment. With this in mind, I am asking for an urgency expansion of our California Highway Patrol immediately.

After consulting my official advisors on our capacity to absorb additional officers into the Patrol, I am requesting you to authorize 100 additional officers before the recess. This will be in addition to the 270 new positions being requested in the 1957-58 State Budget which will be in your hands within a few days.

To summarize, I request that you approve and authorize the necessary expenditure of funds to provide for 370 more California Highway Patrolmen before adjournment of this session.

Equally important with enforcement on the highways is the elimination of incompetent drivers by stricter licensing procedures. Higher qualifications must be established for persons operating motor vehicles under our increasingly complex and difficult driving conditions. Drivers who fail to comply with our traffic safety laws and those who are involved in an excessive number of accidents must have their driving privileges restricted or revoked.

CONSERVATION OF OIL AND GAS

Next to water, California's greatest natural resource is its underground reserves of oil and natural gas, both known and yet-to-be-discovered. These commodities are vital to our economy.

At the last general election there was presented to the electorate Proposition No. 4, an initiative measure which proposed to establish a California Oil and Gas Conservation Commission and to enact certain provisions designed to regulate the production of these two commodities in the interests of achieving greater recovery over a long period of time.

The measure became highly controversial with two important segments of the oil industry taking violently opposite stands, one side contending that the proposal was in the interests of bona fide conservation and the other contending that it was monopolistic and contrary to the best interests of a majority of oil producers.

Whether the measure was good or bad is now a moot question, since it was rejected by vote of the people. On the other hand, the conservation issue has not yet been resolved either one way or another. The average citizen cannot be sure whether our present conservation laws are adequate or inadequate.

Accordingly, I propose that the Legislature create a special commission to study California's oil and gas regulatory laws with the view of ascertaining whether our present laws provide sufficient protection against the wasteful production of this great natural resource. If our present laws are adequate, we should be assured of that fact; if they are inadequate, we should have guidance with respect to how best they may be improved.

It may well be that in your wisdom you will desire that there be one or more members of each house of the California Legislature serving with this commission.

It is my further recommendation that this commission be authorized to retain the best available experts in the field of oil and gas conservation to be found in this Country, and that it be authorized to seek the advice of all elements of our own California oil industry, of administrative agencies in other oil producing states and the advice of the United States Department of the Interior, which has jurisdiction over oil producing lands owned by the Federal Government.

With the advice of the best counsel we can obtain, the people of California may then know what is best in the interests of protecting our existing oil and gas reserves against wasteful production practices and what will best serve our needs with regard to the discovery and orderly development of new oil and gas resources not now known to exist.

STATE WATER BOARD

The new State Department of Water Resources has been working around the clock in meeting its responsibilities to the people of our State. The various elements of its organization are still in the midst of establishing fundamental procedures simultaneously with a continuing concern for development of our State's manifold water problems. It is perhaps too early to fully evaluate these basic functions.

I particularly commend the members and employees of the State Water Board for their untiring and unselfish efforts. I have great confidence in the broad experience and deep dedication of the present members of the board. It has been my policy since becoming Governor to maintain a geographic balance on this board as on its predecessor.

In the interests of justice to all sections of the State in this very sensitive area, it is my suggestion that this concept be spelled out by the Legislature as official policy governing all future appointments to this agency.

During discussions concerning the formation of the new Department of Water Resources last session, I pledged to members of the Legislature that I would recommend to this session that legislation be adopted specifically requiring that three members of the board be named from Southern California, three from Northern California and one at large from any section of the State, and that such proportionate balance be maintained in the face of any numerical change in membership of the board. With or without such legislation, I intend to maintain such a policy as long as I am Governor.

Believing this to be sound administrative practice, I commend it to your attention and further suggest that—for purposes of this legislation—you clearly define the line of separation between Northern California and Southern California.

THE CALIFORNIA WATER PLAN

Early in the 1957 Session of the Legislature, the Department of Water Resources will place before you the third of a series of bulletins presenting the results of a comprehensive study of the water resources of California, the water uses and requirements of the State and methods to bring about the full control, protection, conservation, distribution and utilization of our available water supplies. This is known as the California Water Plan, preparation of which was first authorized by the Legislature in 1947, and by subsequent additional appropriations.

Preparation of this plan at a cost of more than $8,000,000, represents thorough and expansive investigation and study, not alone by the very capable engineers of the State of California. In addition, some of the most competent consulting engineers have provided their counsel, and the preliminary draft of the plan was submitted to interested individuals and agencies in the field of water development. Their comments and suggestions have added to the vast store of carefully documented information which has gone into preparation of this monumental work.

The California Water Plan includes consideration of both surface and underground water, and has as its purpose meeting the present and future water needs for all beneficial purposes and uses in all parts of the State, to the maximum extent practicable. Basically, the planning is being done in order that urgently needed water projects of today may be designed to fit into a pattern appropriate for the future.

The California Water Plan is a framework within which development of all water resources of the State by all agencies can take place in orderly and coordinated progression as required and as desired by the people of California in order to attain maximum ultimate benefit.

The California Water Plan is not a proposal for construction. Each unit or item of construction will come before the Legislature for consideration at an appropriate time. The Feather River Project, the initial feature of the California Water Plan, has already been authorized for construction. Economic justification and financial feasibility of other component features of the California Water Plan will be considered in connection with specific construction proposals to be made later and based upon then-existing conditions.

Our legal, sectional, and political problems cannot be resolved without acceptance by all concerned that the physical aspects of these problems can be solved to the benefit of all. An uncoordinated and unplanned approach to water development in the future might well deprive some portions of the State of the water which they will need in the future, a situation already facing certain areas.

The Citizens' Conference on Water Problems, which I convened in Sacramento on November 19th, proposed that the Legislature be requested to accept the California Water Plan and to approve it as an expression of the general intent for an orderly development of the State's water resources for the benefit of all the people of California, but without approval of any specific project which should and would be considered and acted upon by the Legislature as the need therefor would arise.

Upon its presentation in final form, I urge that you accept the California Water Plan.

WATER DEVELOPMENT FUND

I further recommend that a Water Development Fund be established, adequately supported by a long-range financing program. This fund should be utilized to implement state participation in water development, both in the construction of projects by the State, and in financial assistance to local agencies.

I recommend that the presently uncommitted tidelands oil funds and income from that source through Fiscal Year 1957-58 be used initially to establish this fund.

I also recommend that annual appropriations consistent with other demands on the General Fund, from general revenues of the State, be put into the fund for water development purposes. It is believed that in order to adequately finance the State's responsibilities in water development, the issuance and sale of some general obligation bonds may be required. Revenues from sale of water and power from state projects should be pledged first to the payment of principal and interest on any such bond issues after allowance has been made for operation and maintenance costs. Any excess of such revenues over and above these requirements should be put into the fund for use in financing other water development projects.

Establishment of this fund will make available money for an immediate start on construction work necessary to the Feather River Project, and for further water development projects as needed and justified in all areas of the State, as such projects are found to be in conformity with the objectives of the California Water Plan and in accordance with policies which you adopt to determine the proper areas of state interest in water development.

AID TO LOCAL PROJECTS

The State should assist local agencies in the development of their own water resources by providing loans on a long-term, low interest rate basis to local agencies which are willing to undertake their own developments but which do not have at present the financial resources to undertake the work.

The State should be in a position to cooperate financially with local agencies to the extent of the state interest in projects to be built by local agencies.

These basic policies should be set forth in general terms in a constitutional amendment having to do with the counties of origin problem, since the firm and effective protection for these areas is to be found in actual construction of projects to conserve our water resources, making them available to serve the needs of the people.

There are two major categories of State interest in local projects which should merit state financial participation.

One concerns functions of general state interest such as I have just described. State financing of such portions of locally-built projects will assure their being planned and built to include these functions to the extent that they are necessary to meet the multipurpose objectives of the California Water Plan. In some instances, meeting such objectives would be beyond the ability or proper responsibility of the local constructing agency.

The second category of state participation in local projects should be to finance costs of meeting quantitative goals which exceed local needs but which are necessary to bring the water and power development by the project into conformity with the objectives of the California Water Plan.

Only through such participation by the State can we reasonably expect to achieve the full development of all of our water resources in some instances. In the absence of such assistance, many local agencies would be unable to build their projects to achieve the goals of the California Water Plan and we would continue developing only that portion of the water which is most easily accessible and most economical to develop. This leaves undeveloped other water resources and power, which will be more expensive, but which will some day be essential if we are to have enough water and energy for the ultimate full needs of all areas and all uses.

The extent of state interest and the amount which the State should properly contribute of necessity must be based upon thorough engineering and economic study of all factors, with recommendations by the Department of Water Resources.

The general idea of state aid to local projects was recommended by the Citizens' Committee on Water Problems.

SAN LUIS UNIT

We are confident that we can reach agreement with the Department of Interior on the terms of a contract between the department and the State for federal financing and construction of the San Luis Unit, which would then be turned over to the State for operation and repayment as an integral part of the State's Feather River Project, and that legislation can be introduced in the Congress to authorize the project and appropriate funds therefor.

The State must take all necessary steps to insure that urgently needed supplemental water is delivered to the San Joaquin Valley at the earliest possible date.

UPPER FEATHER RIVER BASIN

Within the next three months, the Department of Water Resources will present a report on the feasibility of five local projects in the Upper Feather River Service Area. To the extent that any or all of sources. Acquisition of lands for the dam and reservoir sites for these for preparation of construction plans and specifications preparatory to construction will be recommended by the Director of Water Resources. Acquisition of lands for the dam and reservoir sites for these five projects is already well advanced from funds appropriated for that purpose in 1956. Additional funds to complete the acquisition of these lands, plus those required for associated public recreational developments will be required. The Legislature will be called upon to formulate a definite policy as to the source of funds for construction of recreational facilities associated with water development.

KLAMATH RIVER INTERSTATE COMPACT

The Klamath River Interstate Compact with the State of Oregon has been signed by the commissioners of both states. It is now to be submitted to you and to the Legislature of Oregon for ratification prior to its submission to the Congress for its consent. The compact will be submitted to the Legislature as early as possible in order that ratification can be obtained at an early date and submitted to the First Session of the Eighty-fifth Congress for its consideration.

FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT MAINTENANCE

In a report of the House Appropriations Committee on the Department of the Army Civil Function appropriations bill for the Eighty-third Congress, Second Session, it was said that while maintenance of flood control facilities by local agencies generally is good, there have been some flagrant instances of deficient standards of maintenance. Such work resulted in higher federal outlays for flood control during times of emergency, according to the report. The Corps of Engineers was instructed to investigate such instances and to take steps necessary to bring about compliance with satisfactory standards.

The state flood control program includes repayment of costs of local cooperation required by Congress for flood control projects, which has resulted in a substantial state investment. Under recent congressional enactments, the number of such projects will greatly increase. Although the local agency concerned is required to maintain and operate the project works after completion, there is no practical way to enforce this obligation and in several instances the state investment has suffered because of lack of proper operation and maintenance. Further, the effectiveness of these projects to fulfill the function has been severely curtailed. Consideration should be given to legislation to enforce and accomplish maintenance of flood control projects in which the State has an investment in the same manner as is now provided by law as pertaining to the Sacramento River flood control project.

BEACH EROSION CONTROL

It is recommended that legislation be enacted to provide for financial participation by the State in beach erosion control projects in cooperation with federal and local interests. Beach erosion control projects, in general, have a state-wide interest and benefit which, it is believed, justifies financial participation by the State in a manner similar to financial participation by the State in flood control projects.

FIRE DAMAGE TO WATERSHEDS

The recent disastrous fires in Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego Counties point up the necessity for preparations to prevent damage from mud and debris flows that will result from heavy rains in burned-over areas. An emergency fund should be set up so that immediate action can be taken in the future when and if natural disasters occur again.

CONTINUITY OF GOVERNMENT

We view with fervent gratitude the fact that our Nation is at peace and that our immediate prospects are for continuing peace. However, we cannot permit ourselves to be lulled into the fallacious thought that peace is merely the absence of active warfare.

Peace is a condition which must be fostered, nurtured and actively encouraged, not only in areas of national policy but even in the privacy of each American home.

We can expect to preserve the existing state of affairs only if we are prepared for the most unfavorable eventuality. Our civil defense program is designed primarily and necessarily to be preparatory rather than preventive, and it is functioning efficiently and effectively.

Serious concern has frequently been expressed on the question of the orderly continuity of governmental and judicial agencies following an extensive disaster which would reduce our official machinery below an operable minimum.

This subject presents potential problems of sufficient magnitude to merit your diligent study and the pursuit of such action as your collective judgment might conclude is appropriate.

JUDICIAL REFORM

I must take note of varying shades of opinion which have been made public during the past few months with reference to the judicial administration of law and equity in our State.

Having served for over a decade as a trial court judge and having practiced before the Bar 14 years before that, I have had excellent opportunities to observe the conduct of our courts and the philosophy underlying them.

In a republic, any arm of government is properly subject to public scrutiny and criticism. Procedural deficiencies and occasional shortcomings of individuals can be corrected without upsetting the fundamental functions and philosophy upon which our free institutions were founded and have prospered.

However, we must be constantly alert to see that the liberties of the people are not unduly diluted under any guise.

A survey of the judicial systems of the 48 states will reveal that—with a few exceptions—each provides for the popular and periodic election of most or all its judges and justices. In my opinion, it is just as important for the courts to be directly responsible to the people as it is for the legislative or the executive authority.

Since this subject will be placed before you in the weeks ahead, I urge that you ponder carefully and examine minutely each separate proposal in this field. Many of these proposals undoubtedly have great merit and are worthy of your favorable consideration. Others may be entirely ineffectual. Still others may have elements in them, well meaning and innocent of themselves, which would pose serious threats to the rights of our people to self government and direct responsibility.

I would particularly caution against sweeping solutions which ignore details and peculiar local conditions. Where simple procedural changes may suffice in one community to facilitate judicial business, another community may need additional judges or expanded facilities.

Finally, I have stated elsewhere and I here reiterate—I am unalterably opposed to the delegation of authority without a corresponding balance of responsibility.

LOCAL PLANNING ADVISORY COMMITTEE

During the First Extra Session of 1956, the Legislature adopted a measure to provide for a local planning advisory committee to assist the Department of Finance in connection with community planning programs and problems.

There were three important determining factors behind my signature on this bill. First, there was a certain urgency so that California could qualify for federal assistance in this field. Secondly, there were several very valuable and desirable provisions incorporated in the bill. Thirdly, subject to invalidation because of conflict with federal regulation, there was a definite time limit placed on the life of this committee.

However, in this law there is incorporated an undesirable and potentially dangerous precedent which I feel should be brought to your attention.

This law—Chapter 33, Statutes of 1956 (First Extra Session)—provides for appointment of members by the Governor only upon the explicit recommendation of the presidents of certain unofficial, private organizations. This places upon the Governor an important responsibility without giving him the corresponding power to properly carry out that responsibility.

Committee members secured under this method thus far have been good, conscientious people. The issue of personalities in no wise enters into this discussion. The fact remains, an unhealthy precedent has been established.

I have no objection whatever to having broad qualifying restrictions placed upon these appointees to the extent that their position, experience and geography must be considered. I do have serious reservations as to the wisdom of permitting individuals or organizations who have no direct responsibility to the people of California to name members of official state agencies.

Logical extension of this practice could seriously impair the basic freedom of our people and I wish to be clearly on record as opposed to encouraging and expanding any trend in this direction.

LIBRARY SERVICE

Our splendid public libraries constitute what is probably our most valuable single asset for the continuing and expanding educational needs of our people. Both as a substitute for and a supplement to formal education, these institutions are of tremendous lifetime benefit to those Californians who are able to take advantage of their services.

However, their availability is, according to reliable authority, somewhat restricted and many communities of our State suffer from an inadequacy or total absence of such facilities.

I believe that this is an important and frequently overlooked area for public consideration and discussion. I commend the members of the Legislature who have expressed their deep interest in the subject and I feel that their activities in this direction certainly merit your attention.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

With reference to employees of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department, the law and legislative intent are reasonably clear in spelling out prohibitions against the solicitation or acceptance of financial contributions of any sort from licensees of that department.

While the law is not explicit in covering the subject, I feel that it should apply with equal force against the solicitation or acceptance of financial contributions by or on behalf of a gubernatorial candidate. The recent reformation of liquor law enforcement in our State was based on the premise that the Governor was ultimately and directly responsible for administration of the laws governing the alcoholic beverage industry in our State.

Carrying this philosophy to a consistent conclusion, I urge you to expressly and effectively prohibit the participation, directly or indirectly, of alcoholic beverage licensees in California gubernatorial campaigns.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

In the past, I have presented to the Legislature suggestions designed to make our unemployment compensation program more sound and serviceable. Suggestions of increased benefits geared to present day costs of living have consistently been coupled with insistence that the unemployment fund be protected from depletion through fraudulent claims.

The response of the Legislature to these suggestions has been most gratifying.

Two years ago, the then out-moded base period earnings requirement was adjusted to establish a sound, up-to-date economic base for operation of the law. In response to the need for action on the fraud issue, a number of significant improvements were adopted. These changes, in turn, made it possible to correct some of the deficiencies that have crept into the law over the years and simultaneously helped provide for increases in the maximum benefits.

These revisions were aimed at providing a sounder, more equitable system of unemployment insurance. These steps were well and wisely taken. They did not, however, bring us to our goal.

There are at least two deficiencies remaining in the law. These relate to the maximum benefit amount and to the extent of coverage under the law.

The maximum benefit amount has not kept pace with the advance in wages in covered employment. In 1939, the maximum weekly benefit equalled 60 percent of average weekly earnings. Today these payments fall short of 40 percent of average weekly earnings.

With regard to coverage, approximately 25 percent of the wage and salary earners in California falling within the scope and purpose of unemployment compensation remain outside the protective provisions of the law. In light of the smooth and effective extension of Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance protection in recent years, I earnestly believe that this is an area which deserves the careful attention of the Legislature.

Other states face similar problems. On more than one occasion, President Eisenhower has called them to the attention of the various state governors, emphasizing that they represent areas for state action rather than federal interference. I am in complete accord with this view and present it to you for your practical and positive action.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY

We have good reason to be proud of California's system of unemployment compensation for disability. It remains one of the four state programs of its kind in existence in the United States.

Previous legislatures have been diligent to keep this program in step with economic developments affecting its operation. Because this is in a dynamic, expanding field, it demands our continuing concern and consideration. Wages and living standards, fortunately, continue to advance, and since our disability compensation program is a wage-loss system, it is essential that its benefit structure be kept reasonably in line with these advancements.

The reasons advanced for increasing maximum unemployment compensation benefits apply with equal force to unemployment compensation for disability. If anything, the argument for increasing disability benefits is even stronger in that the reserves in the disability fund are obviously sufficient, belong to the workers, and with justice could be paid out to them for their legitimate disability needs.

I also suggest that you consider extension of disability protection to certain groups presently excluded. It seems the essence of logic that those groups of workers desiring to contribute to the disability fund for their own protection could effectively be brought within the scope of the law.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION AND INDUSTRIAL SAFETY

Insurance against disability incurred from industrial hazards, known as workmen's compensation, is the oldest form of social security in this Country. It was adopted on a compulsory basis in California in 1914, some 40 odd years ago.

The 65 percent wage-loss system that presently governs the rate of compensation for industrial injuries was written into the law at that time.

Under present law, current restrictions on average weekly earnings establish a maximum weekly benefit of $40 in the case of temporary disabilities and $35 in the case of permanent disabilities. The actual earnings of injured workers, however, average close to $85 a week, with the result that approximately 80 percent of injured workers are being denied a 65 percent rate of compensation which the law itself says they should have.

Two years ago you responded to my request for an increase in the maximum benefit amounts by granting a $5 boost for both permanent and temporary disabilities. I urge that we continue along the road of substantial progress at a rapid pace until the 65 percent wage-loss principle in the law is restored to the level of operation contemplated by the fathers of workmen's compensation.

There is also considerable room for progress in the improvement of the death benefit structure. Despite the liberalization accomplished in 1955, the maximum death benefit of $12,500 for the typical 40-year-old widow with dependent children of a deceased injured worker is a far cry from what may be considered adequate compensation in a social tragedy of this nature.

As you know, the death benefit is payable at the same rate as compensation for temporary disability until the death benefit is exhausted. Even at the present low maximum benefit rate of $40 a week, this means that the typical 40-year-old widow with dependent children can expect approximately six years of compensation at this rate. Obviously, this does not begin to make up for the loss of many more years of support which the spouse of a 40-year-old widow would have been able to provide had there been no fatal accident.

My recommendation to the Legislature at this time is that it remove the unrealistic limits on the duration of death benefit payments and give serious consideration to the enactment of a life pension, with additional benefits for dependents, payable in death cases at the temporary disability rate until death or remarriage of the beneficiary.

Another matter which I wish to call to your attention is the lack of adequate provisions in our Workmen's Compensation Law regarding the rehabilitation of injured workers. Except for the requirement for physical restoration through medical, surgical, and hospital care and treatment, our Workmen's Compensation Law makes no provision to assure the worker's return to his former employment, or to some gainful employment wherein he will have income and future opportunities equal to or closely approximating the income and opportunities in the employment for which his injury has disqualified him.

This is an area where legislative action is most essential. The provision for rehabilitation training would constitute a service in keeping with both the original concept of rehabilitating workers to gainful employment and the modern concept of encouraging self-support rather than "welfare support."

Finally, we must never lose sight of the need for accident prevention as a goal far preferable to adequate compensation after the occurrence of an injury.

High employment means that we have to gear our industrial safety program with our working population, because our statistics prove that high employment means more industrial injuries.

As a minimum program for immediate action, additional funds should be granted the Department of Industrial Relations in order that it may hire the safety engineers necessary for a realistic program of education, engineering, and enforcement of State Industrial Safety Orders.

INDUSTRIAL HEALTH

I feel it is most important that you give sympathetic consideration to the services of the State Health Department's Bureau of Adult Health, whose principal function is the protection of the health of California's working men and women.

As has been pointed out, California's labor force is the greatest ever in our history.

The demands have increased markedly upon the staff of this bureau, which has remained virtually static the last 10 years. New chemicals have been introduced into industry and many new industries and industrial processes have developed, including the peacetime uses of radiological materials.

Further, the development of new and potent—and sometimes highly hazardous—pesticides and insecticides to protect California's crops poses an ever-increasing problem to this bureau. These poisons are vital to the growth of California's myriad of agricultural products, but with their use, advances must be made in devising safe methods of using them in order to protect the public health.

FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT

There has been dissatisfaction with the operation of various portions of the Labor Code relating to matters falling within the general category of minimum labor standards. These include the hours of work and other protective provisions covering women and minors and the overlapping jurisdiction of the Industrial Welfare Commission in these subjects.

The need is not piecemeal action, but thorough revision. The time has come in our present stage of industrial development to give serious consideration to the need for the enactment of an up-to-date, fair labor standards act for California patterned closely after the federal law.

AIR POLLUTION

Our continued growth in population and industrial development provide us with vast wealth and comfort. But, in achieving this enviable position, we are simultaneously filling the air with contaminants, creating a problem which is reaching into almost every area of our State.

The air pollution problem has undergone considerable change within the past two years, to the point where it is inaccurate to conclude that air pollution is a problem confined solely to the heavily populated, metropolitan regions of California.

The fact that smog has been experienced in a number of scattered locations in the State and the fact that crop damage has been reported from several counties, would indicate that air pollution travels many miles; that it does not simply hover over our larger cities.

Concurrent with these reports of the spread of air pollution and its attack on crops come reports on its effect on the health of our people. Preliminary results of a state-wide household survey indicate that over one-third of the adult persons in California experience some degree of irritation which they attribute to air pollution.

Because of the over-all significance of air pollution upon the health and economy of our citizens, the State Department of Public Health is maintaining careful vigil over the health of the population, keyed to the scientific engineering studies of the spread, intensity and occurrence of smog.

While a number of agencies and private groups are doing research in many fields, additional studies will speed the day when air pollution can be better understood and more effectively controlled. And since the problem is of growing concern it is important that the State assume more responsibility for research and guidance.

Understanding that legislative committees currently are working on this problem, I wish to offer my assistance, and the facilities of my administration, to work with them on any constructive plan which lends itself to the satisfactory solution of the air pollution problem in California.

ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND PUBLIC HEALTH

I am advised by our State Director of Public Health that the atomic age, with its unbelievable promises to come from the peaceful uses of atomic energy, creates serious problems of protecting ourselves against any increase in the radiation levels to which we are already exposed.

It is my understanding that Members of the Legislature are intensely interested in the possibilities of expanding the peaceful use of atomic energy but, at the same time, are deeply concerned with protecting the public against any possible hazards to health surrounding its use. It is my intention to cooperate in any way I can to facilitate efforts to deal forthrightly and promptly with this problem.

POLIO PREVENTION

I propose mobilization of our resources to make available to all the population of great polio risk the means whereby we may prevent another major outbreak of infantile paralysis in California. Scientific research has given us an effective weapon against this disease. Its mass application is fully justified.

In the Budget I propose that $3,000,000 in state funds be appropriated for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of the program. These funds would purchase sufficient vaccine to provide two injections for approximately 2,000,000 Californians.

My request would not provide enough money to afford protection to the 6,000,000 unvaccinated under the age of 40, who represent our highest poliomyelitis risk, but it is hoped the program will generate an incentive in this populaton to seek protection against this crippling disease.

The vaccine would also be used to provide vaccination for persons who have received only one or two of the recommended three inoculations.

Information compiled thus far shows that the crippling effects of poliomyelitis have been reduced at least 85 percent among those who have had two or more inoculations, evidence enough that it would be $3,000,000 well spent.

AID TO SENIOR CITIZENS

In any consideration of the economic security of our people, extensive thought must be given to the need of our senior citizens. At present, there are 700,000 persons 65 years of age and older principally reliant upon benefits either from the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program or the California Old Age Security program or from a combination of the two.

People are living longer in California. It is interesting to observe that the average recipient of Old Age Security benefits in California today is over 76 years of age.

We have a large number of elderly citizens who require considerable care in the course of daily living and many who also require extensive medical attention. Out-of-the-ordinary necessities of our senior citizens are not now being adequately met. Under our Old Age Security program, we permit beneficiaries to retain certain extra income in order to cover vitally necessary medical care.

As far as it goes, this is a humane policy and of itself is just. However, approximately one-third of the people receiving such assistance do not have sufficient additional income to derive the anticipated benefit from this provision.

For individuals who rely entirely upon the assistance grant, such a condition can readily prove disastrous. Such aid provides only basic necessities. These people frequently are left in the tragic dilemma of having to decide whether to do without certain fundamentals required to sustain them or to do without sorely needed medical attention.

Equity, common sense and our American concept of personal dignity impel us to give our attention to finding a way to relieve such an unhappy and unnecessary condition.

Federal funds for a program to alleviate these problems become available to us on next July 1 but they are contingent upon affirmative action by the California Legislature authorizing the program and appropriating matching funds from state revenues.

By your official action, you cannot hope to meet every need of our senior citizens. These obligations devolve proportionately upon the State, upon individuals and upon private groups of people.

However, the fact that we cannot do it all does not relieve us of the responsibility for doing what we can. I, therefore, commend these and other related needs among our people to your careful, sympathetic attention and prompt action.

CHILD CARE CENTERS

It is always agreeable when we can undertake and foster worthwhile programs which are, at the same time, both humanitarian and economical.

Such a governmental enterprise has been found in the state-supported child care centers. The fact that these centers have taken care of over 250,000 children since they were first instituted in 1946 on a temporary, emergency basis is indicative of the vital need for them. In the existing state of our society, we must continue to deal with the problem of single-parent families where that parent must work to support young children.

As constituted, the costs of this program are borne in part by the State and in part by the parents. If these centers did not provide care for these youngsters, it is entirely probable that a major portion of them would have legitimate call on the "Aid to Needy Children" program. This could easily cost the taxpayers of California up to 50 percent more than the cost of maintaining and supporting child care centers.

These considerations, coupled with the fact that the expanding economy of California requires the skills and talents of all available workers, impels me to suggest to you at this time that the California child care center program be extended without reference to a terminal date, and that it be made an integral part of California's great body of practical, progressive, humane legislation.

DELINQUENT FATHERS

At the cornerstone of our way of life is the stability and the security of the American home.

The proportionately small but actually large number of fathers who are wilfully derelict in their obligation to properly provide for their minor children is becoming an increasingly serious social problem. Aside from considerations of morality and human suffering involved in each case, public concern is also directed toward the millions of dollars annually expended by our state, federal, and local governmental agencies to help support the neglected families of these men, and to trace those fathers who have deliberately and physically fled from their responsibilities in this regard.

There are factors far more important than the economics involved. Because of the volume of official assistance extended to the innocent victims of this delinquency, the interests of the genuine hardship cases deserving of our assistance are also adversely affected.

Such cases of irresponsibility and neglect are becoming all too common. Recognizing the many difficult problems and complex questions involved, I hope that the California Legislature will give this matter serious consideration and will also take such action as it deems appropriate to place more effective restraints on potential defaulting fathers whose abdication of responsibility would pose a threat to a major source of basic strength to our Nation.

VETERANS' HOME LOANS

The Legislature and the people of California are to be congratulated on their continuing and expanded support of the veterans' farm and home loan program. Here is a superb example of a program made possible by use of the State's credit, which provides benefits to its participants without cost to the taxpayers. It helps a large segment of our population to become property owners, and it provides substantial benefits to communities throughout the State by increasing local property values with the construction of new homes in previously undeveloped or underdeveloped areas.

During the recent session of the Legislature, a more realistic approach was made on the questions of maximum value and maximum amounts allowable for loans under the Cal-Vet program. This legislation, however, left an apparent inequity which I am sure you will want to correct.

The law now provides that up to $15,000 can be advanced for the purchase of a home by a California veteran whereas no more than $13,500 can be advanced for a home construction loan.

With the various regulations and inspection procedures attendant to such loans, I suggest that the State's interests would be as well protected and greater equity would be achieved if the maximum for both home purchase and home construction loans could be fixed at $15,000.

AVIATION PROBLEMS

Rapid transportation is becoming progressively more important to the economy of California. All forms of transportation—surface, sea and air—are contributing to the generally favorable commercial outlook in our State.

The California Aeronautics Commission informs me that, paradoxically, as the volume of demands upon aviation has increased, available convenient facilities for handling this traffic have been slowly but steadily constricted.

The vigor of our dynamic aeronautics industry is a matter of legitimate concern to all Californians. Problems of zoning, priorities and education are involved and I commend this subject to your serious attention.

OIL REVENUES

The State of California has a tremendous financial interest in the development of oil in tide and submerged lands. As the result of discussions arising out of the administration of the Cunningham-Shell Act of 1955, I believe this question should be fully reviewed by the Legislature so that not only the State's interests will be fully protected but also that the oil industry's efforts will not be unduly impeded in developing this great resource. Royalty rates and bonus payments including the 12½ percent limitation should be carefully reviewed with these objectives in mind.

EDUCATION

Our increasing population presents matters of great concern to all of us with reference to the education of our youth. Today in the United States we have 8,600,000 young men and women in the 18-to-21 college age group. In the grade school group of 7 to 10 years we have 13,200,000 boys and girls. Within another decade we will have not only more young people in all our schools, we will have a far larger percentage of them wanting to go beyond high school.

In their repeated endorsements of state bond issues for expansion of educational facilities, the latest instance being on November 6, the people of California have wisely demonstrated a dynamic awareness of the need for meeting this challenge. In keeping with this mandate, extensive provision has been made for our State's educational systems in the proposed budget. These will be discussed in greater detail in my Budget Message which you will have before you within a very few days.

FISH AND GAME

When you review the budget proposals which will be submitted to you within the next few days, you will note that provision for the operation of the State Department of Fish and Game will be based entirely upon present revenues and such additional income as is predictable based upon present fees and taxes. At this time, I do not advocate nor propose any increase in fish and game license fees.

However, I would be remiss if I did not point out that the urgent need for fish and game services apparently is increasing at a rate greater than the increasing volume of license sales can accommodate.

With so many of your members well versed in these problems, with such an extensive array of independent experts immediately available and with the cooperation of the State Fish and Game Commission at your disposal, I feel the legislative chambers and committee rooms provide excellent platforms for the many and extensive questions involved in this field.

I know that these matters will receive your careful study and will have the advantage of your combined knowledge and experience on the subject.

ADDITIONAL SUBJECTS

As you are well aware, the Governor's initial message at the opening of a legislative session is broad in scope but not necessarily all inclusive. A number of subjects, ranging from consideration of the status of specific projects such as the 1960 Winter Olympics facilities to broad areas such as increased aid to public education and other details concerned with the operation of our various state departments, more appropriately fall within the purview of the State Budget and will be covered in that document and the comments which will accompany it.

CLOSING

Theodore Roosevelt was not only a great American and patriot, he was an earnest student of history and philosophy. On the occasion of his assuming the vice presidency on March 4, 1901, he said from the rostrum of the United States Senate (and I quote): "The history of free government is in large part the history of those representative legislative bodies in which, from the earliest times, free government has found its loftiest expression. They must ever hold a peculiar and exalted position in the record which tells how the great nations of the world have endeavored to achieve and preserve orderly freedom. * * * Great privileges and great powers are ours, and heavy are the responsibilities that go with these privileges and these powers. Accordingly as we do well or ill, so shall mankind in the future be raised or cast down."

This is a solemn thought which must—in one form or another—be with us each today as we commence another session of the California State Legislature.

I am convinced that California's destiny is magnificent greatness and ultimate primacy among the states of our beloved Republic. I am confident that your deliberations and actions between today and adjournment next summer will materially advance our State toward realization of its unparalleled potential.

Inasmuch as you and I have a common goal—the continuing progress and prosperity of California—you can be assured of the wholehearted cooperation of your Governor, his staff and the members of his administration. We welcome your suggestions and will do whatever can be done to assist you in meeting the problems of our mutual constituents.

COMMUNICATIONS

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS
SACRAMENTO, October 31, 1956

Mr. Frank B. Durkee
Director of Public Works

Report on advisability of creating a new state highway between Patterson and San Jose in the vicinity of Mt. Hamilton was submitted to the Legislature in December of 1954. A feasible route around the south side of the mountain was determined insofar as construction was concerned. This office did not recommend the proposal because our findings indicated such a road could not be economically justified.

Senate Resolution No. 139, adopted June 2, 1955, requests a re-examination of this proposal looking toward a route around the north side of Mt. Hamilton.

Transmitted herewith is report on this alternate submitted in accordance with your request dated June 3, 1955.

I concur in the conclusions of this report.

I. Senate Resolution No. 139 (Adopted June 2, 1955)

Requesting the Department of Public Works to make a further survey for a state highway between the Cities of Patterson and San Jose

WHEREAS, Senate Resolution No. 14 of the 1954 First Extraordinary Session requested the Department of Public Works to make a preliminary survey for a state highway between the Cities of Patterson and San Jose; and

WHEREAS, The department, pursuant to said resolution, made a survey for such a highway which would be laid out so as to go around the base of Mt. Hamilton on the south side of said mountain and determined that due to the high cost of construction and the heavy grades which would be necessary on said route, thereby making the route unattractive for use by trucks, the construction of a new state highway along said route would receive a very low priority; and

WHEREAS, It is felt that a further survey in connection with such a highway, exploring the possibility of constructing the highway along the base of Mt. Hamilton on the north side of said mountain, might disclose that a highway could be constructed along such route at a lower cost and with less grades than a highway around the south side of Mt. Hamilton; and

WHEREAS, The construction of such highway between the Cities of Patterson and San Jose will be very conducive to the increase of manufacturing activity and recreational activities in the area involved, and will also provide another important escape route from the heavily populated peninsula below San Francisco in case of atomic attack; and

WHEREAS, There is at the present time no direct route between the Cities of Patterson and San Jose, except by way of county-maintained roads through Del Puerto Canyon, which route by admission of the Department of Public Works in its report to the Legislature on the feasibility of construction of a state highway around the southern base of Mt. Hamilton, is seriously deficient in practically every way; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Department of Public Works be requested to undertake such further surveys as are necessary to determine the advisability of the construction of a new state highway between the Cities of Patterson and San Jose, such highway to be laid out so as to go around the base of Mt. Hamilton on the north side of said mountain, and to report to the Legislature the results of such surveys as soon as possible and not later than the beginning of the 1957 Regular Session of the Legislature; and be it further Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the Honorable Frank B. Durkee, Director of Public Works.

II. Introduction

In December of 1954, a report was submitted to the Legislature on cost and general characteristics of constructing a road to state highway standards between Patterson in Stanislaus County and San Jose in Santa Clara County. A feasible route was determined, skirting Mt. Hamilton to the south, shown on the attached Exhibit "A" as "South Alternate."

To project a feasible location between these two cities by way of the north side of Mt. Hamilton, in compliance with Senate Resolution No. 139, topographic maps were again studied and reconnaissance was made in the field on foot, by jeep and by helicopter. As shown on Exhibit "A" a "North Alternate" route was determined which, because of topographic restrictions necessarily utilizes extensive portions of the original route.

Information contained in the December, 1954, report relative to existing routes and predicted traffic still obtains.

For analysis purposes comparative engineering and cost data on each alternate is tabulated in the following report. Findings and conclusions relative to the "North Alternate" are set forth.

III. Standards

From the standpoint of economics, the most practical standard for the proposed new state highway through this mountainous terrain appears to be one that will allow a minimum speed of 30 miles per hour and a maximum gradient of 7 percent.

IV. Comparison of Grade Lines

Summation of significant grade data is as follows:

VII. Findings and Conclusions

1. It is physically practical to construct a route between San Jose and Patterson that would follow along existing Legislative Route 115 to Smith Creek Ranger Station, thence branch either north or south of Mt. Hamilton to the northerly end of San Antonio Valley, thence cross San Antonio Valley and follow Del Puerto Canyon to Patterson.

2. The total length of this proposed highway from the intersection of Legislative Routes 68 and 115 in San Jose to Route 41 in Patterson, utilizing either the north or south alternate (their respective lengths being equal), is 59.0 miles of which 35.6 miles are in Santa Clara County and 23.4 miles are in Stanislaus County.

3. Alignment of the route either to the north or south of Mt. Hamilton would allow minimum speeds of 30 miles per hour. Approximately 17.2 miles on the north alternate and 15.8 miles on the south alternate would be on grades of 6 percent or steeper, including nearly two miles of sustained 7 percent grade in Del Puerto Canyon.

4. Reconnaissance to date indicates the alternate to the south of Mt. Hamilton to be more favorable because of slightly cheaper construction cost and somewhat better grades.

5. There will be no anticipated change in predicted traffic by use of either the north or south alternate. Because of the heavy sustained grades on either alternate, very few trucks would use this route in preference to the Pacheco or Altamount Pass routes.

6. Since there are so many other critical highway deficiencies in Santa Clara and Stanislaus Counties, the construction of a new state highway between San Jose and Patterson, via either north or south of Mt. Hamilton, would receive very low priority, because of the large expenditure involved and the small traffic service rendered.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Senator Abshire:

Senate Resolution No. 10

Relative to the enforcement of provisions of the Vehicle Code

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 458 of the Statutes of 1953, the Legislature added Section 531.1 to the Vehicle Code; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 421 of the Statutes of 1953, the Legislature added Section 525.3 to the Vehicle Code; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature was prompted to enact such laws for the safety of the public, by reason of dangerous situations upon the highways caused by trucks and tractor-trailers "tailgating" on two-lane highways and driving in the center lanes at speeds slower than the normal flow of traffic; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that by requiring trucks and vehicles pulling trailers to remain a distance of at least 500 feet to the rear of a preceding truck or vehicle pulling a trailer it would be possible for other users of the highways to pass in relative safety; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that requiring slow-moving trucks and tractor-trailers to remain in the right-hand lane for traffic on multiple-lane highways would prevent traffic moving at a higher rate of speed from having to make dangerous right-hand passes; and

WHEREAS, It has come to the attention of the Legislature that the enactment of Sections 531.1 and 525.3 of the Vehicle Code has not prevented "tailgating" or kept the slower-moving vehicles in the right-hand lane of traffic, and the dangerous situation still exists to a large extent upon the highways in the State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Commissioner of Highway Patrol of the State of California report to the Senate during this legislative session as to the extent of enforcement of said Sections 531.1 and 523.3 of the Vehicle Code; the number of citations issued during the past calendar year for violations of said sections; the particular difficulties in enforcement of such sections, if any; and his recommendations for further legislation, if any is needed, to prevent the dangerous situations caused on highways by reason of violation of these sections of the law; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate transmit copies of this resolution to the Commissioner of the Highway Patrol.

Resolution read, and referred to Committee on Rules.

Dr. Menninger complimented the California Legislature for having introduced Senate Bill No. 244 by Senator Alan Short this session which would enable communities to set up their own mental health clinics, which he stated was the aggressive way to treat the mentally ill, stressing that prevention will not only assist those that are mentally ill but will keep the cost of treatment down.

SEC. 2. Section 18 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 18. (1) Whenever the board determines that a bonded indebtedness should be incurred to pay the cost of any work or improvement in any zone or zones, the board may by resolution[,] determine and declare the respective amounts of bonds necessary to be issued in each zone in order to raise the amount of money necessary for each work or improvement and the denomination and the maximum rate of interest of said bonds. The board shall cause a copy of the resolution duly certified by the clerk, to be filed for record in the Office of the Recorder of San Benito County within five (5) days after its issuance. From and after said filing of said copy of said resolution the board shall be deemed vested with the authority to proceed with the bond election.

(2) After the filing for record of the resolution specified in subdivision (1) of this section, the board may call a special bond election in said zone or participating zones at which shall be submitted to the qualified electors of said zone or participating zones the question whether or not bonds shall be issued in the amount or amounts determined in said resolution and for the purpose or purposes therein stated. Said bonds and the interest thereon shall be paid from revenue derived from annual taxes levied upon the lands situated within the zone or participating zones, and all such lands shall be and remain liable to be taxed for such payments as provided in this act.

(3) Said board shall call such special bond election by ordinance and not otherwise and submit to the qualified electors of said zone or participating zones, the proposition of incurring a bonded debt in said zone or participating zones in the amount and for the purposes stated in said resolution and shall recite therein the objects and purposes for which the indebtedness is proposed to be incurred; provided, that it shall be sufficient to give a brief, general description of such objects and purposes, and refer to the recorded copy of such resolution adopted by said board[,] and on file for particulars; and said ordinance[s] shall also state the estimated cost of the proposed work and improvements, and the amount of the principal of the indebtedness to be incurred [therefor, and what part or installment of such indebtedness shall be paid each and every year, and which shall not in any one year be less than one-fortieth (1/40) of the whole amount of the principal and interest of such indebtedness,] and the maximum rate of interest to be paid on said indebtedness, and shall fix the date on which such special election shall be held, and the form and contents of the ballot to be used. The rate of interest to be paid on such indebtedness shall not exceed five percent (5%) per annum. For the purposes of said election, said board shall in said ordinance establish a special bond election precinct or precincts within the boundaries of each zone and participating zone and may form election precincts by consolidating the precincts established for general elections in said district to a number not exceeding six general precincts for each such special bond election precinct, and shall designate polling places and appoint at least one inspector, one judge and one clerk for each of such special bond election precincts.

In all particulars not recited in said ordinance, such special bond election shall be held as nearly as practicable in conformity with the general election laws of the State, except that voters shall be electors as defined in this act. It shall be the duty of the county assessor to provide a list of landowners, which list shall be the list of electors for purposes of this section. Preparation of such list shall be a charge against the county general fund.

Said board shall cause a map [or maps] to be prepared covering a general description of the work to be done, which said map shall show the location of the proposed works and improvements and shall cause the said map to be posted in a prominent place in the county courthouse for public inspection for at least thirty (30) days before the date fixed for such election.

Said ordinance calling for such special bond election shall, prior to the date set for such election, be published in a newspaper of general circulation circulated in each zone and participating zone affected for six consecutive times if published in a daily newspaper of general circulation, or two times if published in a weekly newspaper of general circulation. The last publication of such ordinance must be at least fourteen (14) days before said election, and if there be no such newspaper, then such ordinance shall be posted in five public places designated by the board, in each zone and participating zone for at least thirty (30) days before the date fixed for such election. No other notice of such election need be given nor need polling place cards be issued.

Any defect or irregularity in the proceedings prior to the calling of such special bond election shall not affect the validity of the bonds authorized by said election. If at such election two-thirds (⅔) of the votes cast are in favor of incurring such bonded indebtedness, then bonds for such zone or participating zones for the amount stated in such proceedings shall be issued and sold as in this act provided.

SEC. 3. Section 19 of said act is amended to read:

SEC. 19. The board shall, subject to the provisions of this act, prescribe by resolution the form of said bonds, which must include a designation of the zone or participating zones affected, and of the interest coupons attached thereto. Said bonds shall be payable annually or semiannually at the discretion of the board each and every year on a day and date, and at a place to be fixed by said board, and designated in such bonds, together with the interest on all sums unpaid on such date until the whole of said indebtedness shall have been paid.

The board may divide the principal amount of any issue into two or more series and fix different dates for the bonds of each series. The bonds of one series may be made payable at different dates from those of any other series. The maturity dates of each series shall comply with this section. The board may fix a date, not more than two (2) years from the date of issuance, for the earliest maturity of each issue or series of bonds. Beginning with the date of the earliest maturity of each issue or series, not less than one-fortieth ($1/40$) of the indebtedness of such issue or series shall be paid every year. The final maturity date of each issue or series shall not exceed forty (40) years from the time of incurring the indebtedness evidenced by such issue or series.

The bonds shall be issued in such denominations as the board may determine, except that no bonds shall be of a less denomination than one hundred dollars ($100), nor of a greater denomination than one thousand dollars ($1,000), and shall be payable on the days and at the place fixed in said bonds, and with interest at the rate specified in such bonds, which rate shall not be in excess of five per centum (5%) per annum, and shall be made payable annually or semiannually, and [said] the bonds of each issue or series shall be numbered consecutively and shall be signed by the chairman of the board, and countersigned by the auditor of said district, and the seal of said district shall be affixed thereto by the clerk of the board. [The signature of the chairman of the board may be his] Either or both of such signatures may be printed, engraved or lithographed [signature]. The interest coupons of said bonds shall be numbered consecutively and signed by the said auditor by his printed, engraved or lithographed signature. In case any such officer s whose signatures or countersignatures appear on the bonds or coupons shall cease to be such officer s before the delivery of such bonds to the purchaser, such bonds and coupons, and signatures or countersignatures shall nevertheless be valid and sufficient for all purposes the same as if such officer s had remained in office until the delivery of the bonds.

SEC. 4. Section 21 of said act is repealed.

SEC. 5. Section 22 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 22. [The board shall levy a tax each year upon all land in the zone or zones of issuance, or in zones created for flood control, upon all land and the improvements thereon in the zone or zones of issuance,] Any bonds issued under the provisions of this act, and the interest thereon, shall be paid by revenue derived from an annual tax upon all land in the zone or participating zones, or, in any zone or participating zones for flood control, upon all land and improvements thereon in the zone or participating zones, sufficient to pay the interest and such portion of the principal of said bonds as is due or to become due before the time for making the next general tax levy. It is hereby declared that for the purposes of any tax levied pursuant to this section, the property so taxed within a given zone is equally benefited. No zone nor the property therein shall be liable for the share of bonded indebtedness of any other zone, nor shall any moneys derived from taxation in any of the several zones be used in payment of principal or interest or otherwise of the share of the bonded indebtedness chargeable to any other zone. Such taxes shall be levied and collected in the respective zones [of issuance] or participating zones, together with and not separately from taxes for county purposes, and [when collected] the revenues derived from said taxes shall be paid into the county treasury of said San Benito County to the credit of the zone of payment, and be used for the payment of the principal and interest on said bonds, and for no other purpose. The principal and interest on said bonds shall be paid by the county treasurer of said San Benito County in the manner provided by law for the payment of principal and interest on bonds of said county.

SEC. 6. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting such necessity are: Water conservation and flood control projects are urgently needed in San Benito County Flood Control and Water Conservation District and the zones thereof, which projects can be financed only by the authorization, issue and sale of bonds of the district or of the respective zones. The amendments to the act governing the district, as set forth in this act, are necessary in order to clarify the provisions applicable to electors entitled to vote at district or zone bond elections and to clarify the provisions applicable to the authorization, issue and sale of bonds of the district or of zones thereof. It is accordingly necessary that this act take effect immediately."

BUDGET MESSAGE

By GOVERNOR GOODWIN J. KNIGHT

1957-58 Budget

To the Senate and Assembly of the Legislature of California:

I submit the Budget for the State of California for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1957, and ending June 30, 1958, in compliance with the provisions of the State Constitution.

State finances are currently in excellent condition. Revenues have again exceeded our estimates. We have again been favored with greater prosperity than our economic advisers dared forecast a year ago. By reason of the greater revenues and some substantial savings in expenditures, the carry-over surplus available for general purposes will be considerably greater than anticipated. This carry-over surplus, when added to the revenues estimated for the year, will finance the recommended expenditures without an increase in tax rates or new revenue measures.

This is a budget for another year of progress by a State coping with the problems of a continuing great growth in population and an expanding economy. The recommended expenditure programs have been developed with the objective of providing a high standard of public service with the greatest possible economy.

Revenue Estimates

In all but one of the past five years the budget revenue estimates for the General Fund have proved to be too conservative, as the following tabulation will show:

	Original Estimate *	Actual Receipts	Difference
			Amount	Percent
1951-52	$638,579,659	$734,025,725	$95,446,066	14.9
1952-53	742,396,513	773,977,227	31,580,714	4.3
1953-54	803,835,183	798,083,615	—5,751,568	—0.7
1954-55	822,168,251 †	879,122,544	56,954,293	6.9
1955-56	856,548,435	1,005,040,608	148,492,173	17.3

* Adjusted for estimated effect of revenue measures adopted by the Legislature

† Includes $19,418,604 received as a result of the United States Supreme Court decision regarding tideland oil royalties.

I should like to emphasize that the differences were due to unforeseen economic developments, rather than poor workmanship in estimating.

You can see that being too conservative or too optimistic by but a few percentage points can make a difference of a good many millions of dollars.

This year's estimate, as in previous years, has been made in the light of a very careful appraisal of the economic situation, after consultation with economists representing industry, utilities, banking, the Federal Government and universities, at conferences held both within the State and nationally. There is a general unanimity of opinion that there will be a further moderate increase next year above the present high levels of income and business volume. I submit the estimates for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year with assurances that there have been diligent efforts to make them dependable forecasts, and that by no means are they intentionally over-conservative.

Expenditures

Total Expenditures—All Funds

The expenditures for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year as recommended, including the estimated fixed charges, total $1,947,964,993, an increase of $119,580,110 or 6.5 percent, over the estimated expenditures of the current year. The greater part of the increase is required by the inexorable demands of growth. A relatively small part is attributable to proposals for improvements in standards. I have already discussed in the message delivered to you last week the major policy matters which involve budget considerations. I shall briefly review them here. You will find more detailed explanations in the budget schedules.

State Operations

Higher Education

The heaviest increase in State Operations is for higher education. Enrollments in the state colleges are projected to grow from 47,331 this year to 54,190, an increase of 6,859 students in just one year. Expenditure requirements for the state colleges are recommended at $40,329,827, an increase of $6,277,549, or 18.4 percent, over this year's total.

For the University of California, enrollments for next year are estimated at 42,559, an increase of 2,876, or 7.2 percent. The University's operations will require, in addition to its own revenues, state appropriations of $82,304,685 for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year—an increase of $6,766,880, or 9 percent.

Highway Patrol

All right-thinking people are aroused by the frightful record of traffic accidents. Those who have given this great problem serious study are unanimous in their recommendations that one of the most important needs in combating it is increased patrolling of the highways. Accordingly, this budget makes provision for adding 370 uniformed men to bring its total force to 2,434. This is the maximum increment which can be recruited and trained in the time available. This addition in manpower, with related auxiliary costs, will increase the total operating budget for the Highway Patrol from $22,153,875 to $24,837,414.

I am recommending that in order to expedite this badly needed increase in the Patrol, a deficiency appropriation be submitted immediately to provide funds so that 100 of this additional force can be recruited and put into training at the earliest possible time during the current fiscal year.

Mental Hygiene

Appropriations aggregating $92,195,419, an increase of $7,931,148, or 9.4 percent, are recommended for the operations of the Department of Mental Hygiene, its hospitals for mentally ill and mentally retarded, and its clinics and research centers. A substantial part of this increase is for improvement in medical and nursing staffing. Included also is a recommended fund of $200,000 for the beginning of an organized research program. We can take a great deal of satisfaction in California's forward-looking mental hygiene program.

Improved treatment methods have resulted in such a significant increase in therapeutic releases of patients from the hospitals that we are now in a position to reduce our forecast of new hospital beds required. We can point to good evidence of the realization of the prediction that improved medical treatment would result in economics in the long run.

Natural Resources

Provision is made for stepping up the activities of the Department of Natural Resources, especially of the Division of Forestry, for which an increase of more than $2,000,000 is proposed as the first step in the implementation of the 1956 Fire Plan adopted by the State Board of Forestry. A substantial increase is also proposed for the Division of Beaches and Parks, with its rapidly growing park system.

Fish and Game

The budget for the Department of Fish and Game is continued at approximately the present level. Your attention is directed, however, to the fact that the revenues under present license fee schedules will not continue to sustain the present expenditure program, and that some adjustments are necessary in order to keep the Fish and Game Preservation Fund solvent.

Water Resources

Appropriations aggregating $8,395,001, an increase of $1,717,552, are recommended for the newly created Department of Water Resources, including provision for the State Water Rights Board and the State Water Board. Our water development program has now reached the point where an effectively organized and staffed Department of Water Resources is an absolute necessity. The budget and the organization plan for the new department and its related boards have been developed after very thorough study, both by the Department of Water Resources and by the Department of Finance.

Other Items

The above constitute the items of major expenditures and greater increases. Other items which deserve special comment and your particular attention are:

Board of Equalization: Provision is made for intensified work by the Division of Assessment Standards for increased assistance to county assessors and for more complete property assessments sampling work. Increase in staff for the Sales Tax Division is also recommended, primarily because of the work brought on by the Uniform Sales Tax law relating to county and city sales taxes.

Department of Justice: Increased staff is proposed in the Attorney General's office and in the Division of Criminal Identification to meet greater work loads.

Industrial Relations: Much needed additions to the staffs of the Division of Industrial Safety and Division of Industrial Accidents are recommended in order to meet a serious backlog as well as an increase in current work loads.

Corrections: The Department of Corrections will require an increase of $1,773,499, approximately 6.7 percent over the current budget of $26,560,880, to carry on its program.

Youth Authority: The Youth Authority will require an increase of $1,403,030 for a total of $11,817,771. The principal purpose of this rather substantial augmentation is to activate new facilities which will be ready for occupancy during the 1957-58 Fiscal Year.

Motor Vehicles: The Department of Motor Vehicles will require a substantial increase in its budget, primarily to keep pace with heavy work load increases, but also to permit more effective driver license examinations and expanded driver-improvement activity, in order to deal with the increased number of drivers involved in accidents and the expanding law enforcement program.

Athletic Commission: The admissions-tax revenues from boxing and wrestling matches have fallen off so seriously that some adjustment will be necessary to keep this self-supporting activity solvent.

Salary Adjustments: The budget includes funds to carry out the recommendations of the State Personnel Board, whose report indicates quite clearly that a general increase in state salaries approximating 5 percent will be necessary in order for state pay levels to keep pace with those prevailing for comparable employment in private industry and other governmental jurisdictions. A sufficient amount is included for special salary adjustments. Provision is made for a similar increase for the University of California. I recommend, also, your consideration of the need for adjustments in the salaries of elective and appointive officials.

Capital Outlay

The 1957-58 Budget for Capital Outlay is the greatest in the State's history. Almost one-half billion dollars will be required for the following capital outlay programs:

State Buildings	$175,840,642 *
Beaches and Parks	15,297,978 †
Wildlife Conservation	2,111,941
District and County Fairs	2,764,189
State Highway Program	248,206,640
Water Development—Feather River Project	40,100,000
Flood Control Projects	5,410,000

* Including $50,000,000 from the State Construction Program Bonds.
† Includes funds for 1960 Winter Olympics.

State Building Program

We are continuing to budget for state buildings in accordance with the five-year program. It has been necessary to make revisions, however, to give effect to increased construction costs and to accelerate the timing of certain projects, primarily those relating to higher education, so as to meet increased enrollment trends. Here again higher education presents the heaviest need, with more than $90,000,000 recommended for State colleges and some $23,000,000 for the University of California.

Residence Halls

In addition to the classrooms and related campus facilities, the budget proposes an outlay of $17,181,800 for student residence halls for all of the State colleges and at least one such facility for the University of California. There has been a long delay in providing residence halls for students on State college campuses. A thorough study shows without question that our system of State colleges cannot function properly without providing living quarters for students who come from long distances. The only equitable alternative would be to provide a State college in every community. The study indicates that the rentals charged the students should be sufficient to amortize approximately half the cost of the residence halls. The proposal to use proceeds from State bond funds for this purpose is made with the definite understanding that student rentals will be such as to repay the State for at least one-half the bond service costs, and will be pooled for that purpose.

Other Projects

Other important features of the building program include $11,500,000 for the new medium security facility for the Department of Corrections, a badly needed State building in San Bernardino, more than $19,000,000 for State hospital structures for the Department of Mental Hygiene; and $1,082,895 for the State's share of constructing another group of armories for the Military Department.

Bond Funds

It is recommended that $50,000,000 of the newly authorized State Construction Program Bonds be issued to meet a portion of the cost of this program, the remainder to be financed from current revenues. This is in accordance with the plan of financing recommended when the $200,000,000 bond issue was proposed; that is, that the bond funds be allocated over the remaining four years of the five-year building program to supplement funds from current revenues. We plan to schedule bond sales in such manner as to minimize interest costs.

Beaches and Parks

The amounts shown for Beaches and Parks are in line with the five-year plan of acquisitions and improvements previously submitted and generally included in the approved 1956 Budget Act. The amounts shown for 1957-58 for acquisitions are the estimates of the outlays which will be accomplished in that year. Improvement projects are those of highest priority.

Included along with the Beach and Park program is the estimate of expenditures for facilities for the 1960 Winter Olympics.

1960 Winter Olympics

The Legislature has already appropriated $5,000,000 to finance the construction of facilities in Squaw Valley to accommodate the VIIIth Winter Olympic Games which are scheduled to be staged there in 1960.

Since the matter was last before the Legislature, the California Olympic Commission has concluded that instead of providing temporary facilities merely for the special use of the 1960 Winter Olympics, it would be advantageous to establish this area as a permanent winter-sports facility for the benefit of our citizens and winter sports athletes everywhere.

I concur in this recommendation, and I further recommend that in order to carry out this objective State-owned facilities in Squaw Valley be incorporated into the California State Park System, and that following the Winter Games in 1960 these facilities be operated under the jurisdiction of the State Division of Beaches and Parks, either directly or through concessionaires.

In order to finance the construction of permanent facilities and to incorporate them into the State Park System, it is estimated that an additional $2,500,000 will be necessary. It is my recommendation that this money be made available. This should be done as an urgency appropriation so as to avoid any delay in a very tight schedule. It is my firm belief, however, that much of the money already appropriated, and that which I hope will hereafter be appropriated for this purpose, will be returned to the State Treasury over a period of years through revenues derived from the use of these facilities, so that the cost to the State will thus be minimized.

I am confident that great honor will come to California as the result of our being hosts to the winter-sports athletes of the world, and that this opportunity to contribute to international good will will overshadow the direct economic benefits we shall derive from this effort.

Feather River Project

In the budget submitted a year ago I recommended funds for the initial phases of the Feather River Project as a definite commitment to go forward with the full project as rapidly as possible. I suggested that if sufficient progress were made by the time of your convening in January, an additional appropriation should be made as an urgency measure. Such progress has been made and there will be before you an urgency bill to appropriate $25,190,000 to construct those portions of the Feather River Highway and the Western Pacific relocations in the reservoir site which can be started immediately.

For further uninterrupted progress I am recommending in this budget for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year appropriations totaling $38,019,300 for the next phases of the project which you will find fully detailed at page 1349.

I propose that these appropriations be made from the State's share of the moneys derived from oil and gas production from the Long Beach tidelands. I further recommend that the entire amount now accumulated in the so-called Investment Fund from this source, together with the amounts to accrue to this fund in the 1957-58 Fiscal Year, approximately $164,000,000 in all (including the above recommended appropriations) be transferred to a special fund dedicated specifically to water development. There can be no more urgent or more appropriate use of these moneys.

Even this rather substantial sum is, of course, only a relatively small part of the outlay which must be made for the full accomplishment of our needed water development.

Flood Control

The heavier expenditure for this segment of flood control costs is accounted for largely by increased outlays for the State's share of the San Joaquin River Flood Control Projects. Under Local Assistance for Flood Control you will find a considerable reduction in the amounts needed for this particular year.

Other Capital Outlay Programs

The other programs for Capital Outlay listed above are projected at substantially the present year's level. It should be noted that in addition to the $248 million of State funds for highway construction and improvements, more than $134 million in federal funds will be available. The total program approved by the Highway Commission therefore amounts to almost $383 million.

Local Assistance

The State's obligation for financial assistance to counties, school districts, and other units of local government continues to make up the largest of the three main sections of the State's budget. The total of all local assistance for the 1957-58 fiscal year is estimated at $964,825,469, which is 49.5 percent of the State Budget and involves a total increase of $29,685,337 over the expenditures for the current year.

Subventions for Education

School Apportionments: The largest single expenditure item is State aid to the public school system, estimated to require apportionments aggregating $498,630,621 in 1957-58—an increase of $37,714,936.

Representatives of the public schools point out that there has been no per pupil increase in the amount of State support since 1953; that the entire burden of meeting higher units costs has fallen on the local property taxpayers; that most school districts have been required to exceed the normal maximum tax rates fixed by statute; and that many districts are encountering serious financial problems in maintaining proper educational standards. I have a very real sympathy with the plight of these districts. There can be no doubt that in many areas school enrollments are increasing at far greater rates than is the value of the taxable property in those areas. I am sure that a good case can be made for financial relief derived from a tax base which is broader than the property tax. You may be assured of the full cooperation of this administration in your consideration of this extremely important problem.

Child Care Centers

I am recommending and anticipating that you will extend the Child Care Center Program which under present legislation would expire June 30, 1957. Provision is contained in the budget for $4,604,048 to continue this now well-established program for the 1957-58 fiscal year.

Subventions for Social Welfare

The subventions for Social Welfare will require $150,099,569 in 1957-58. This includes the State's share of the Old Age Security, Aid to Needy Children, and Aid to the Blind Programs. The largest of these is the $106,345,350 required for Old Age Security.

The 1956 Federal Social Security Act amendments provide federal funds for a new program, Medical Care to Public Assistance Recipients, to begin July 1, 1957.

Federal money is to be provided separately from the existing sharing formulae as follows:

(1) ½ of costs up to an average of $6 per month for each adult recipient
(2) ½ of costs up to an average of $3 per month for each child recipient
(3) ½ of the administrative costs incurred by State and local agencies

Enabling legislation must be adopted at the 1957 session to make the federal funds available in California. The basic unmet need of these people is medical care. This federal legislation opens the way to make this highly desirable improvement in our programs for the aged, blind and needy children. Your favorable action on the necessary State legislation has my most hearty recommendation. You will observe that our summary statement of the General Fund includes a reserve of $14,000,000 which can be applied to meet the State's share of this badly needed addition to our social welfare program.

Subventions for Flood Control

As pointed out under Capital Outlay, there is a substantial reduction in 1957-58 requirements for subventions for flood control, which total $7,064,000, as compared with $16,485,575 for the current year. The State's share of meeting the Los Angeles County Flood Control District's requirements are at the more normal level of $2,859,000, as compared with the $11,695,075 allocation for 1956-57.

Other Subventions

Subventions for public health, roads and highways, and other purposes are generally projected substantially at current levels. Fortunately there is no necessity to repeat the $14,500,000 appropriation for storm and flood damage repair enacted at your last session.

I direct your attention to the proposed appropriation of $3,000,000 recommended on an urgency basis during the current fiscal year to meet the cost of the special poliomyelitis vaccination program.

State Financial Situation

I am pleased indeed to be able to submit to you another budget which can be financed within the existing revenue structure without increased tax rates or additional revenue measures. Our higher level of prosperity has made this possible, since our major tax sources are geared to business volume and income levels.

A few years ago it would have seemed incredible that our state tax system would be called upon to support an annual budget of almost two billion dollars. Even with our anticipated high revenue yields, we must recognize that our estimated outgo from the General Fund will exceed income for the year by $84,500,000 * and that we must draw upon the carry-over surplus to meet this current deficiency. The budget as proposed will leave intact the Revenue Deficiency Reserve Fund of $75,000,000 in addition to a modest unappropriated surplus in the General Fund.

If our economic situation continus at present trends and if there are no substantial additions to the State's expenditure program, there appears to be a good prospect of continuing for still another year beyond 1957-58 without the necessity for new revenue measures. A projection of General Fund income and outgo through the Fiscal Year 1957-58 as proposed by this budget and through the following year 1958-59, as shown in the following tabulation, indicates the narrow margin of approximately $25,000,000 by which revenues would fail to meet expenditure requirements after exhausting the carry-over surplus. New or additional taxes for the 1958-59 Fiscal Year could probably be avoided, either by drawing upon reserves or by making some adjustment in expenditures.

Estimated Financial Operations of the State General Fund
(Projected through 1958-59, in millions of dollars)

Outgo:	1956-57	1957-58	1958-59
State Operations	$343.7	$401.8	$452.3
Capital Outlay	86.0	112.5	51.3
Local Assistance	693.9	741.5	787.0
Total Outgo	$1,123.6	$1,255.8 *	$1,290.6
Income	1,088.2	1,171.3	1,240.0
Surplus (—Deficiency) of Current Revenues	—35.4	—84.5	—50.6
Prior Year Surplus	145.7	110.3	25.8
Year End Surplus	110.3	25.8	—25.2

* Includes $14,000,000 reserved for medical care for recipients of public assistance.

There are too many uncertainties to enable us to forecast with accuracy so far into the future. This projection is conservative and makes no provision for any substantial additions to the State's expenditure program. There are a great many forces tending to increase State expenditures at far greater rates than the revenues are likely to expand. A most careful and continuous scrutiny of our expenditure program is essential if excessive State tax burdens are to be avoided.

I welcome your careful review of this budget and I offer my full cooperation to aid you in its consideration.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

Appointed from the Assembly was the author of the bill, Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly of Shafter.

Representing the Senate was Senator Jess R. Dorsey of Bakersfield, who was subsequently replaced by Senator John Thompson of San Jose.

A letter dated February 14, 1956, from Mr. A. E. Snider, Chief of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, notified the membership of the committee of a meeting to be held in Room 415, State Capitol, Sacramento, at 10 a.m., March 12, 1956.

All members of the committee were present at the meeting March 12, 1956, Mr. Fred Links representing the Director of Finance.

An election of a chairman and vice chairman was the first order of business. Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly of Shafter, was named chairman; W. C. Woxberg, Secretary-Manager of the 35th District Agricultural Association, Merced, was elected vice chairman.

At this meeting there were questions and discussions on the procedure to be taken to classify fairs.

Mr. Snider stated that it was his opinion that the group was primarily a study committee. That his office had not had sufficient time to prepare statistics because the necessary personnel for doing the work was busy with fair budgets.

He stated that it would require approximately 30 to 60 days to compile the information requested by the committee.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on May 14th and 15th in Fresno, that city being nearest the center of the State.

On April 5, 1956, Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly addressed a letter to Mr. A. E. Snider, Chief of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, requesting information as to the purpose, intent and scope of the committee.

Herewith is a copy of the reply to Assemblyman Kelly's questions (copies were sent to each committee member):

Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly
Box 1166, Shafter, California

DEAR PAT: In your letter of April 5, you requested that I have prepared and forwarded to you and to the members of the Fairs Classification Committee information about the committee's activities, limitations, scope and possible recommendations. Members of the staff and I have been studying your request and have come to some conclusions after consulting with the legal adviser of the Department of Finance, and with the officials of the Future Farmers and 4-H organizations.

Since this is the first year of the committee's existence, I believe that the task it faces will be more difficult because of the newness of the project; there are many factors to consider, some more tangible than others, and there will doubtless be dissatisfaction in some quarters with whatever the committee decides.

However, it is my opinion that the committee should carry out the mandatory provision of Section 92.8 of the Agricultural Code and classify the fairs as soon as possible. It was the intent of the statute, I presume, to lay the foundation for eventual revision of the annual apportionment formula, but since no reference is made to this in the present statute, I do not feel that it should come up for any determination.

Your first question reads as follows: "Will it be necessary for each fair to select and appoint a delegate prior to October 15, 1956, and for you to call an election in each area in November of 1956 either to rename or elect new members of the Classification Committee?" The answer, according to the legal adviser, is "yes."

Your second question reads: "Is it the intent to make available $3,000 for the Classification Committee expenses and travel * * * ?" The answer is "yes"; $1,500 is set up for the 1955-56 fiscal year and $1,500 for the 1956-57 fiscal year for travel expenses of the committee members. Budget division approval must be obtained in order to spend the money for purposes other than travel expenses. The second $3,000 set up by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 1 is for expenditure by the two legislative representatives under procedures applying to Joint Interim Committees.

"To whom shall the committee make its report on the classification of fairs?" The statute is silent on this. The committee should determine to whom the report should be made, according to the legal adviser. (It could be made to the Governor, the Director of Finance, and the Legislature.)

"When shall such report be made?" The committee should decide this; the statute again is silent on this.

"What date is the expiration date of the committee?" The statute does not provide a termination date although it provides for annual appointment of new members. Members serve until their successors are appointed and qualified.

"How many meetings do you contemplate will be necessary to fully understand and evaluate the statistical material being prepared for the committee by your office?" Probably one later this year; it would be preferable, I believe, if the committee could classify the fairs at the May meeting and make any revisions or adjustments at the second meeting at the close of the fair season.

"In your opinion would it be necessary to establish three standards of premiums for each class of fair, such as Special Feature, Sectional and Regional?" We believe that two premium scale ranges would be sufficient to cover the intents and purposes of the three types of fairs as proposed.

Premiums are awarded primarily to assist in defraying the extra expense to the exhibitor at the fair. Such items as transportation, loss possibilities, labor, attendants and length of the fair increase the cost of exhibiting. However, the size and intrinsic value of the animals or articles being exhibited will have an influence on the amount of the premiums to be offered.

The two premium scales we propose would be as follows:

Range 1—Premium awards in amounts the same as now allowed in the Master Premium List would be provided for all Sectional fairs and those classes in the offerings of Special Feature fairs not covered in Range 2.

Range 2—Premium awards in amounts in excess of Range 1 maximums but not in excess of those allowed by the State Fair (and/or the Grand National Livestock Exposition for livestock) would be provided for all regional fairs and those classes coming under the specific feature product or products at Special Feature Fairs.

"Have you discussed, and if not, will you learn the attitude of each breed association in beef, dairy, sheep, goats, and swine of the possibility of restricting exhibitors to certain fairs, such as Sectional fairs and/or their attitude toward open classes at Regional fairs?" Information has been requested from these associations.

"Has your office interviewed and ascertained the views of 4-H leaders, the Bureau of Agricultural Education, and the Future Farmers of America relating to sectional fairs and regional fairs?" Mr. Byron J. McMahon, Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Education, and Mr. A. D. Aulenbacher, 4-H Club Specialist of the University of California, have referred us to the first paragraph on page 19 of the Assembly Interim Committee Report, Volume 17, No. 5, which reads as follows:

> "It leads also to the desirability of a limit to the number of fairs in which juniors should participate. In general, it has been recognized that there is much good to be derived from participation in the junior's own district or county fair; in the State Fair for those in Central and Northern California; or the Los Angeles County Fair for those in the south; and in one of the two major junior livestock shows—the Cow Palace or the Great Western. These three events appear, in general, to the leaders of the junior groups, to be adequate—there is no present formula or legislation which can actually limit juniors to such a pattern."

"If you have learned of their desires, is it possible that if regional fairs were created the 4-H and F. F. A. in regions not now exhibiting at regional fairs may expect to do so, thus increasing the exhibit load for regional fairs?" It should be expected that fairs designated as "regional" will attract a greater participation by F. F. A. and 4-H exhibitors if participation is promoted within the "three fair" policy presently advocated by F. F. A. and 4-H leaders. Nearly all fairs now limit the area from which entries are accepted in the Junior Department.

Extension of the limit to include an entire region of the State will open these fairs to an exhibitor potential not heretofore available.

Trusting this information will be helpful (if there's anything else we can provide, please call on us), I am,

Sincerely,
(Signed)

Fairs and Expositions Division

The committee met in Fresno May 14th and 15th, at which time Assemblyman Kelly resigned as chairman, as it was the opinion of the Legislative Council that he could not serve as chairman of the committee.

W. C. Woxberg was elected chairman; Roy Welch was named vice chairman.

Folders, containing statistical data, were distributed to members of the committee by a representative of the Division of Fairs and Expositions. Information included the following:

Exhibit A—Population of agricultural districts as of 7-1-55.
Exhibit B—Ratio of reported admission to grounds to the population of the agricultural district or county.
Exhibit C—Net operating expense—adjusted, 1955 fairs.
Exhibit D—Operating balances, 1955 fairs.
Exhibit E—Operating revenues.
Exhibit F—Operating expenditures.
Exhibit G—Maintenance and temporary structures, 1955 fairs.
Exhibit H—Revenue—related to attendance expenditures to attract attendance.
Exhibit I—Exhibit entries.

Mr. Sloan, of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, said he had more figures but did not have time to have them typed up; these figures included the period 1949 to 1955. Mr. Snider asked if the committee would like to have these figures. The Chairman stated they should be sent to each member of the committee. To date this has not been done.

Each segment of the statistical information was carefully scrutinized by the committee. Most of the first day was spent in analyzing this information and discussing its relative value to the fair industry.

(1) It was agreed, that as a whole, it is impossible to determine with any degree of accuracy, the population of the area as served by the fair.
(2) Reported admission to grounds is not a reliable figure, as there are 13 fairs that do not charge an admission; there were some fairs obviously out of line in one direction or the other.
(3) Exhibit C—Net operating expenses.
Exhibit D—Operating balance.
Exhibit E—Operating revenues.
Exhibit F—Operating expenditures.
Exhibit G—Maintenance and temporary structures.
Exhibit H—Revenue related to attendance—expenditures to attract attendance, and Exhibit I—Exhibit entries.

Each of the above should be a factor in classifying fairs, however, the amount of points or percentage of value of the individual items was, and is difficult to determine.

It was agreed that statistics of one single year would not be a fair and equitable basis for classifying fairs. Unusual conditions might prevail in a certain district, such as extremely hot or cold weather, rain or windstorm, which reduces attendance, requires extra expense, and has the effect of decreasing revenue to the fair.

It was decided to tentatively define fairs as follows:

Regional. A large fair, geographically situated whereby it attracts a large number of exhibitors. It is a presently established fair of not less than 100,000 paid admissions, with a total outside gate of $50,000 or more.

Special Feature. A fair that pays more than 50 percent of its premium money as a special feature for agriculture, livestock or industry.

Sectional. Local in nature and is limited to the area served by the fair.

It was decided that the information for classifying fairs be based on the 1953-54-55 audit reports or other official records as may be available.

Representatives of the Division of Fairs and Expositions stated they did not have the personnel nor the time to devote to obtaining all the information requested by the committee. A subcommittee was appointed to work out a method of obtaining the required information. Members of the committee were: A. E. Snider, Chief of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, Roy Welch and W. C. Woxberg.

The subcommittee met twice prior to September 13, 1956.

A meeting of the Classification Committee held September 13, 1956, in Sacramento, California.

Mr. T. H. Mugford represented the Department of Finance.

At this meeting the Fairs Classification Committee, after careful consideration of all factors included in the legislation establishing the committee, set up a grouping of all district and county fairs, into—Regional, Special Feature and Sectional.

The committee designated four geographical areas of the State as regions; one fair in each of these areas to be known as a regional fair, such designation being based on size, efficiency and scope of operations and potential growth.

The four areas:

1. Northern region
2. San Francisco and central coast region
3. San Joaquin region
4. Southern region

At this time it was the consensus of the committee that no fair in the northern region presently qualified for the standards established by the group.

Classified as regional fairs are:

San Francisco and Central Coast Region, Santa Clara County Fair, San Jose.
San Joaquin Region, Fresno District Fair, Fresno.
Southern Region, So. California Exposition, Del Mar.

1. Oakland Flower Show, 1st District.
2. Santa Barbara Horse Show, 19th District.
3. Great Western Livestock Show, 48th District.
4. San Mateo County Fair, San Mateo.
5. San Francisco Flower Show, San Francisco.
6. Lodi Grape Festival, Lodi.
7. Merced County Spring Fair and Livestock Show, Los Banos.
8. San Benito County Saddle Horse Show, Hollister.
9. Lassen County Fair, Susanville.
10. Marin Art and Garden Show, Ross.

Sectional fairs: The remaining 60 fairs.

The committee wishes to point out that there is a wide variance in the size and scope of the fairs within each of the three classes, more particularly however in the Special Feature and Sectional Classes.

The committee recommends that further study be given before any breakdown of the three groups be undertaken. There are borderline cases in all three classes.

The committee recommends that sectional fairs be broken down into at least three groups. It is suggested that there be approximately 15 of the larger fairs in the first group; 20 medium size fairs in group 2, and 25 smaller fairs in group 3. Some of the committeemen believe that there should also be a fourth group established.

Special Feature Fairs—Within the scope of special feature fairs, there are large and small livestock shows, flower shows and horse shows.

Time has not permitted the committee to give the required study of further breakdown of this class.

It is recommended that legislation be introduced to broaden the power and scope of the Classification Committee.

The committee has classified fairs to the extent called for in the bill, Assembly Bill No. 2886, with the understanding that the method of, and the actual classification of all fairs, shall apply only to the year 1956.

The committee recommends that the budget for the year July 1, 1957, to June 30, 1958, contain the amount of $5,000 to be used for research in order that a more comprehensive study be made.

Respectfully submitted,

FAIRS CLASSIFICATION COMMITTEE

Chief Assistant Secretary Lachlan M. Richards at the Desk

COMMUNICATIONS

CALIFORNIA STATE PERSONNEL BOARD, December 1, 1956

The Honorable Goodwin J. Knight, the Governor of California, and Members of the Senate and the Assembly of the State of California

GENTLEMEN: The State Personnel Board, in accordance with Government Code Section 18712, submits this report on matters relating to civil service personnel under the jurisdiction of the board.

The Legislature has delegated to the Personnel Board the authority to set and adjust salary ranges for civil service and state college employees. In setting salaries, the Personnel Board is directed to: (a) consider the salaries for comparable service in private employment and other governmental agencies; (b) consider proper internal salary relationships between state classes; and (c) keep expenditures for salary adjustments within the appropriation limits provided by the Legislature.

The following summarizes the present salary situation:

1. The July 1, 1956, adjustments, which provided salary increases of 5 percent for 43 percent of employees and salary increases of 10 percent for 57 percent of the employees, brought state salaries substantially in line with those prevailing in industry in March, 1956.
2. Surveys of private industry by the Personnel Board and other agencies show that from March, 1956, to October, 1956, wage and salary levels for jobs comparable to those in state service increased about 3.5 percent during this half-year period.
3. Salaries and wages are continuing to rise in industry. The increases granted during 1956 are larger than those granted during 1955. The widespread use of guaranteed future wage increases and the effect of the recent advance in the Consumer Price Index may continue this upward trend of wages.
4. These factors indicate that a general 5 percent salary increase probably will be warranted for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year. Increases may not be justified for every class but they may be justified for nearly every class.
5. For some classes, an adjustment of 5 percent will not be sufficient to keep state salaries in line with those paid in private industry and in other governmental agencies. A special salary adjustment fund will be required to meet this situation.

Based on these considerations, the following recommendations for salary increase funds in the 1957-58 Fiscal Year are submitted:

1. That a fund approximately 5 percent of salaries and wages be provided to keep the salaries of state employees generally in line with prevailing rates. The estimated total annual cost is:

General Fund	$10,200,000
Special funds	8,650,000
Total	$18,850,000

2. That a fund for special salary adjustments be provided for use from time to time as needed during the fiscal year in order to recognize changes in internal relationship and extreme changes in prevailing rates. The Personnel Board recommends an appropriation of $2,500,000 from the General Fund and a commensurate amount from special funds.

The recommended amounts for salary increases are sufficient only for adjustments of salaries for civil service employees and for employees of state colleges. They do not include funds for employees of the University of California and other exempt employees.

In addition to information on salaries, this report covers some of the more important current problems and aspects of personnel management in state service. These discussions may be summarized as follows:

1. The acute manpower shortage, the increased personnel needs of expanding state agencies, and the aggressive recruitment practices by industrial employers and local government agencies, indicate the necessity for an intensified recruitment program in the state service.
2. In private industry two different wage scales exist in the trades classes, one for casual and intermittent labor, the other for permanent year-round employment. This distinction was recognized but was not uniformly applied to state trades classes until June 1, 1956, when action was taken to achieve conformity to prevailing practice. This action was taken without reducing the take-home pay of any employee. All state employees in the trades classes hired on a casual basis receive the prevailing hourly rates paid for casual work by private industry. Permanent year-round employees in these classes are paid salaries corresponding to prevailing industry rates for permanent employment and receive the same employee benefits as other permanent state employees.
3. The salaries of exempt officials which are set by the Legislature are not a separate problem, but have a direct relationship to the salaries of civil service employees. This is true because proper salary differentials should be maintained between department heads and their subordinates. The salaries paid California state executives have not kept pace with those paid in the larger local government agencies in California. Executive salaries in industry are substantially higher than those of department heads in state service. A review of state executive salaries is needed if the State is to continue to bring persons of high quality and ability into state service.
4. Government, like business, has found it must train workers, and develop competent supervisors and managers. The State Personnel Board and state agencies jointly have initiated various kinds of training programs to improve competence and efficiency.

5. Improvements in the State's safety record have resulted from the encouragement of greater safety consciousness on the part of both management and employees. Accident frequency rates in California state service nevertheless still remain high.
6. The development of a balanced health and welfare insurance program for all state employees, with the State sharing the cost, is needed to keep state employee benefits in line with those in industry.
7. The responsibility for initiating disciplinary action rests with the operating department. During the 1955-56 Fiscal Year, the state agencies took 296 formal disciplinary actions. In only five cases did the Personnel Board find it necessary to modify or reverse the action of the agency.

Respectfully submitted,

CALIFORNIA STATE PERSONNEL BOARD
WILMER W. MORSE, President
FORD A. CHATTERS, Vice President
GLENN R. BAKER, Member
ROBERT D. GRAY, Member

WHEREAS, These areas are inaccessible after a snowfall and there is, at present, no program of snow removal; and

WHEREAS, There can be no commercial development of the area until a clear road is maintained in the wintertime; and

WHEREAS, Commercial development of the areas is necessary and would measurably benefit the surrounding counties which are, to a substantial degree, dependent upon the recreation business for their livelihood; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Department of Public Works is requested to undertake a program of snow removal on the Ebbetts Pass Highway, and is urged to keep the said highway open and accessible during the winter months to the vicinity of Alpine Lake; and be it further

By Senators Sutton, Erhart, Breed, Arnold, and Dilworth:

Senate Resolution No. 28

Relative to a study of the organization and administration of the Division of Beaches and Parks and the State Park System

WHEREAS, The California State Park System, from simple beginnings, has grown into a position of great importance within the State Government which importance is reflected in the millions of visitors who annually enjoy the natural grandeur and recreational benefits of the park system; and

WHEREAS, The investment of public money in the park system is now in the vicinity of fifty million dollars ($50,000,000) and is increasing with the result that the State Park Commission has become one of the largest owners of state property; and

WHEREAS, The management and administrative work load of the Division of Beaches and Parks should be analyzed to determine if improvements in organization and procedures should not be made in the light of its heavier responsibilities and better to cope with the recreational needs of the State's ever increasing population; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Director of the Department of Natural Resources and the Chief of the Division of Beaches and Parks, in consultation and cooperation with the Department of Finance and the Legislative Auditor, be directed to study jointly, possible needs for improvements in organization and procedures in the Division of Beaches and Parks and to give attention to the following matters, including but not limited to:

1. A clearer definition of the relationships between the Division of Beaches and Parks, the Department of Natural Resources, and the State Park Commission.

2. Reorganization and enlargement of the division headquarters staff and improved liaison with the operating districts of the park system.

3. Greater decentralization of responsibility to the operating district level with respect to:

a. A possible increase in the number of such districts.

b. District responsibility with respect to equipment operation, construction activity, maintenance work, and administrative procedures.

4. The possible establishment of a priority pattern for park acquisition and development, at the district rather than at the state level, with available funds more adequately divided between acquisition and development projects within each district.

5. The development of district budgets for capital outlay and support items as a part of the consolidated total budget of Division of Beaches and Parks; and be it further

Resolved, That the Director of Natural Resources and the Chief of the Division of Beaches and Parks be directed to report their findings and recommendations to the Legislature not later than the tenth legislative day of the 1959 Regular Session; and be it further

WHEREAS, The location of these sites is subject to some uncertainties; and

WHEREAS, Many of the sites are being destroyed by the process of residential, commercial, and industrial development and may be lost for the purpose of preservation; and

WHEREAS, There is a public need for investigation, location, evaluation, and acquisition of suitable and representative Indian sites to be preserved in the public interest; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the State Park Commission is directed to endeavor to establish appropriate Indian monuments on the location of old Indian village sites, burial grounds, and living areas in sufficient number and diversity to call attention to the contribution of Indian culture to the history of this State; and be it further

Resolved, That the State Park Commission is directed to undertake the investigation necessary to enable the commission to recommend the establishment of an Indian state park or parks; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to prepare and transmit copies of this resolution to the State Park Commission.

By Senators Abshire, McCarthy, and Montgomery:

Senate Resolution No. 30

Relative to the enforcement of provisions of the Vehicle Code

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 458 of the Statutes of 1953, the Legislature added Section 531.1 to the Vehicle Code; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 421 of the Statutes of 1953, the Legislature added Section 525.3 to said code, and said code was further amended by Chapter 128 of the Statutes of 1955; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 810 of the Statutes of 1955, the Legislature amended Section 525.1 of said code; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 809 of the Statutes of 1955, the Legislature added Section 618.5 to said code; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature was prompted to enact such laws and amendments thereto for the safety of the public by reason of dangerous situations upon the highways, caused by trucks and tractor-trailers "tailgating" on two-lane highways and driving in center lanes at speeds slower than the normal flow of traffic, caused by all motor vehicles driving in center lanes at speeds slower than the normal flow of traffic, and caused by the use of parking lights in lieu of head lamps in conditions of darkness, semidarkness, and lowered visibility conditions; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that by requiring trucks and vehicles pulling trailers to remain a distance of at least 500 feet to the rear of a preceding truck or vehicle pulling a trailer it would be possible for other users of the highways to pass in relative safety; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that requiring slow-moving trucks and tractor-trailers to remain in the right-hand lane for traffic on multiple-lane highways would prevent traffic moving at a higher rate of speed from having to make dangerous right-hand passes; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that the amendment to Section 525.1 would prevent all slow-moving vehicles from driving in center lanes on multiple-lane highways to permit safe passing by vehicles at a normal rate of speed; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that the prohibiting of use of parking lights in lieu of headlights would have required motorists to use the proper illumination under adverse visibility conditions; and

WHEREAS, It has come to the attention of the Legislature that the enactment and amendment of Sections 525.1, 525.3, 531.1, and 618.5 of the Vehicle Code has not prevented "tailgating," has not kept the slower-moving vehicles in the right-hand lane of traffic, and has not prevented the use of parking lights in lieu of headlights, and the dangerous situations still exist to a large extent upon the highways in the State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Commissioner of Highway Patrol of the State of California report to the Senate by April 15, 1957, as to the extent of enforcement of said Sections 525.1, 525.3, 531.1, and 618.5 of the Vehicle Code; the number of citations issued during the past calendar year for violations of said section; the particular difficulties in enforcement of such sections, if any; and his recommendations for further legislation, if any is needed, to prevent the dangerous situations caused on highways by reason of violation of these sections of the law; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate transmit copies of this resolution to the Commissioner of the Highway Patrol.

Resolution read, and referred to Committee on Rules.

Proposed Constitutional Amendment as Adopted by the Subcommittee

Assembly Constitutional Amendment No.____. A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California, an amendment to the Constitution of the State by adding Section 5 to Article XIV thereof, relating to water.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate Concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California, at its 1957 Regular Session, commencing on the seventh day of January, 1957, two-thirds of the members elected to each of the two houses voting in favor thereof, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that the Constitution of the State be amended by adding Section 5 to Article XIV thereof, to read:

SEC. 5. It is hereby declared that because of the conditions prevailing in the State, it is necessary for the State to assume a continuing responsibility for the proper and timely development of the water resources of the State in coordination and cooperation with private enterprise, local public agencies and the Federal Government; and to this end, the State may take any appropriate action, including but not limited to the construction, operation, maintenance and change of state water projects, and provision for financial assistance to public water projects.

It is further declared that hereafter in the development of the water resources of the State by any entity, no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development, of any quantity of water needed to satisfy the reasonable ultimate requirements of such area, and that only water originating therein which is in excess of such quantity may be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas of the State.

In the authorization of any state water project the Legislature shall make firm allocations of the dependable yield of water made available by the project, subject to ratable apportionment in times of water shortage.

Any such allocation may be altered by the Legislature to permit the substitution of an equivalent water supply from elsewhere.

Contracts with the State for the delivery of water from a state project shall provide for firm and permanent delivery of the quantities of water allocated pursuant to this section; provided, however, the State may enter into short-term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but no such short-term contract shall confer a right to the permanent use of such water.

No contract with the State for the sale or delivery of water or power made available by any state project shall be impaired by act of the Legislature, and the State may sue and be sued with respect to any such contract.

This section is not intended to, and shall not affect any vested water rights.

This section shall be self-executing, and the Legislature may also enact laws in furtherance of the policies contained in this section.

Proposed "Watershed of Origin" Constitutional Amendment
(New Section 5 for Article XIV)

SEC. 5. (a) Whenever the Legislature shall authorize the acquisition or construction by the State of any project which will export water from one or more watersheds wherein such water originates for use elsewhere in the State the Legislature, by bill, shall also:

(1) Determine the boundaries of each watershed in which such water originates;

(2) Determine the quantity of water originating in such watershed which ultimately will be reasonably required for beneficial use therein;

(3) Permanently reserve such quantity of such water for beneficial use in such watershed and, if the Legislature shall so determine, allocate portions of such quantity to specified areas within such watershed;

(4) Determine the amount of water originating in such watershed which is not so reserved and which will be made available by the project for export from such watershed;

(5) Include in such project, for the benefit of each portion of such watershed in which a major water storage reservoir of the project is to be located and in which water to be impounded in such reservoir originates, such upstream water storage reservoirs and other facilities (except distribution systems) as the Legislature shall determine to be necessary and practical to make reserved water originating in such portion of such watershed available for beneficial use therein, and provide for the financing and construction by the State of each such upstream reservoir and other facility when it is needed and can be constructed without rendering the project as a whole economically infeasible; and

(6) Provide such means as the Legislature deems appropriate to afford reasonable assurance that, if the quantity of water so reserved for beneficial use in the watershed in which it originates should at any time become inadequate to meet all those reasonable needs for beneficial use of water in such watershed which could be met by practical and economically feasible methods of development of water originating therein, such needs can and will promptly be supplied by the State at no greater cost to the users in such watershed than would be involved if there were no exportation of water from such watershed by any State or other development commenced on or after the effective date of the bill making such reservation.

(b) Each such reservation of water for beneficial use in a watershed shall be permanently binding upon the State and upon all persons. The operation of each state project which will export water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates for use elsewhere in the State shall be subject to the determinations and reservations made with respect to such project, and all rights of water or to the use of water thereafter acquired shall be subject to such determinations and reservation.

(c) Before taking any such action pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section the Legislature shall cause public hearings to be held and reports and recommendations to be made upon the subject of such action by such legislative committees or state agencies or both as the Legislature may deem appropriate, and the Legislature shall receive and consider such reports and recommendations.

(d) No action pursuant to this section shall impair or affect any riparian, appropriative, contractual, adjudicated or other existing or vested right to water or to the use of water.

(e) Upon completing the action required by paragraph (a) of this section as to any project, the Legislature may authorize the execution on behalf of the State of binding contracts for the sale or delivery of water made available by such project for beneficial use. Each contract may provide: (1) For the delivery of such water by the State to the contracting party commencing at such time and continuing permanently or for such stated term as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe; (2) For such method of determining the price of water to be delivered and the annual payments to be made by the contracting party, both prior to and after the commencement of delivery, as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe; (3) For the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply without increase in the contract price; and (4) For such other terms and provisions as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe. Water so contracted to be delivered by the State to the contracting party shall be reserved to such contracting party and no right to such water inconsistent with the right thereto of such contracting party shall be acquired by any other person by appropriation or contract or otherwise. The Legislature may also authorize the execution on behalf of the State of similar contracts for the sale or delivery of electrical energy made available by such project. The State may be sued in the Superior Court of the State in and for the county within which the principal office of the contracting party is located or in any other state court of competent jurisdiction to declare or enforce any right acquired under any such contract.

(f) All contracts between the State and any public agency for the sale or delivery of water made available by any state project shall be subject to the provisions of Section 16 of Article I of this Constitution. No right of any person to water, or to the delivery or use of water, or to water service, arising by contract or by appropriation or otherwise, shall be impaired by reason of dissolution or any change in the status, form or powers of any public agency. To prevent or redress any such impairment, the State may be sued in any state court of competent jurisdiction.

(g) Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit the establishment, maintenance or amendment by the Legislature of a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water for beneficial use in a manner not inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

(h) For the purposes of this section the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Project" means any physical structure or device, and any combination or grouping of any number thereof, for the development, conservation or utilization of water resources;

(2) "Public Agency" means any city, county, city and county, district, other public or municipal corporation, or political subdivision, of this State, and any department or agency of any thereof;

(3) "Person" means any person, firm, association, corporation, public agency, this State, any other state and any private or public or municipal corporation or political subdivision thereof, the United States of America, and any department or agency of any thereof.

(i) No funds shall be expended for the acquisition or construction of any major works of a State project authorized prior to the effective date of this Section 5 for the purpose of exporting water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates for use elsewhere in the State unless and until such project shall have been reauthorized by the Legislature pursuant to the provisions of this section.

Appendix "A"

Proposed Amendment to Article XIV of the California Constitution to Be Enacted as a Statute Pending Its Adoption by the Electorate

California Constitutional Amendment to Article XIV

(The substance of the provisions which follow is also suitable for enactment by the Legislature in the form of statutes.)

SEC. 5. (a) It is recognized that the conditions which now prevail in this State require that the State itself assume a continuing responsibility for assuring the timely and economical development of additional water resources. In discharging this responsibility, the policy of the State shall be:

First, to encourage and assist development of water resources by private enterprise and public agencies of the State, as herein defined, to the greatest extent practicable;

Secondly, to obtain aid and assistance from the Federal Government when and as it may appear desirable and advantageous to do so; and

Thirdly, for the State to finance, to construct and to operate water development facilities and projects which are in conformity with a general or coordinated plan for the development of the water resources of the State;

all to the end that the maximum, most efficient and most economical use may be made of the water resources of the State.

(b) It shall be the policy of the State in the development of its water resources to insure that no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development by any person, of any quantity of water needed to reasonably satisfy the ultimate future requirements of such area, to the extent that water originates therein, and that the waters in excess of such requirements shall be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas of the State which need imported supplies of water.

SEC. 6. (a). The agency of state government which is authorized by the Legislature to investigate the water resources of the State and to formulate plans for their development shall determine the boundaries and designate as an "area of origin" each area of the State within which water not subject to vested rights originates in quantities found by such agency to be in excess of the ultimate future requirements of such area and to be a practicable source of water for use in other parts of the State which are in need of additional water supplies. Such determinations and designations shall be made at such times and in such sequence and priority as the Legislature may direct. Each determination and designation so made shall be submitted to the next Regular or Budget Session of the Legislature and, unless vetoed by two-thirds vote of the members of either house, shall become effective upon the adjournment of such session.

(b) The agency of state government which is authorized by the Legislature to issue, deny or modify permits and licenses to appropriate water shall reserve for use within each such area of origin, from the waters originating therein the quantities of water reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein. Each such reservation shall be in terms of finite quantities of water and specific sources thereof, and shall be predicated upon findings to be made by such agency as to the quantity of water originating in such area of origin and the quantity of water which will be reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein. No reservation shall impair any riparian, appropriative, adjudicated or other vested right to water or to the use of water or any application to appropriate water filed by any person as defined herein other than the State of California or the United States of America or any department or agency thereof prior to the date on which this amendment is approved by the Legislature for submission to the electorate. Each reservation shall be binding upon all persons and all rights to water or to the use of water thereafter acquired shall be subject to such reservation.

(1) All such findings and reservations shall be made after investigation and consideration of relevant factors and after giving all interested persons reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard in conformity with such procedure as the Legislature may prescribe.

(2) All such findings and reservations shall be subject to judicial review in any manner prescribed by the Legislature; provided, however, that the reviewing tribunal shall exercise an independent judgment on the law and on the facts as disclosed by the record certified to it, and the findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the administrative agency shall not be controlling upon its judgment.

(3) Subject to all rights to water or to the use of water which from time to time may arise out of contract with the State, as hereinafter provided, or which otherwise may become vested, the agency may re-examine and revise any reservation made pursuant hereto at any time it appears on the petition of any interested person that it is no longer reasonable. Such re-examination and revision shall be made in the manner provided for the making of original reservations and shall have like effect. If, upon such re-examination and revision, the said agency finds that the quantity of water then reserved is insufficient for the ultimate future beneficial uses within such area of origin as a result of water originating therein being permanently committeed to use in other parts of the State, the substitution of other water for that which is so permanently committed to such use, to the extent necessary to comply with the revised reservation, shall be a first priority upon the awarding of contracts for the delivery of water from the next facility or project to be constructed by the State which is physically capable of being so substituted, and such substitution shall be made at no greater cost to the users within such area of origin than would be involved if there were no exportation of water from such area of origin by any state or other project commenced on or after the date of the original reservation.

SEC. 7. (a) The Water Development Fund is created as a special fund in the State Treasury, the money, securities and increment of which shall be held in trust by the State Treasurer for expenditure as provided in this section.

(b) There shall be deposited in the Water Development Fund:

(1) All revenue received by the State from the extraction of oil and gas from tide and submerged lands and state public lands in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000) in each fiscal year, over and above the cost of administration of all such lands and any refunds authorized by law; provided, however, that the Legislature, by a vote of three fourths of the members elected to each house, may appropriate the revenue so received during any fiscal year in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000), or any part thereof, and authorize its expenditure for such other and different purposes as the Legislature may prescribe.

(2) All revenues received by the State from the sale or furnishing of water, water power, and electrical energy, over and above the cost of operation and maintenance thereby incurred by the State; and

(3) Any other funds made available solely for the purpose of the Water Development Fund by appropriation, gift, grant, or by any other means.

(c) Any money in the Water Development Fund may be:

(1) Appropriated, or expended as provided in this section, for construction by the State, either alone or in conjunction with any person, of facilities authorized by the Legislature for the development, conservation and use of water resources, or for the service of any indebtedness incurred in such construction which is authorized by law; or

(2) Loaned, on such terms as may be prescribed by the Legislature including the waiver of any interest charges, for the purpose of construction of such facilities by any public agency of the State;

Provided, however, that no such expenditure or loan shall be made for construction of any facility which is in substantial conflict with any general or coordinated plan for the development, conservation and utilization of the water resources of the State which may be approved by the Legislature.

(d) Whenever it is proposed that the State construct or finance any water storage reservoir which will develop water for use outside the watershed in which it originates and in which such water storage reservoir is located, the authority to construct or finance such water storage reservoir shall be contingent upon the further authorization of such other and additional water storage reservoirs and other facilities, except distribution systems, within such watershed as may then be determined by the Legislature to be necessary to provide sufficient water to reasonably satisfy the ultimate future requirements for the beneficial use of water within that part of the watershed which lies upstream from the proposed water storage reservoir; provided, however, that such ultimate future upstream requirements can be met in an economically feasible and practical manner; and provided, further, that any test of economic feasibility shall be applied to all the facilities so authorized within the watershed as a whole and shall not be applied to any single facility therein without regard to other facilities whose authorization is required by this paragraph.

(e) Upon the authorization by the Legislature of the construction or financing by the State of facilities in accordance with this paragraph, the development thereof may proceed in any priority or manner directed by the Legislature; provided, however, that at any time an immediately foreseeable need shall arise for additional water within any watershed of the State from which water is then being exported for use elsewhere which can feasibly and reasonably be supplied by any of the facilities authorized by the Legislature pursuant to this section, the Governor shall certify such fact, and thereafter a continuing first priority in the use of moneys in the Water Development Fund not already otherwise committed at the beginning of each fiscal year shall be given to the construction at a reasonable rate of progress of the authorized facility or facilities required to fulfill the needs so certified, and such moneys shall be deemed to be appropriated for such purpose.

(f) At the time of authorizing the construction by the State of any water storage reservoir located within an area of origin, the Legislature shall determine the maximum extent to which water reserved for the ultimate future requirements of such area of origin pursuant to Section 6 hereof can feasibly be made available for delivery from such reservoir, and all contracts for the use of water from such reservoir shall conform to such determination.

(g) In authorizing either the construction or financing of any facility or project by the State the Legislature shall provide for payments out of revenues to be made in lieu of taxes to any city, county, or city and county within whose jurisdiction such facility or project, or any part thereof, may be located; provided, however, that such payments shall be based solely upon the value of the real property occupied by such facility or project at the time title thereto is acquired by the State or by any public agency which constructs such facility or project in whole or in part with state funds.

SEC. 8. (a) Whenever a facility or project has been authorized for construction by the State and ten percent (10%) of the estimated cost of construction or fifty million dollars ($50,000,000), whichever is the lesser sum, has been made available, by appropriation or otherwise, the Legislature may authorize the execution on behalf of the State of contracts, including option contracts to be exercised in not to exceed twenty (20) years which are renewable only with the consent of the Legislature, for the sale or delivery of water to be made available by such facility or project. The Legislature may specify the extent to which execution of such contracts may be required before actual construction of such facility or project is commenced.

(b) When so authorized, each such contract may provide:

(1) For the delivery of water by the State for such purposes and commencing at such time and continuing permanently or for such stated term as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(2) For such method of determining the price of water to be delivered and determining the annual payments which may be required of the contracting party both prior to and after the commencement of delivery, as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(3) For such other terms and provisions as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe.

(c) Each such contract shall provide for the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply without increase in the contract price. Each contract for a term of less duration than permanent service shall expressly provide that no permanent right to the water involved shall become vested in or otherwise acquired by the contracting party. The execution of any contract providing for the delivery of water to commence in the future shall not prevent the water from being temporarily put to other beneficial use in the meantime under term contracts authorized by the Legislature; provided, however, that the right of the party contracting for future delivery to the quantity and quality of water on the date specified for the initial delivery thereof shall remain unimpaired by any such temporary use.

(d) The provisions of this section shall be applicable to all contracts for the sale or delivery of hydroelectric energy produced by any facility or project constructed by the State.

(e) In awarding such contracts, including option contracts, for the sale or delivery of water from any water storage reservoir constructed by the State, first priority shall be given contracts for water reasonably required for ultimate future use within the watershed in which such water originates and in which such water storage reservoir is located.

(f) All contracts between the State and any public agency for the sale or delivery of water made available by any state facility or project shall be subject to the provisions of Article I, Section 16, of this Constitution. No right of any person to water, or to the delivery or use of water, or to water service, arising by contract or by appropriation or otherwise, shall be impaired by reason of dissolution or any change in the status, form or powers of any public agency.

SEC. 9. (a) For the purposes of this amendment, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Facility" means any single physical structure or device used in the development, conservation or utilization of water resources;

(2) "Project" means any combination or grouping of any number of such facilities;

(3) The term "watershed" when applied to the basin of the Sacramento River shall be applicable to the watershed of any tributary stream or river which flows into the Sacramento River, but shall not be applied to the main channel of the Sacramento River except in connection with the consideration of any storage dam or reservoir which may hereafter be constructed in whole or in part in the bed of such main channel. The term shall not be applied to the combined deltas of the Sacramento River and the San Joaquin River.

(4) "Public agency" means any city, county, city and county, district, other public or municipal corporation, or political subdivision of this State, or any department or agency of any thereof;

(5) "Person" means any person, firm, association, corporation, public agency, this State, any other State, the United States of America, and any department or agency of any thereof.

(b) Nothing contained in this amendment shall be construed to prohibit the establishment, maintenance, or amendment by the Legislature of a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water for beneficial use not inconsistent with the provisions of this amendment.

(c) The provisions of this amendment shall be self-executing, but the Legislature may enact laws to carry out the provisions hereof.

SEC. 10. No funds shall be expended for the acquisition or construction of any major works of a State project authorized prior to the effective date of this amendment for the purpose of exporting water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates for use elsewhere in the State unless and until such project shall have been reauthorized by the Legislature pursuant to the provisions of this amendment.

County of Origin Proposals No. 5218

DEAR MR. MCGEE: Pursuant to your request, we are enclosing a comparative analysis of the proposals for the solution of the so-called "county of origin" problem submitted to the Counties of Origin Subcommittee of the Joint Committee on Water Problems by the Department of Water Resources, the Attorney General's Committee of Water Lawyers on County of Origin Problems, and the Subcommittee on "Areas of Origin" of the State-wide Water Resources Committee of the California State Chamber of Commerce.

In view of the short time allowed for the preparation of the comparative analysis, we have not attempted to explore all of the possible legal consequences that might flow from the provisions contained in the several proposals, but have merely described such provisions in such manner that they may readily be compared.

The proposals of the Department of Water Resources and the State Chamber of Commerce's subcommittee consist of consistutional amendments and supplementary legislation. The proposal of the Attorney General's committee consists only of a constitutional amendment.

Since the constitutional amendment of the Department of Water Resources is a revision of the original constitutional amendment submitted by the department, some changes may be necessary in the supplementary legislation which was drafted to supplement the constitutional amendment before revision.

It might also be pointed out that, while the Attorney General's committee submitted only a proposed constitutional amendment, further legislation was apparently envisioned by said committee to supplement the consitutional amendment.

Very truly yours,

RALPH N. KLEPS, Legislative Counsel
By RAY H. WHITAKER, Deputy

Comparative Analysis of Proposals[1] for Solution of County of Origin Problems—No. 5248

At the outset it should be noted that the department's proposal and the Attorney General's proposal contain declarations of general principles as to the State's role in the development of the water resources of the State and the protection to be afforded to areas in which water originates and, in addition, contain specific provisions in respect to these matters. The State Chamber's proposal, on the other hand, contains no declarations of general principles but only specific provisions as to such matters in connection with proposed state water development projects.

I. Declaration of Principles

A. State's Functions

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment declares that, because of prevailing conditions, the State must assume a continuing responsibility for the proper and timely development of the State's water resources in coordination and cooperation with private enterprise, local and public agencies, and the Federal Government; and to that end, the State may either construct water projects or provide financial assistance for construction of public water projects. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment recognizes that prevailing conditions require the State to assume a continuing responsibility for assuring the timely and economical development of additional water resources and declares the following policies:

(1) To encourage and assist development of water resources by private enterprise and public agencies[2] to the greatest extent practicable;

(2) To obtain aid and assistance from the Federal Government when and if it may appear desirable and advantageous; and

(3) For the State to finance, construct, and operate water development facilities and projects[3] which are in conformity with a general or coordinated plan for the development of the state's water resources;

all to the end that the maximum, most efficient and most economical use may be made of the state's water resources. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a))

B. Protection to Areas of Origin

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment declares that hereafter in the development of the state's water resources by any entity, no areas of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development, of any quantity of water needed to satisfy the area's reasonable ultimate requirements, and that only excess water originating therein may be made available for permanent beneficial use elsewhere; provided, however, that in times of water shortage the State shall apportion all available water ratably. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment declares that it shall be the policy of the State in the development of its water resources to insure that no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development by any person,[4] of water needed to reasonably satisfy the area's ultimate future requirements, to the extent that water originates therein, and that excess water shall be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas which need imported supplies of water. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (b))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no statements of principles relative to protection for areas of origin.

II. Reservations of Water

A. Initial Determinations and Reservations

Department's Proposal. To carry out the policy stated in the constitutional amendment, Section 10505 of the Water Code is amended to provide that no release

[1] The proposals analyzed are those submitted to the Counties of Origin Subcommittee of the Joint Water Problems Committee by the Department of Water Resources, the Attorney General's Committee of Water Lawyers on County of Origin Problems, and the Subcommittee on "Areas of Origin" of the Statewide Water Resources Committee of the State Chamber of Commerce. For the sake of convenience, in this analysis we shall refer to the proposals as the "Department's Proposal," the "Attorney General's Proposal," and the "State Chamber's Proposal," respectively.

[2] "Public Agency" is defined as "any city, county, city and county, district, other public or municipal corporation, or political subdivision of this State, or any department of or agency of any thereof." (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (a) (4).) The State Chamber's constitutional amendment contains substantially an identical definition. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (h) (2))

[3] "Facility" is defined as "any single physical structure or device used in the development, conservation or utilization of water resources" and "project" is defined as "any combination or grouping of any number of such facilities." (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (a) (1) and (2))

[4] "Person" is defined as "any person, firm, association, corporation, public agency, this State, any other State, the United States of America, and any department or agency of any thereof." (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (a) (5)) from priority or assignment by the department of any state filing shall be effective until the State Water Rights Board has completed the following:

(1) Determination of the boundaries of each "upper watershed of origin"[5] in which such water originates;

(2) Determination of the quantity of water originating in each such watershed which will be required for reasonable ultimate beneficial use therein;

(3) Determination of the amount of water originating in each such watershed which is not reserved for that area and which is necessary for use within the "lower watershed of origin"[6];

(4) Reservations to such upper and lower watersheds by order; and

(5) Determination of the amount of water which is available for use elsewhere.

Such determinations must be made by the board within six months after a release or assignment has been executed by the department. (Wat. C. 10508)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the state agency which is authorized by the Legislature to investigate the state's water resources and to formulate development plans (the Department of Water Resources, under present law) to:

(1) At such times and in such sequence and priority as the Legislature may direct, determine the boundaries of and designate as an "area of origin" each area of the State within which water originates in quantities found by such agency to be in excess of the ultimate future requirements of such area and to be a practicable source of water for use in other parts of the State which are in need of additional water supplies; and

(2) Submit each determination and designation so made to the next regular or budget session of the Legislature.

Unless vetoed by two-third's vote of the members of either house, each such determination and designation would become effective upon the adjournment of the session to which submitted. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (a))

Requires the state agency which is authorized by the Legislature to issue, deny, or modify permits and licenses to appropriate water (the State Water Rights Board, under present law) to make findings as to the quantity of water originating in each such area of origin and the quantity of water which will be reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein; and, based on such findings, to reserve for use within each such area of origin, from the water originating therein, the quantities of water reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that, whenever the Legislature authorizes the acquisition or construction by the State of any project[7] which will export water from one or more watersheds in which it originates, the Legislature, by bill, must also:

(1) Determine the boundaries of each such watershed;

(2) Determine the quantity of water originating in such watershed which ultimately will be reasonably required for beneficial use therein;

(3) Permanently reserve such quantity of such water for beneficial use in such watershed and, if the Legislature so determines, allocate portions of such quantity to specified areas within such watershed; and

(4) Determine the amount of such water which will be made available by the project for export. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a) (1) to (4), incl.)

Section 10505 of the Water Code is amended to provide that any release from priority or assignment of any state filing is not effective until the State Water Rights Board:

(1) Designates the county or counties in which the water affected thereby originates;

(2) Determines and reserves the quantity of such water originating in each such county which ultimately will be required for beneficial use therein; and

(3) By its order makes such release or assignment subject to such reservation.

B. Hearings

Department's Proposal. Section 10504 of the Water Code is amended to require the department, before it makes a determination to release from priority or assign a state filing for a development not in conflict with a general or coordinated plan for the development, utilization, or conservation of the state's water resources,[8] to hold hearings after appropriate notice and consider evidence submitted by any interested party.

Section 10507 is added to the code to require the State Water Rights Board, before making its determinations as to reservations for upper and lower watersheds of origin and amounts of water available for export (in connection with releases from

[5] Defined as "that portion of any watershed lying upstream from any proposed storage dam."

[6] Defined as "that portion of any watershed lying downstream from any proposed water storage dam."

[7] "Project" is defined as "any physical structure or device, and any combination or grouping of any number thereof, for the development, conservation or utilization of water resources." (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (h) (1).)

[8] Section 10500 is also amended to provide that Bulletin No. 3 of the department, "Report on the California Water Plan," dated March, 1957, with such modifications, amendments and additions as may be later necessary, shall constitute such a general or coordinated plan.

priority or assignments of state filings) to hold hearings and consider testimony and evidence submitted by the Department of Water Resources and any other interested parties.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires all findings and reservations made by the State Water Rights Board to be made after investigation and consideration of relevant factors and after giving all interested persons reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard in conformity with such procedure as the Legislature may prescribe. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (b) (1))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, before authorizing a state project, to cause public hearings to be held and reports and recommendations to be made upon the subject of such action by such legislative committees or state agencies, or both, as the Legislature may deem appropriate, and requires the Legislature to receive and consider such reports and recommendations. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (c))

Under Section 10505 of the Water Code, as amended, the State Water Rights Board is required, before releasing from priority or assigning any state filing, to hold a public hearing upon at least sixty days' notice to the Director of Water Resources and such other persons as the board deems to be interested therein.

C. Judicial Review

Department's Proposal. Section 10509 is added to the Water Code to provide that any determination by the State Water Rights Board as to reservations to upper and lower watersheds of origin and the amount of water available for export shall be subject to judicial review as provided for in Section 1094.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that all findings and reservations made by the State Water Rights Board shall be subject to judicial review in any manner prescribed by the Legislature; but that the reviewing tribunal shall exercise an independent judgment on the law and facts as disclosed by the record certified to it, and the findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the board shall not be controlling upon its judgment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b) (2))

State Chamber's Proposal. No express provision is made for judicial review.

D. Revisions of Reservations

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision for revisions. However, Section 10506 is added to the Water Code to provide that, if the State Water Rights Board determines that the quantity of water reserved to an upper or lower watershed of origin is inadequate, it must report such findings to the Legislature; and upon notification by the board of such findings, the Department of Water Resources must recommend to the Legislature such remedial action as is necessary and equitable.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that, subject to all water rights which may arise out of contract with the State or which otherwise may become vested, the State Water Rights Board may re-examine and revise any reservation at any time it appears on the petition of any interested person that it is no longer reasonable. The re-examination and revison is to be made in the same manner and with the same effect as an original revision.

If, upon such re-examination and revison, the board finds that there is insufficient water to meet the revised reservation because of its permanent commitment to use in other parts of the State, the substitution of other water for that which is so permanently committed to such use, to the extent necessary to comply with the revised reservation, is made a first priority upon the awarding of contracts for the delivery of water from the next state facility or project which is physically capable of being so substituted, and such substitution is required to be made at no greater cost to the users within the area of origin than would be involved if there were no exportation of water therefrom by any state or other project commenced on or after the date of the original reservation. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b) (3))

State Chamber's Proposal. The chamber's proposal contains no express provision for revisions of reservations.[9]

E. Effect of Reservations on Existing Rights

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provisions in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no reservation shall impair any riparian, appropriative, adjudicated, or other vested water right, or any application to appropriate water filed by any person, other than the State or the United States or any department or agency thereof, prior to the date on which the constitutional amendment is approved by the Legislature for submission to the electorate. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b))

[9] However, see provision discussed under paragraph IV, B below.

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no action taken by the Legislature pursuant to Section 5 shall impair or affect any riparian, appropriative, contractual, adjudicated or other existing or vested water right. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (d))

F. Future Effect of Reservations

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that each reservation shall be binding upon all persons and all water rights thereafter acquired shall be subject to such reservation. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that each reservation shall be permanently binding upon the State and upon all persons,[10] that the operation of each state project which will export water from one or more watersheds in which it originates shall be subject to the determinations and reservations made with respect to such project, and that all water rights thereafter acquired shall be subject to such determinations and reservations. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (b))

III. Water Development Fund

A. Creation of Fund

Department's Proposal. Section 12002 is added to the Water Code to create a Water Development Fund as a special fund in the State Treasury, requiring the deposit therein of the following:

(1) All oil and gas revenues made available by the Legislature;

(2) State water project revenues, in excess of the operation and maintenance costs and the amount required for amortization and interest incurred by the State;

(3) All General Fund revenues made available by the Legislature;

(4) All revenues from any state bond issue for the development of state water projects; and

(5) All other available revenues.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment creates the Water Development Fund as a special fund in the State Treasury and requires the deposit therein of the following:

(1) All annual oil and gas revenues in excess of $10,000,000, over and above administrative costs and refunds; but the Legislature, by a vote of three-fourths of the members elected to each house, is authorized to appropriate the amount subject to deposit in the fund each year, or any part thereof, for expenditure for purposes other than those specified in the constitutional amendment;

(2) State water project revenues, over and above the cost of operation and maintenance of the project; and

(3) Any other funds made available by any means solely for the purpose of the Water Development Fund. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (a) and (b))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no provision for the creation of a Water Development Fund.

B. Expenditures From Fund

Department's Proposal. Section 12003 is added to the Water Code to authorize moneys in the Water Development Fund to be expended by the State for water development projects, to be loaned to any political subdivision thereof, or to be used for joint projects by the State, the Federal Government, or local agencies; but it is expressly required that any proposed project be in reasonable conformity with a general or coordinated plan of development of the water of the State and be economically justifiable and financially feasible.

Section 12004 is added to the code to require 20 percent of the total amounts of deposits and increment in the Water Development Fund to be expended or loaned for projects of primary localized benefit, with priority being given to such projects within those watersheds of origin in which an export project has been built or authorized, as such projects are found to be needed and feasible.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that any money in the Water Development Fund may be:

(1) Appropriated or expended for state construction of authorized water development facilities or for service of authorized indebtedness incurred therefor; or

(2) Loaned, on such terms as may be prescribed by the Legislature, including waiver of interest charges, for construction of such facilities by any public agency.

It is expressly provided, however, that no such expenditure or loan shall be made for construction of any facility which is in substantial conflict with any general or [10] "Person" is defined in the same manner as the term is defined in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment (see footnote 4), except that it includes, in addition, any private or public or municipal corporation or political subdivision of another state. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (h) (2)) coordinated plan for the development, conservation and utilization of the State's water resources which may be approved by the Legislature. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (c))

State Chamber's Proposal. Contains no provision for such fund.

IV. State Water Development Projects

A. Report by Department of Water Resources

Department's Proposal. Section 12000 is added to the Water Code to require any report submitted to the Legislature by the department in furtherance of authorization of any state project involving exportation of water from a watershed to contain:

(a) An estimate of the reasonable ultimate water requirements of the upper watershed of origin.

(b) A description of works needed to ultimately develop the water of such upper watershed of origin and make it available for use therein.

(c) A description of such works which are presently needed and presently feasible.

(d) A description of the areas to be served from the project, including those areas in the watershed lying downstream from any proposed storage dam of the project which are in need of supplemental water.

(e) An estimate of the amounts of dependable water to be made available to all areas to be served from the project after full allowance for the reasonable ultimate requirements of the upper watershed of origin.

Attorney General's and State Chamber's Proposals. Neither of such proposals contains any similar provision.

B. Full Development of Watershed of Origin

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision for full development of the watershed of origin, other than the requirement of the report by the department described in paragraph A above.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that whenever it is proposed that the State construct or finance a water storage reservoir which will develop waters for use outside the watershed[11] in which it originates and in which such reservoir is located, the authority to do so shall be contingent upon the further authorization of such other and additional reservoirs and facilities, except distribution systems, within such watershed as may be determined by the Legislature to be necessary to provide sufficient water to reasonably satisfy the ultimate future requirements for the beneficial use of water within that part of the watershed which lies upstream from the proposed reservoir; provided that such requirements can be met in an economically feasible and practical manner, but any test of economic feasibility must be applied to all the facilities so authorized within the watershed and not to any single facility without regard to other facilities whose authorization is required. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (d))

Upon authorization by the Legislature, the development of the facilities may proceed in any priority or manner directed by the Legislature; but whenever any immediate foreseeable need arises for water in any watershed from which water is being exported which can feasibly and reasonably be supplied by any of the facilities authorized therein, the Governor must certify such fact, and thereafter a continuing first priority in the use of uncommitted moneys in the Water Development Fund must be given to the construction at a reasonable rate of progress of such facility or facilities, and such moneys shall be deemed appropriate for such purpose. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (e))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature to include in any state water export project, for the benefit of any portion of the watershed in which a major water storage reservoir of the project is to be located and in which the water originates, such upstream reservoirs and facilities, except distribution systems, as the Legislature determines to be necessary and practical to make reserved water originating in such portion of such watershed available for beneficial use therein, and to provide for the financing and construction by the State of each such upstream reservoir and facility when it is needed and can be constructed without rendering the project as a whole economically infeasible. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a) (5))

The Legislature is also required to provide such means as it deems appropriate to afford reasonable assurance that, if the quantity of water reserved for the watershed of origin should at any time become inadequate to meet the reasonable needs for beneficial use therein which could be met by practical and economically feasible methods of development of water originating therein, such needs can and will promptly be supplied by the State at no greater cost to the users in such watershed

[11] Section 9 (a) of Article XIV provides that the term "watershed" when applied to the basin of the Sacramento River shall be applicable to the watershed of any tributary stream or river which flows into the Sacramento River but shall not be applied to the main channel of the Sacramento River except with respect to any dam or reservoir which may hereafter be constructed in whole or in part in the bed of such main channel; and provides that the term shall not be applied to the combined deltas of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers.

than would be involved if there were no exportation of water therefrom by any state or other development commencing on or after the effective date of the act making the reservation. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a) (6))

C. Project Water for Watershed of Origin

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect, except the requirement that the department's report to the Legislature with respect to a state project authorization must contain a description of the areas to be served from the project, including those areas in the watershed of origin lying downstream from any proposed storage dam of such project which are in need of supplemental water. (Wat. C. 12000)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, when it authorizes state construction of any water storage reservoir located within an area of origin, to determine the maximum extent to which water reserved for such areas can feasibly be made available for delivery from such reservoir, and requires all contracts for the use of water therefrom to conform to such determination. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (f)) With respect to such water, first priority is required to be given in the awarding of contracts for project water to the reasonable requirements for the beneficial use of water within such watershed. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (e))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no express provision in this respect.

D. Contracts

1. Prerequisites to Authorization

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect; however, the constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, in the authorization of any state water project, to make firm allocations of the dependable yield of water made available by the project, and provides that such allocations may be altered by the Legislature to permit the substitution of water of equal quantity and comparable quality from another source. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that whenever a facility or project has been authorized for state construction and 10 percent of the estimated cost of construction, or $50,000,000, whichever is the lesser sum, has been made available, by appropriation or otherwise, the Legislature may authorize the execution of contracts, including option contracts to be exercised in not to exceed 20 years which are renewable only with the consent of the Legislature, for the sale or delivery of water to be made available by the facility or the project. The Legislature is authorized to specify the extent to which execution of such contracts may be required before actual construction of the facility or project is commenced. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (a)) All of the provisions of Section 8 of Article XIV are made applicable to contracts for the sale or delivery of hydroelectric energy produced by any state facility or project. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (d))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment authorizes the Legislature, after enacting the required leigslation with respect to a state water export project, to authorize the execution of binding contracts for the sale or delivery of water made available by such project. The Legislature may also authorize the execution of similar contracts for the sale or delivery of electric energy made available by the project. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (e))

2. Contents

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires contracts for the delivery of water from a state project to provide for a firm and permanent delivery of the quantities of water allocated by the Legislature. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Section 12001 is added to the Water Code to require any such contract with a public agency to provide for the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply, without increase in the contract price.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment authorizes each contract to provide:

(a) For the delivery of water for such purposes and commencing at such time and continuing permanently or for such stated term as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(b) For such method of determining the price of water to be delivered and determining the annual payments which may be required of the contracting party, both prior to and after commencement of delivery, as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(c) For such other terms and provisions as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (b))

Such contracts are required to provide:

(a) For the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply without increase in the contract price; and

(b) In the case of contracts for a term of less duration than permanent service, that no permanent right to the water involved shall become vested in or otherwise acquired by the contracting party. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (c))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's constitutional amendment is similar to the Attorney General's constitutional amendment with respect to provisions authorized to be contained in contracts; however, the provisions for substitution of water from alternate sources is authorized to be included in contracts, rather than required, as in the case of the Attorney General's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (e)) There are no provisions which are required to be contained in such contracts.

3. Temporary Use of Project Water

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that, notwithstanding the requirement that contracts provide for firm and permanent delivery of water, the State may enter into short-term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but no short-term project shall confer a right to the permanent use of such water. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that the execution of a contract for future delivery of water shall not prevent the water from being temporarily put to other beneficial use under term contracts authorized by the Legislature, but the right of the party contracting for future delivery to the quantity and quality of water on the date specified for the initial delivery thereof shall remain unimpaired by any such temporary use. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (c))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment contains no express provision authorizing temporary use, but provides that water contracted to be delivered shall be reserved to the contracting party and no right to such water inconsistent with the right thereto of the contracting party shall be acquired by any other person by appropriation or contract or otherwise. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (e))

4. Enforcement of Contracts

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no contract with the State for the sale or delivery of water or power made available by any state project shall be impaired by act of the Legislature. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that all such contracts with public agencies shall be subject to the provisions of Article I, Section 16, of the Constitution (which, among other things, prohibits the passage of laws impairing the obligation of contracts). (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (f) and (d))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that the State may be sued in the superior court in and for the county within which the principal office of the contracting party is located or in any other state court of competent jurisdiction to declare or enforce any right acquired under any water or power contract. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (e)) It is also provided that all contracts with public agencies for the sale or delivery of water shall be subject to the provisions of Article I, Section 16, and that the State may be sued in any state court of competent jurisdiction to prevent or redress any such impairment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (f))

5. Effect of Dissolution of or Change in Contracting Public Agency

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no right of any person to water, or to the delivery or use of water, or to water service, arising by contract or by appropriation or otherwise, shall be impaired by reason of dissolution or any change in the status, form, or powers of any public agency. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (f)) This provision is also applicable to power contracts with public agencies. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (d))

State Chamber's Proposal. The chamber's constitutional amendment contains a provision identical to that contained in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment, except that it does not apply to power contracts with public agencies. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (f))

V. Miscellaneous Provisions

A. In Lieu Payments to Cities and Counties

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no provision in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, in authorizing either the construction or financing of any facility or project, to provide for payments out of revenues to be made in lieu of taxes to any city or county within whose jurisdiction the facility or project or any part thereof may be located. Such payments are required to be based solely upon the value of the real property occupied by such facility or property at the time title thereto is acquired by the State or by the public agency. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (g))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no provision in this respect.

B. Applicability of Existing "Watershed of Origin" Provisions

Department's Proposal. Section 12005 is added to the Water Code to provide that any project or unit of a project authorized for construction, or constructed, as part of the state-authorized Central Valley Project shall not be subject to the so-called "watershed or origin" provisions (Wat. C. 11460-11463, incl.) after the Legislature has made the firm allocations of water made available by such project or unit thereof in the manner set forth in Section 5 (c) of Article XIV of the Constitution (the department's constitutional amendment).

Attorney General's Proposal. The Attorney General's proposal contains no provision in this respect.

State Chamber's Proposal. Section 11466 is added to the Water Code to provide that in the event of the adoption of Section 5 of Article XIV of the Constitution (the Chamber's constitutional amendment), no unit of the state-authorized Central Valley Project which is authorized for construction by the State in accordance with Section 5 of Article XIV shall be subject to the so-called "watershed of origin" provision (Wat. C. 11460-11463, incl.).

C. Re-Authorization of State Water Development Projects

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no provision requiring re-authorization.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no funds shall be expended for the acquisition or construction of any major works of a state project authorized prior to the effective date of the constitutional amendment for the purpose of exporting water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates unless and until such project has been re-authorized by the Legislature pursuant to the provisions of the constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 10)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's constitutional amendment contains a provision identical to that contained in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (i))

D. Power of Legislation

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that it is self-executing and that the Legislature may also enact law in furtherance of the policy contained therein. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that nothing contained in the amendment shall be construed to prohibit the establishment, maintenance, or amendment by the Legislature of a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water for beneficial use not inconsistent with the provisions thereof (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (b)). It also contains a provision similar to the one contained in the department's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (c))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's constitutional amendment contains a provision with respect to the power of the Legislature to establish, maintain, or amend a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water similar to the provision contained in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (g))

Proposed Modification No. 1

Any such allocation may be altered by the Legislature either to permit the substitution of an equivalent water supply from elsewhere or where supply or demand conditions have substantially changed.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, contracts with the State for the delivery of water from a State project shall provide for firm and permanent delivery of the quantities of water allocated pursuant to this Section; provided, however, the State may enter into short-term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but no such short-term contract shall confer a right to the permanent use of such water.

Proposed Modification No. 2

Notwithstanding the foregoing, contracts with the State for the delivery of water from a State project shall provide for firm and permanent delivery of the quantities of water allocated pursuant to this Section; provided, however, the State may enter into short-term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but no such short-term contract shall confer a right to the permanent use of such water. In the making of such delivery contracts of whatever duration, the State shall give priority as to availability of water to domestic use and as to price of water to agricultural use.

The reservation for the area of origin shall be in addition to the riparian, prescriptive and appropriative rights existing as of the date of the reservation. Such riparian, prescriptive and appropriative rights, together with appropriative rights acquired under the reservation shall be superior to any rights of use in the area of deficiency.

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Senate Bill No. 153.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 14, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN: Senate Bill No. 153, "An act to add Chapter 24 to Division 3 of the Education Code, to provide for the preparation, issuance and sale of state bonds to create a fund to provide aid to school districts of the State; defining the powers and duties of state officers in respect to the administration of the provisions hereof; providing ways and means for the payment of the interest of such bonds as such interest falls due, and also for the payment and discharge of the principal of such bonds as such principal matures; and appropriating money for the expense of preparing and of advertising the sale of bonds herein authorized to be issued, and for the administration of this chapter, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

At the last general election, the people adopted a Constitutional Amendment (Sec. 18 of Art. XVI, State Constitution) continuing and augmenting the program of state assistance to the many school districts otherwise unable to provide adequate school buildings and facilities. Senate Bill No. 153 carries out this provision and makes available the additional state aid which it authorizes. In order that the education of pupils in school districts with little financial means be not curtailed, it is essential that the state assistance voted by the people be made promptly available for allocation and loan to those districts through an early passage of this bill.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 153 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

COMMUNICATIONS

CITY OF LOS ANGELES, January 16, 1957

The Honorable J. A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate
Senate Chamber, State Capitol
Sacramento 14, California

DEAR SIR: At the meeting of the council held January 16, 1957, the following State, County and Federal Affairs Committee report was adopted:

On January 14, 1957, the Council referred the proposed resolution of Councilman Timberlake urging that the Legislature of the State of California enact appropriate legislation to restore the method of valuation of possessory interests in governmentally owned tax-exempt lands to the basis prevailing prior to 1955, to your committee for consideration and recommendation.

The need for this legislation arose from a 1955 decision by the Supreme Court of the State of California which reversed the court's former decision and held that it was improper to make an allowance of the present value of future unpaid rentals in arriving at the valuation of the privately owned possessory interests for taxation purposes. This new decision will reduce the city revenue from leases of city-owned properties.

After careful consideration, your committee is of the opinion that it would be in the best general interests of the city to support the enactment of appropriate legislation in the State Legislature as set forth in said proposed resolution as failure to do so might jeopardize the city's interest in leases now in effect or leases entered into in the future by the city, particularly the harbor, airport, recreation and parks and water and power departments.

We therefore recommend that said resolution urging the Legislature of the State of California to enact appropriate legislation which will restore the formula for valuation of possessory interests in governmentally owned tax-exempt lands for taxation purposes uniformly followed and accepted, both judicially and administratively, prior to the said so-called De Luz Homes decision (45 Cal. 2d 546) be adopted.

Certified copy of said resolution is transmitted herewith.

Very truly yours,

WALTER C. PETERSON, City Clerk
By A. M. MORRIS, Assistant City Clerk

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, CALIFORNIA KLAMATH RIVER COMMISSION

January 21, 1957

Hon. J. A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento
Hon. Arthur A. Ohnimus, Clerk of the Assembly
State Capitol, Sacramento

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to Chapter 1473, Statutes of 1953 (Government Code Secs. 8110-8119), there is hereby transmitted to you the proposed Klamath River Basin Compact between the States of Oregon and California. This is an interstate compact relative to the distribution and use of the waters of the Klamath River.

Approval of the two state commissions formulating this compact was given on November 17, 1956. Although approval by the California Commission is unanimous your attention is invited to the statement from Commissioner Nelson C. Bowles which states the basis for his approval of the compact. This statement is attached as Attachment A.

Attachment B to this letter is a short summary setting forth the main problems which confronted the commissions of the two states during their negotiations, the manner in which these problems were met, and the advantages of the compact to California. Attachment C is a digest of the provisions of the compact.

The California Klamath River Commission is convinced that this compact, if put into effect, will serve the best interests of the Klamath River Basin and the entire State of California. Because of this conviction it is recommended that the compact be made effective this year if possible. This will require ratification of the compact by the California Legislature during the 1957 Session and, when similarly reatified by the Legislature of the State of Oregon, its submission to the Congress of the United States with request that congressional consent legislation meeting the provisions of Article XIII of the compact be enacted during the present session.

To assist in ratification of the compact by the California Legislature there is attached as Attachment D a draft of a suggested bill to accomplish such ratification. This suggested bill provides (1) for approval of the compact, (2) for the appropriation of $12,000 as California's one-half share of the estimated expenses of the commission established to administer the compact until it can submit its first budget, and (3) for abolition of the existing Klamath River Commission, which negotiated the compact, upon the compact going into effect. The bill provides further that the compact will not be binding upon the State nor the appropriation become effective until the legislatures of both California and Oregon and the Congress of the United States approve the compact.

Very truly yours,

CALIFORNIA KLAMATH RIVER COMMISSION
BERT A. PHILLIPS, Chairman

Attachs.

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were offered:

By Senator Donnelly:

Senate Resolution No. 31

Relative to federal relief to poultry producers

WHEREAS, The poultry producers of this State annually provide a great amount of the meat consumed in this State; and

WHEREAS, This vital factor in our economy and well being is most gravely threatened with economic chaos due in large part to the fact that the raisers of poultry are required under present law to actually pay twice for the grain and other feed they purchase; first by way of taxes to maintain price supports on these commodities and second by paying the artificially raised prices for the products; and

WHEREAS, This is particularly harmful to the small family type poultry producer as evidenced by the almost catastrophic increase in the number of bankruptcies and other failures of these producers; and

WHEREAS, The small family type operation is traditionally the very basis for our American economy; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the President and Congress of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States are respectfully memorialized to take immediate action to afford relief to the depressed poultry producers of California; and be further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Secretary of Agriculture, and to each member of the Congress of the United States from California.

Relative to State Highway Route 45

WHEREAS, State Highway Route 45 is critically deficient from the bridge across the Sacramento River at Butte City west to the point at which it turns north, being approximately one-half mile; and

WHEREAS, It is essential that this highway be improved at the earliest possible date in order that winter travel on it may continue; now, therefore, be it

PROGRESS REPORT OF STUDY COMMITTEE ON HIGHWAY POLICY

Of Joint Interim Committee on Transportation Problems of the California Legislature

January 18, 1957

HON. RANDOLPH COLLIER, Chairman, and
HON. L. M. BACKSTRAND, Vice Chairman,
Joint Interim Committee on Transportation Problems
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN: This letter is in the nature of a progress report from the chairman of your study committee. This committee was appointed by you on November 2, 1956, and consists of the following members:

Harrison R. Baker—President, Los Angeles Metropolitan Traffic Association
Frank H. Mogle—Chairman, California Major Highway Development Committee
Edwin S. Moore—General Manager, California State Automobile Association
J. Allen Davis—General Counsel, Automomile Club of Southern California

Claude Minard—Director, California Railroad Association
O. W. Campbell—City Manager, City of San Diego
Richard Carpenter—Executive Director, League of California Cities
Wm. R. MacDougall—General Manager, County Supervisors Association of California
Allen Mather—Executive Director, Agricultural Council of California
Loran C. Vanderhip—Director, Transportation and Highway Department, State Chamber of Commerce

This letter includes the specific recommendations and resolutions on which the study committee as a whole has taken action thus far, and gives some of the background of facts and reasoning on which these actions were based.

Your study committee has held three full-day meetings in Sacramento, as follows: November 13th and December 10th, 1956, and January 14th, 1957. In its initial meeting the committee made a complete survey and listing of those problems on which it appeared that we might be able to offer useful suggestions to the Joint Legislative Committee on Transportation Problems.

As a second order of business your study committee spent considerable time reviewing the current status of highway financing in California, especially as it has been affected by enactment of the Federal Highway Act of 1956.

The Federal Program of 1956 and Its Uncertainties

The study committee recognizes that the federal legislation of 1956 provides a considerable sum ($278,000,000) in addition to California's normal financing for the first three years of the federal program. The additional amounts for the first two years of the program—Fiscal Years 1956-57 and 1957-58—have already been taken into the State Highway Budget, in full compliance with statutory provisions regarding the division of construction funds both north and south and requirements for minimum expenditures in each of the counties. It should be noted that these formulas apply to federal aid and state funds combined, with the result that the state highway improvement programs in each of the counties will be accelerated regardless of whether it has little or no mileage on the National System of Interstate Highways. In other words, the statutory formulas will apply to a considerably expanded base which includes the additional federal funds.

It should be emphasized that your study committee is deeply concerned about some provisions of the Federal Highway Act of 1956 which create uncertainties that vitally affect fiscal planning of the highway, road and street program in California. In reality, the much publicized 13-year program for completion of the interstate system can at present be regarded only as a three-year program at best.

As you know, the Congress continued an outdated formula for apportionment of funds for the interstate system which has no relationship to needs and which adversely affects California by giving it only 5.7 percent of interstate funds, instead of the nearly 10 percent which it would have received on a needs basis. While the 1956 Act provides for adoption of a needs formula beginning with the 1959-60 Fiscal Year, before such formula becomes effective the Congress must approve by concurrent resolution a new estimate of needs to be submitted to it by the Bureau of Public Roads in 1958. Since a large majority of states obviously would benefit by continuation of the present formula rather than by adoption of the needs basis, it is incumbent on your committee and everyone else interested in highway development in California to urge Congress to accept the needs formula in 1958. This is the only possible way in which the stated objectives of Congress (namely, to complete the interstate system promptly and simultaneously in each of the states) can be fulfilled. Our California representatives in Congress should be fully informed as to our vital interest in this matter.

Even if the needs formula is approved in 1958, we cannot at this time be sure of the amounts of federal aid that will be forthcoming for California in 1960 and subsequent years because the needs estimates of all states are currently being revised. There is reason to believe that California's share may be something less than the 9.98 percent indicated by the 1954 needs study, but it should be substantially above the 5.7 percent which the present formula allocates to California for interstate highways.

Another unsettled matter in the 1956 federal legislation involves the question of reimbursement for roads on the interstate system, whether toll or toll-free, which have heretofore been improved to interstate system standards. Congress has provided for a study of this issue. If reimbursement is to be made—and the general consensus of your study committee is that it should not—then the rate of completion of interstate highways will be retarded unless Congress provides additional financing for its highway program.

Another issue that may adversely affect the rate of completion of the interstate system in California and elsewhere involves the very considerable pressures now being exerted on the Congress to increase the authorized mileage of the interstate system above the 41,000 miles now provided for. It is to be noted that applications for some 13,000 additional mileages were submitted to take up the 1,000-mile addition provided for by the Congress in the 1956 legislation.

Your committee also studied recent trends in highway costs which have shown a rather pronounced upward trend in recent months. There is reason to believe, in view of recent trends in labor costs and the fact that the expanded federal highway program is just beginning to get under way, that the upward trend in highway costs may continue for some time.

System Study Recommended

All of these considerations taken together suggest to your study committee the need for care in making any substantial and basic changes in fiscal and other highway policy at the state level at the 1957 Session of the Legislature.

Beyond this, we find that a sound factual and conceptual basis for making fundamental changes in 1957 is lacking. It occurs to us that the interim between 1957 and 1959—a period during which it is anticipated that the federal program will be clarified and stabilized—will afford a good opportunity to acquire and digest the factual basis for wise decisions on fundamental policy questions at the state level in 1959. After long deliberation, your study committee adopted the following resolution:

> The committee recognizes that there should be planning for a state-wide system of freeways and limited-access highways, and that its scope and composition should be the subject of a thorough study between now and the convening of the 1959 Session of the Legislature.

This action of the committee substantially follows the line of thinking contained in S.C.R. No. 26 which you have introduced. The key item of your resolution—an item that has the full endorsement of your study committee—reads, as follows:

> "The Department of Public Works is requested to undertake a study which will provide a basis for an over-all state-wide plan of freeways and expressways for the State of California, such study not to be limited to state highways and such study to locate the potential freeway and expressway routes of such a state-wide system, and the necessary connections thereto, as nearly as is practicable in advance of detailed engineering design of projects."

The provision for this study, in the committee's view, is the most important single action that the Legislature can take in 1957 with regard to highways. We regard this study as an indispensable first step to the formation of a sound legislative program for 1959. Our specific actions on the other items that we have thus far considered have all been influenced by the fact that we have proposed this comprehensive study as well as by the fact that uncertainties in the federal program must be clarified in 1958 before California's program can be modified intelligently.

Recommendations on Additions and Deletions in State Highway System

Your study committee has spent considerable time reviewing suggestions for changes in the composition of the State Highway System, including those which have emanated from testimony before your committee. Your committee found in the course of its review that a number of additions and deletions appeared to be desirable, particularly those which were of a technical corrective nature and those necessary to conform the State Highway System to the interstate system as approved by the Bureau of Public Roads. However, the committee finally decided that rather than choosing among specific proposals for changes its best service would be done by drafting a statement of principles which might serve as a guide in evaluation of specific proposals for additions or deletions in the State Highway System. The committee's main resolution on this subject is intended to be highly restrictive insofar as 1957 legislation is concerned, and reads as follows:

> WHEREAS, This committee has previously recommended to the interim committee that a study be made for an over-all state-wide plan of freeways and expressways for the State of California; and
> WHEREAS, It is the judgment of this committee that the results of this study should be available before consideration be given to any further additions to the State Highway System other than those required for: (1) the planning and construction of the interstate highway system; (2) necessary corrections in the descriptions of legislative routes; and (3) other urgent additions and deletions necessitated to permit the immediate and continuing planning and construction of the State Highway System; now, therefore, be it
> Resolved, That this committee recommend to the interim committee that no additions be made to the State Highway System at this session of the Legislature except as above described.

Additionally, the committee felt that the practice of recent years of bringing highways into the state system initially with conditions attached regarding their construction or maintenance, or both, with efforts being made subsequently to remove these conditions was highly undesirable. Accordingly, the study committee adopted the following resolution:

> We recommend to the interim committee that it is not in the public interest for the Legislature to continue the practice heretofore followed in a number of instances of adding routes to the State Highway System upon the basis that they should not be constructed or maintained; but, on the contrary, all routes added to the State Highway System should be on a parity with other routes and made eligible for construction and future maintenance as constructed.

Certain highways are now in the state system under restrictive conditions as a result of the aforementioned practices which the study committee disapproves as a matter of principle. Your committee recognizes that an annoying and unfortunate situation has been created by the Legislature in setting up these routes in their present conditional status. It therefore believes that the Legislature should enact a concurrent resolution advising the Highway Commission as to its wishes with respect to these conditional routes. The study committee's resolution reads as follows:

> We recommend that the Legislature determine definitely and instruct the State Department of Public Works, by concurrent resolution, as to the policy to be observed with regard to the maintenance or nonmaintenance of the following named routes:
> Route 56—Portion from near Westport to near Rockport; portion from near Rockport to Leggett Valley; portion from near Valley Ford to Jenner.
> Route 15—From Route 56 near Fort Bragg to Route 1 near Willits.
> Route 233—From Route 83 near Sierraville to Route 21 near Vinton via Loyalton.
> Route 232—From Sacramento to Marysville.

Your committee felt that it would be improper for it to go further in this particular matter, lest it appear that the committee was in any way condoning action to bring routes into the State Highway System via the back door.

It should be said in regard to all of the recommendations on additions and deletions that your study committee anticipates that the entire matter will be largely resolved as a result of the system study that we have recommended.

Recommendation on Route Adoptions and Freeway Locations

Your committee carefully considered current practices of the commission and the department with respect to route adoptions and freeway locations. It reviewed current policies and traced their evolution over the last several years. It also considered the impact of the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956 and its requirement for public hearings on all federal-aid projects.

The study committee is fully cognizant that there has been pressure at times for restrictive legislation on powers of the California Highway Commission and the Department of Public Works in regard to route adoptions. The committee earnestly considered the need for legislation on this subject, but finally concluded that no legislation is needed or would be in the public interest. It found no concerted demand from local government for any kind of veto power over commission action. On the contrary, it was informed that local governments generally will oppose efforts to give them controls over the California Highway Commission or the Department of Public Works in the matter of route adoptions and freeway locations. The committee found that specific legislation on the subject would prove to be undesirably restrictive and inflexible, and that any such legislation would involve the danger of creating legal obstacles which might impede California's freeway program.

Your committee felt that the present policies of the commission and the department afford ample protection to the people who may be affected and should be commended for continuation.

In assuming this position, the committee is fully cognizant that situations arise in which there is heated controversy over particular freeway routings, but the committee is also aware that these individual cases attract a disproportionate amount of public attention. In the large majority of cases no controversy at all is to be heard regarding the route adoption. Even in cases in which controversy arises, usually the dissidents represent a small but vocal minority of those affected by the location.

One of the current difficulties, in the committee's view, is that freeway route adoptions are, in many cases, made on a piecemeal basis. Thus, each adoption is treated as a separate problem and is not seen by the interested public as an element of a plan for an over-all system of freeways and expressways. This basic deficiency in present practice contributes to the seeming lack of support at times for the over-all program. Removal of this deficiency is another of the important reasons underlying the committee's recommendation urging the system study discussed above, which is designed to provide an over-all plan of freeways and expressways, and the necessary connections thereto, for the entire State of California. With such a plan laid before the public, the committee believes that public support for the freeway program will be greatly enhanced.

Recommendation on Freeway Landscaping

In the matter of landscaping, your committee finds that the Division of Highways under present policy undertakes two classes of construction work generally under the classification of planting:

1. Roadside development and control, which is constructed for the purpose of traffic control, economics of maintenance, or other engineering requirements. Within this classification is included that work which may be required for erosion control, traffic safety, fire control, or traffic noise abatement.

2. Landscaping, which is for the purpose of enhancing or preserving the aesthetic values of the highway and its immediate environs.

Under present policy planting for landscaping is being done on freeways on a minimum basis and only in built up or highly developed areas. Functional planting for roadside development and control is also being done on a minimum basis consistent with actual requirements.

After reviewing the facts submitted to it, the committee concluded that these practices of the division under the policies established by the commission are fully satisfactory in the light of the current budgetary situation and the uncertainties of the federal program. The committee also calls attention to the high cost involved in extensive landscaping under California's climatic conditions. It urges that the Legislature take no action on this matter, but rather leave control over landscaping policy and practice in the hands of the commission and the department.

Recommendation Against Diversion of Highway User Taxes

During the course of its review of the financial situation, the committee became fully aware that funds are still insufficient to meet all the important highway needs in California in a reasonable time, and that this situation will continue to prevail even if the most favorable actions are taken by the Federal Government. Consequently the committee believes that all efforts to divert any state revenues which are now devoted to highways to any other purpose, including the support of transit facilities, should be discouraged. The committee recognizes that highways alone may not solve California's transportation problems, but it is convinced that the diversion of funds from one form of transportation to another, not only would be inequitable, but would do nothing to provide an over-all solution to the transportation problem. Accordingly, the committee resolved as follows:

> The committee recommends strict adherence to Article XXVI of the Constitution of the State of California prohibiting the diversion of highway-user taxes to non-highway purposes.

Recommendation on Vehicle Size and Weight Limitations

In the final action of the committee taken to date, the matter of size and weight limits for vehicles on California's highways was considered. It is recognized that the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1956 prohibits California from liberalizing its laws on sizes and weights for any vehicle operating on state highways which are also in the interstate system. It would seem unreasonable and discriminatory if California were to have different limitations for sizes and weights on state highways that do not happen to be in the interstate system. It is to be noted that interstate highways are to be built to the highest design standards. It is also to be noted that Congress has provided for a comprehensive study to be made of maximum sizes and weights, after which study it is not unlikely that the Congress may place limitations on sizes and weights on all federally aided highways. Such action would virtually preclude any possibility for dual standards on any of California's state highways. In any event, the committee felt that the Legislature should make no changes whatsoever in California's size and weight limitations until the results of the federal study which are to be based on the American Association of State Highway Officials' comprehensive road test in Illinois are available.

The committee wishes to assure you that it has been a pleasure to serve in this instance and that the committee stands ready to continue with such additional studies as your interim committee may deem to be advisable.

Sincerely,

HARRISON R. BAKER, Chairman

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

LOUIS G. SUTTON, CHAIRMAN
INTERIM COMMITTEE ON BEACHES AND PARKS
SENATE, CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE, January 22, 1957

Hon. Harold J. Powers, President, and Members of the Senate

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 125 of the 1955 General Session, your Interim Committee on Recreation, State Beaches and Parks transmits herewith its fourth partial report dealing with the subject of recreation and with problems of the California State Park System and allied matters.

In order that the work of your committee may be fully understood the contents of the "Preliminary Report," on these matters, published in January of 1956, have been summarized in the fourth partial report.

Your committee has been impressed with the trends which demand more recreation areas for the people of the State and with the necessity of great cooperation between all agencies of government to produce them. There is apparent need for the development of more inland parks in the state system and for further implementation of the riding and hiking trail and roadside rest programs being carried forward by the State Park System.

Your committee is impressed with the need for a study of the park acquisition program by an advisory committee of citizens which will reflect public sentiment, provide a future program, and help define the State's responsibility therefor.

Your committee strongly believes in the necessity for the development of more parks adjacent to large reservoirs within the State while at the same time protecting the rights of private enterprise in these areas.

It is the opinion of your committee that oil royalties accruing to the State should continue to be devoted to natural resource activities including in that classification the State Park System. For that reason the committee is recommending the establishment of a Natural Resources Fund for these purposes and suggesting that certain of these funds be allocated to agencies of local government under proper controls.

Need for closer cooperation between the several agencies of the State Government which share responsibilities in the recreation and natural resource fields is apparent to the committee and the formation of a coordinating committee for such purpose is recommended.

Recreation and the provision of facilities therefor is becoming a matter of great state-wide interest. Needs for the future must be estimated and compared with the abilities of agencies of government to supply them. Standards must be developed and responsibilities of the agencies of government should be more sharply defined.

It is hoped, therefore, that the studies which have been undertaken in accordance with the resolution and the reports which have been prepared by your committee will be useful in arriving at sound and proper conclusions as the Legislature deals with park and recreation problems.

Respectfully submitted,

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, SPECIAL STUDY COMMISSION ON CORRECTIONAL FACILITIES AND SERVICES

SACRAMENTO, January 16, 1957

The Honorable Harold J. Powers, President of the Senate
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SIR: Pursuant to the provisions of Section 6028.3 of the Penal Code, I have the honor, in behalf of the Board of Corrections, to transmit the Second Interim Report of the Special Study Commission on Correctional Facilities and Services.

The studies contained in this report appear to make an appreciable contribution to the knowledge which is necessary for the development of an integrated and progressive correctional system. In their totality, the findings and recommendations reflect a comprehensive and objective approach to the major problems in probation, jail operation, term-setting, and the granting of parole.

The Board of Corrections has reviewed the recommendations and is in general accord with the majority of the proposals presented. With reference to the items on the state term-setting and parole-granting agencies, however, the board did not reach agreement. The discussion and recommendations in that area introduce important and controversial issues which the board wishes to study and deliberate upon at greater length. Rather than delay transmission of the report, the members desire to reserve the privilege of submitting their comments at a later date.

It is clearly evident that much thought and care has gone into the commission's work. The magnitude of the projects which have been undertaken is noteworthy, and the emphasis on the need for continuous study and planning in the correctional field is highly commendable. With reference to the latter point, the board notes with special interest the commission's plan to include in its final report a statement on future needs of the California correctional system.

The present report represents a distinct step forward in the work of the commission, and it should prove to be a highly useful document for the Legislature during its consideration of the suggested recommendations for change.

Respectfully submitted,

RICHARD A. McGEE
Chairman, State Board of Corrections

Encl.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, December 17, 1956

The Honorable Luther H. Lincoln, Speaker of the Assembly
Sacramento, California
The Honorable Harold J. Powers, President of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN: We are transmitting to you (1) "A Study of the Need for Additional Centers of Public Higher Education in California," which is a report of the Joint Staff of the Liaison Committee of The Regents of the University of California and the State Board of Education made to meet requests of the State Legislature of 1955 for studies of the need for new public higher education facilities in several areas of the State; and (2) A separately bound summary of the objectives, working data and general conclusions of the study.

The report has been built around certain principles, stated in the Joint Staff letter of transmittal to the Liaison Committee, which both the State Board of Education and the Regents of the University have endorsed.

Contained in the report are estimates of the college enrollment potential for the entire State and for various areas within the State, arranged in order of descending magnitude. These tables, and supporting data for them, were assembled on direction of the Liaison Committee of The Regents and the State Board, in the belief that there is a distinct advantage in an orderly and logical approach to the problem of higher education development.

The tables of priorities with regard to the relative need of various specific areas for additional higher education facilities are presented without recommendation by either of the two boards. Conclusions which have been specifically approved by the two boards are set forth on pages _____ in Chapter VI.

As always, the full resources of our respective offices are available to you and your colleagues in the Legislature on all matters relating to our colleges and the University.

Yours sincerely,

ROY E. SIMPSON
Superintendent of Public Instruction
ROBERT G. SPROUL
President, University of California

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Senate Bill No. 532.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 23, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Senate Bill No. 532, "An act making an appropriation for expenditures in connection with the Oroville Dam and appurtenant facilities and the Upper Feather River Service Area Reservoirs, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This bill appropriates $26,490,000 from the Investment Fund to the Department of Water Resources for expenditures in connection with the Feather River Project in accordance with the following schedule:

(a) $25,190,000 of the sum appropriated is to be used for the relocation of the Feather River Highway, the Western Pacific Railroad and other facilities to clear the site for the construction of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir of the Feather River Project. This project has already been authorized and its feasibility established. Previous state appropriations have also provided for the preparation of the plans and specifications, and for the acquisition of the site for this dam. By enacting this bill in January, the State will gain from six to nine months in the construction schedule of this greatly needed project. This time is critical. There is an urgent need for water in the lower San Joaquin Valley, in San Diego County and elsewhere. Any delay will also unnecessarily increase the risk of future loss of life and property, such as was experienced during the 1955 floods. Further, we are presently seeking a federal appropriation of $100,000,000 on account of the flood control which this multiple-purpose project will provide. The firm commitment by the State to its construction under this bill should enable us to secure the maximum Federal contribution for the building of the Oroville Dam, which will be of great aid in this state undertaking. For these reasons, it is imperative that such additional funds for the Oroville Dam be made immediately available.

(b) The remaining $1,300,000 of the sum appropriated is to be used for the completion of the acquisition of lands, the relocation of utility facilities, and the preparation of plans and specifications, for the construction of five local projects in the Upper Feather River Service Area. These local reservoirs are also a part of the Feather River Project. With state funds previously appropriated the sites of these reservoirs have already been located and the acquisition of lands for these sites has commenced. The report of the Director of Water Resources as to their feasibility will be completed in March of this year, and the expenditure of this money upon these projects is contingent upon favorable findings in that report.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 532 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

GJK:hs

Point of Order

Senator Kraft arose to a point of order and stated there were amendments at the desk to Senate Bill No. 532 and the said amendments should be considered before the bill is taken up for final passage.

The President ruled the point well taken.

President pro Tempore of the Senate Presiding

At 3:05 p.m., Hon. Hugh M. Burns, President pro Tempore of the Senate, presiding.

Amendment No. 2

On page 1, lines 2 and 3, strike out "twenty-six million four hundred ninety thousand dollars ($26,490,000)" and insert "twenty-five million one hundred ninety thousand dollars ($25,190,000)".

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Senate Bill No. 1.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 10, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Senate Bill No. 1, "An act making an appropriation for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccination program, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

I am confident that this bill provides the means for preventing major epidemics of infantile paralysis in this State. It appropriates $3,000,000 in state funds for poliomyelitis vaccine and the administration of an immunization program. This sum will provide approximately four million injections of this effective vaccine. These will be given to persons under 40, the age group with the highest incidence of this disease. While not all in that group can receive the recommended three innoculations, the program will induce many more of them to secure the full protection than would otherwise do so.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 1 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

GJK:hs

Senate Resolution No. 31

Relative to federal relief to poultry producers

WHEREAS, The poultry producers of this State annually provide a great amount of the meat consumed in this State; and

WHEREAS, This vital factor in our economy and well being is most gravely threatened with economic chaos due in large part to the fact that the raisers of poultry are required under present law to actually pay twice for the grain and other feed they purchase; first by way of taxes to maintain price supports on these commodities and second by paying the artificially raised prices for the products; and

WHEREAS, This is particularly harmful to the small family type poultry producer as evidenced by the almost catastrophic increase in the number of bankruptcies and other failures of these producers; and

WHEREAS, The small family type operation is traditionally the very basis for our American economy; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the President and Congress of the United States and the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States are respectfully memorialized to take immediate action to afford relief to the depressed poultry producers of California; and be further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the Secretary of Agriculture, and to each member of the Congress of the United States from California.

Senate Resolution No. 30

Relative to the enforcement of provisions of the Vehicle Code

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 458 of the Statutes of 1953, the Legislature added Section 531.1 to the Vehicle Code; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 421 of the Statutes of 1953, the Legislature added Section 525.3 to said code, and said code was further amended by Chapter 128 of the Statutes of 1955; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 810 of the Statues of 1955, the Legislature amended Section 525.1 of said code; and

WHEREAS, By the enactment of Chapter 809 of the Statutes of 1955, the Legislature added Section 618.5 to said code; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature was prompted to enact such laws and amendments thereto for the safety of the public by reason of dangerous situations upon the highways, caused by trucks and tractor-trailers "tailgating" on two-lane highways and driving in center lanes at speeds slower than the normal flow of traffic, caused by all motor vehicles driving in center lanes at speeds slower than the normal flow of traffic, and caused by the use of parking lights in lieu of head lamps in conditions of darkness, semidarkness, and lowered visibility conditions; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that by requiring trucks and vehicles pulling trailers to remain a distance of at least 500 feet to the rear of a preceding truck or vehicle pulling a trailer it would be possible for other users of the highways to pass in relative safety; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that requiring slow-moving trucks and tractor-trailers to remain in the right-hand lane for traffic on multiple-lane highways would prevent traffic moving at a higher rate of speed from having to make dangerous right-hand passes; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that the amendment to Section 525.1 would prevent all slow-moving vehicles from driving in center lanes on multiple-lane highways to permit safe passing by vehicles moving at a normal rate of speed; and

WHEREAS, It was the consensus of the Legislature that the prohibiting of use of parking lights in lieu of headlights would have required motorists to use the proper illumination under adverse visibility conditions; and

WHEREAS, It has come to the attention of the Legislature that the enactment and amendment of Sections 525.1, 525.3, 531.1, and 618.5 of the Vehicle Code has not prevented "tailgating", has not kept the slower-moving vehicles in the right hand lane of traffic, and has not prevented the use of parking lights in lieu of headlights, and the dangerous situations still exist to a large extent upon the highways in the State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Senate of the State of California, That the Commissioner of Highway Patrol of the State of California report to the Senate by April 15, 1957, as to the extent of enforcement of said Sections 525.1, 525.3, 531.1, and 618.5 of the Vehicle Code; the number of citations issued during the past calendar year for violations of said sections; the particular difficulties in enforcement of such sections, if any; and his recommendations for further legislation, if any is needed, to prevent the dangerous situations caused on highways by reason of violation of these sections of the law; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate transmit copies of this resolution to the Commissioner of the Highway Patrol.

Resolution read, and adopted on a motion by Senator Abshire.

The initative and referendum powers are hereby granted to the electors of the district to be exercised in relation to the enactment or rejectment of district ordinances in accordance with the procedure established by the laws of the State for the exercise of such powers in relation to counties.

SEC. 3. Section 13.1 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 13.1. The board may establish zones within the district to undertake any project or works of improvement. As used in Sections 13.1 to 13.9, inclusive, of this act, "works of improvement" includes, without limitation as to the generality thereof, construction of new works, and maintenance, repair, or reconstruction of existing works.

Proceedings for the establishment of a zone may be instituted by the board, by resolution, on its own initiative and shall be instituted by the board upon receipt of a petition requesting the formation of a zone and signed by not less than 25 percent of the owners of real property in the territory proposed to be included within the zone as shown by the last equalized assessment roll of the county. The petition may consist of any number of separate instruments, each of which must comply with all of the requirements of a petition except as to number of signatures.

The procedure for undertaking projects or works of improvement through the creation of zones is an alternate method for undertaking district projects and shall not affect or limit any other provisions of law authorizing or providing for undertaking such projects or works of improvement by the district as a whole.

SEC. 4. Section 13.4 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 13.4. Prior to the hearing on the proposal to establish any zone, the board shall direct the chief engineer of the district to make and file a report with the board which shall show:

(a) A general description of the type of project or works of improvement for which the zone is to be created.

(b) A general description of any lands, rights of way, easements, and property to be taken, acquired, or injured in carrying out [such work] the initial work project of such zone.

(c) [An] A general estimate of the cost of the initial project or works, including [an] a general estimate of the cost of any lands, rights of way, easements, and property proposed to be taken, acquired, or injured in carrying out said initial work, and also of all incidental expenses [and of all operating, maintenance, and other costs] which may be incurred in connection therewith.

The report shall be considered by the board which may either accept the report as filed or refer it back to the chief engineer of the district for consideration of such modification or change as the board deems necessary in the best interests of the district.

SEC. 5. Section 13.5 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 13.5. Within 30 days after receiving an engineer's report on the proposal to establish a zone, which report is satisfactory to the board, the board shall adopt a resolution of intention to establish a zone, which resolution shall contain the following:

(a) A statement that a zone is proposed to be established under the terms of this act and describing the boundaries of the territory proposed for inclusion in the zone.

(b) A statement as to the name proposed for the zone in substantially the following form: "Sonoma County Flood Control and Water Conservation District, Zone No. _____."

(c) A general description of the project or works of improvement for which the zone is to be created and [an] a general estimate of the rate of assessment which must be levied to secure funds for the project or works of improvement [and for the maintenance thereof] initially proposed, which will be levied annually upon all taxable real property within the zone.

(d) A statement of the estimated cost of the proposed initial project or works of improvement.

(e) A statement of the time and place for a public hearing at which the board will consider the establishing of a zone, which hearing shall be not less than 30 days nor more than 60 days after the adoption of the resolution.

SEC. 6. Section 35 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 35. The area of the district is subject to periodical floods during the rainy seasons precipitated by runoff of water through inadequate natural channels, stream beds and rivers, including but not limited to the waters of the Russian River and the streams tributary thereto, which [river is] waters are an important potential source of water for domestic, industrial and agricultural uses inside and outside the watersheds. During the dry season, said river would be without water if it were not for the foreign waters turned into the river. Recognizing this fact, the United States Army Engineers have made studies and recommendations for a proposed plan of improvement for flood control and allied purposes on the Russian River drainage basin located within the area of the district, and upon such recommendations, it is necessary that the district be zoned in such a manner to determine the varying benefits to property located within the district, of the percentage of costs to be split among the zones created, and that no general law contains provisions for the issuance of bonds and for the purpose of raising funds to assist in such work. The cost of adequate flood control and water conservation is beyond the means of the property owners and taxpayers of the district, and it is necessary to negotiate to obtain financial aid from the United States Government. It is recommended by the United States Government and it is desirable to immediately form a political entity to satisfactorily deal with the agency of the United States Government.

Investigation having shown conditions in the County of Sonoma to be peculiar to that county, it is hereby declared that a general law cannot be made applicable thereto and that the enactment of this special law is necessary for the conservation, development, control and use of said waters for the protection of life and property therein and for the public good."

Amendments read, and adopted.

Bill ordered printed, and re-referred to Committee on Local Government.

Senate Resolution No. 37, as Amended

Relative to the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards

WHEREAS, [The Director of the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards has proposed a plan of reorganization of the department] At least one plan has been proposed to effect a major reorganization of the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards, consolidating particular boards into a division to be created; and

WHEREAS, The Senate Interim Committee on Business and Professions has had no opportunity to investigate the plan of reorganization, but has received many informal protests from the heads of the licensing boards and from representatives of the professions licensed by said boards; and

JOINT LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURAL AND LIVESTOCK PROBLEMS
SENATE, CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE, January, 1957

To the President of the Senate, The Speaker of the Assembly, and Other Members of the Senate and Assembly

The Joint Legislative Interim Committee on Agricultural and Livestock Problems, initially created by S. C. R. No. 51 (Res. Ch. 141) Regular Session of 1945, reconstituted at succeeding regular sessions and presently functioning pursuant to the provisions of S. C. R. No. 85 (Res. Ch. 250) Regular Session of 1955, submits a report on the complexes of diseases called the Canker Disease of Stone Fruit. This report is designed to bring together all of the information which has been presented to the committee since the 1955 Regular Session of the Legislature on this complex of diseases. It is hoped that this brief report will serve to focus much-needed attention on a problem in basic research which for too long has been shunted aside in favor of more immediate research problems.

Although no formal action was taken, the committee has indicated that it would support any reasonable increase in the 1957-1958 budget request of the University of California for an expanded research program on this complex of diseases.

Respectfully submitted,

PAUL L. BYRNE, Chairman
Joint Interim Committee on Agricultural and Livestock Problems

Letter of transmittal ordered printed in the Journal.

Report ordered printed in the Appendix to the Journal.

Motion to Print Report

Senator Byrne moved that 1,500 additional copies of the report submitted by the Joint Legislative Interim Committee on Agricultural and Livestock Problems, be printed for distribution.

Motion carried.

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Senate Bill No. 1367.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 23, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Senate Bill No. 1367, "An act to add Section 30608.1 to the Streets and Highways Code, relating to the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This bill authorizes the Department of Public Works to expend $50,000 from the Revenue Fund of the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge for studies and other expenses in regard to necessary alterations and other work upon the bridge and its appurtenances so as to make this entire bridge usable for vehicular traffic. Proceedings are now pending before the Public Utilities Commission which may result in the abandonment of train service on the lower deck of this bridge. Before the portion of the lower deck now used for trains can be used for vehicles it must be paved, and changes made to the approaches and appurtenances of the bridge. It is urgent that the sum provided in the bill be immediately available so that upon final determination to abandon such train service, the Department of Public Works will be able to commence without delay the necessary work to make the entire bridge available to vehicular traffic.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 1367 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were offered:

By Senator Harold T. Johnson:

Senate Resolution No. 44

Relative to the Upper Feather River Service Area

WHEREAS, The Senate has amended Assembly Bill No. 100 to increase the amount of the appropriation therein by one million three hundred thousand dollars; and

WHEREAS, By reasons of the rules of the Legislature an amendment of said bill to specify that said amount should be expended for completion of the acquisition of lands, easements, and rights of way, relocation of utilities, and preparation of plans and specifications of five reservoirs in the Upper Feather River Service Area would have been improper and might have jeopardized the passage of Assembly Bill No. 100; and

WHEREAS, The Senate desires to express its intention to appropriate funds for the development of the Upper Feather River Service Area, and to earmark to the extent possible a portion of the Investment Fund for that purpose; and

WHEREAS, It is the intention of the Senate by this action to express its intent to protect fully the rights of the counties of origin by the development of upstream features of the California Water Plan; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That this house express its intention that the sum of one million three hundred thousand dollars ($1,300,000) appropriated by Assembly Bill No. 100 be held by the Department of Water Resources, subject to further appropriation by the Legislature, for the completion of the acquisition of lands, easements, and rights of way, relocation of utilities and preparation of plans and specifications for the construction of Antelope Valley Reservoir, Abbey Bridge Reservoir, Dixie Refuge Reservoir, Frenchman Reservoir, and Grizzly Valley Reservoir, all in the Upper Feather River Service Area; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate transmit a copy of this resolution to the Speaker of the Assembly of the State of California, the Director of Finance, and the Director of Water Resources.

Resolution read, and referred to Committee on Rules.

By Senators Donnelly, Thompson, Dolwig, and Robert I. McCarthy:

Senate Resolution No. 45

Relative to Federal Aid to Del Puerto Road

WHEREAS, There are no east-west highways between the San Joaquin Valley and the seacoast between the Altamont Pass and the Pacheco Pass, a distance of over 50 miles; and

WHEREAS, Such a crossing would be of inestimable value as an escape route should there be a need for dispersal of the citizens of this State concentrated on the heavily populated peninsula below San Francisco in case of an atomic attack or other invasion of our shores; and

WHEREAS, The Del Puerto Canyon offers an excellent route for such a highway to connect the cities of Patterson and San Jose, and be of great economic benefit to the coast counties and the northern part of the San Joaquin Valley; and

WHEREAS, In addition to the national defense benefits of such a highway it would also contribute substantial economic benefit to the areas involved; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the President and Congress of the United States are respectfully memorialized to provide for federal funds to construct the Del Puerto Canyon Road between Patterson and San Jose, California; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and Representative of the State of California in the Congress of the United States.

Resolution read, and referred to Committee on Rules.

By Senator Regan:

Senate Resolution No. 46

Relating to the protection of fish

WHEREAS, Fishing in the waters of this State is a constitutionally protected right long protected by the laws of this State; and

WHEREAS, The tremendous value of fishing and other allied outdoor recreation can hardly be over emphasized in these troubled times especially with the constantly expanding metropolitan nature of our civilization; and

WHEREAS, It is this ever expanding metropolitan aspect of our modern day living which has required the State to attempt to coordinate and regulate the water needs and resources of this State; and

WHEREAS, To fail to give full recognition to the recreational need for water in the development of the water resources of this State would deprive future generations of a God given heritage; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Department of Water Resources, the State Water Rights Board, State Water Board, and the Department of Fish and Game are directed to coordinate their efforts and to take all steps necessary to insure the continuance of sufficient water for recreational purposes and especially sufficient water to properly maintain and protect the anadromous fish and their spawning grounds and also the waterfowl and other wildlife dependent on water; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to transmit copies of this resolution to the Department of Water Resources, State Water Rights Board, State Water Board, and the Department of Fish and Game.

Resolution read, and referred to Committee on Rules.

By Senator Coombs:

Senate Resolution No. 47

Relative to the bridge across the Sacramento River on State Highway Route 50

WHEREAS, The I Street Bridge across the Sacramento River from the point of the intersection of the Roseville turnoff to the westerly end of the bridge is highly congested and in need of widening; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That that portion of the upper deck of the I Street Bridge from the point of the intersection with the Roseville turnoff to the westerly end of said bridge should be constructed as a highway of at least three lanes; and be it further

BEEK: Pursuant to Section 229 of the State Water Code, there is transmitted herewith the report to the California Legislature and the regional water pollution control boards on "Quality of Surface Waters in California, 1951-54." This report was prepared by the Department of Water Resources.

This report features analyses of water from about 140 sampling points, collected monthly from 86 streams and four lakes during the period April 1951 through December 1954. The objective of the program is to acquire data on the quality of California streams needed by the Department of Water Resources in implementing The California Water Plan, and by the regional water pollution control boards in establishing waste discharge requirements for protection of surface waters in California.

Very truly yours,

HARVEY O. BANKS, Director of Water Resources

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 25, 1957

To the Senate and Assembly of the Legislature of California:

In the few hours remaining before the recess, you will have for decision a vital question involving the future development of California.

There are certain facts which in my judgment you should have as members of the Legislature when you make your decision on the water questions now before you.

It appears highly probable that if an appropriation is not made now for the initial construction in connection with the Oroville Dam, the work cannot be sufficiently under way before winter. If the urgency appropriation is not passed now we may lose one entire construction season.

The construction of the Oroville Dam will take approximately seven years to complete, if there are no serious interferences of any kind. If the work is commenced now, flood control can become a reality by 1962.

If any delay intervenes, it will be later than 1962 before the people of this State can be protected from floods.

If for any reason the State does not proceed with the project, and even assuming that the Federal Government would be immediately willing to undertake it, it would be five years before federal plans could be drawn and construction could begin, and probably ten years before there would be effective control against floods. I am informed that the constructing agencies of the Federal Government have made no studies of development of the Feather River since the late 1940's.

The failure to appropriate money forthwith to commence the construction of the Oroville Dam will jeopardize federal flood control aid on that dam and will also unquestionably jeopardize federal cooperation or aid in the development of the San Luis Project.

The Congress of the United States and the federal departments are fully aware that California can well afford to assume its responsibility in water development. The President emphasized in his recent message to the Congress that the states must assume a greater share of the over-all financial burden in water development if they expect to continue receiving federal assistance.

We must be realistic and conclude that Congress is not going to be enthusiastic about appropriating money, unless we do so first.

The California Supreme Court decision announced yesterday, which invalidates the applicability of the 160-acre limitation and the utility type contracts which the Bureau of Reclamation has heretofore written, may well have the effect of delaying further reclamation appropriations for some years until the questions raised by the decision are resolved.

Failure to act now on the Feather River Project appropriation will endanger financing and construction of other needed water development projects from Humboldt and Modoc Counties to Kern and San Diego Counties. Northern California needs water projects just as badly as does Southern California. I point out also that it is equally as important to the interests of Northern California and the areas of origin to solve the water rights problems which confront us, as it is to the interests of Southern California. The protection which the present statutes afford to the so-called counties of origin for their ultimate water requirements is entirely tenuous and could be completely negated by failure of the Legislature on just one occasion to renew the exemption from diligence under the state filings.

Every day's delay increases the risk of further loss of life through dangerous floods and further imperils the welfare of millions of Californians because of inadequate water supply.

If the Legislature is to meet its clear obligation with reference to our immediate water problems, action must be taken today in the few remaining hours before the recess.

Due to the procedural difficulties of resolving disagreement between the houses, I recommend that the subject be placed before a conference comittee at the earliest possible moment, or that you take such other course of action as, in your wisdom, will assure the prompt passage of the urgency appropriation.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Assembly Bill No. 615.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 17, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 615, "An act making an appropriation in augmentation of the appropriation in Item 139 of the Budget Act of 1956 for support of the Department of the California Highway Patrol, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

We are all aware of the alarming increase in traffic accidents. The rapid rise in the number of persons killed, disabled and injured through the operation of motor vehicles is frightening. Remedial measures must immediately be taken, and one of the best means of securing more careful driving is to increase the patrolling of our highways. In the 1957-58 Budget provision is made for 370 positions above the present uniformed strength of the California Highway Patrol. This is the maximum increment which can be made in the time available. It will bring the total force to 2,434. In order to expedite this urgently needed increase in the patrol, this bill appropriates $951,958 from the Motor Vehicle Fund for the immediate employment of 110 of these new uniformed men. The enactment of this bill in January will enable the earliest recruitment, training and assignment to duty of the additional uniformed members of the patrol.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Assembly Bill No. 100.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 25, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 100, "An act making an appropriation for the construction and relocation of the railroad and state highway in the vicinity of the site of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir, and declaring the urgency thereof to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This bill appropriates $26,490,000 from the Investment Fund to the Department of Water Resources for expenditure for the construction and relocation of the Western Pacific Railroad tracks and State Highway Route 21 in the vicinity of the site of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir. This project has already been authorized and its feasibility established. Previous state appropriations have also provided for the preparation of the plans and specifications, and for the acquisition of the site, for this dam. By enacting this bill in January, the State will gain from six to nine months in the construction schedule of this greatly needed project. This time is critical. There is an urgent need for water in the lower San Joaquin Valley, in San Diego County and elsewhere. Any delay will also unnecessarily increase the risk of future loss of life and property, such as was experienced during the 1955 floods. Further, we are presently seeking a federal appropriation of $100,000,000 on account of the flood control which this multiple-purpose project will provide. The firm commitment by the State to its construction under this bill should enable us to secure the maximum federal contribution, which will be of great aid in this State undertaking. For these reasons, it is imperative that the additional funds provided by this bill be made immediately available.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 100 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

STATEMENT OF VOTE BY SENATOR KRAFT RE ASSEMBLY BILL NO. 100

I cannot in good conscience vote for this bill when my own district—an area of deficiency—has been given no assurance that our rights will have consideration. All we have asked is that the north be willing to sit down with us and work out the critically important issue of water rights. This we have been denied.

FRED H. KRAFT

STATEMENT BY SENATOR JAMES A. COBEY FOR THE SENATE JOURNAL OF JANUARY 25, 1957, REGARDING HIS VOTE ON ASSEMBLY BILL NO. 100

"I voted in favor of Assembly Bill No. 100 because it involved an implied compromise. Although the bill appropriates nothing for the Upper Feather projects and its entire appropriation goes to site preparatory work for the Oroville Dam, the export project, it does, in amount, include the $1,300,000 for the upper or local projects and such amount, if unexpended, may subsequently be reappropriated by the Legislature to the upper or local projects. If such action is subsequently taken, the fundamental principle of simultaneous actual provision for export and local projects is observed.

STATEMENT OF VOTE BY SENATOR RICHARDS RE ASSEMBLY BILL NO. 100

(Permission from Chair obtained to explain vote and to exceed word limitation.)

I voted "No" on this bill, because there is no alternative. There can be no unified water development in California unless and until (1) all areas of the State, including the areas of water deficiency (which embody the population centers of this state, as well as its richest agricultural and most productive industrial districts) are concurrently protected; or (2) at the very least, indications of legislative intent (in both houses of this Legislature) must demonstrate an active willingness on the part of origin representatives to work honestly with the rest of us in settling the important water-rights questions, which can only be settled by the adoption in this session of a constitutional amendment, and which must be settled if large sums of public money are to be spent for the benefit of all the people of the State.

This bill, in its present form, and as changed by this Senate, does not provide concurrent protection, and (even more importantly) legislative intent of a northern majority in the Senate clearly now indicates (contrary to all earlier assurances) a complete unwillingness to negotiate existing area differences, unwillingness to settle the vital water-rights problems, unwillingness to vote for a constitutional amendment (in spite of a desperate need for such an amendment), unwillingness to protect or even seek to protect the important areas of deficiency (including the 5½ million people of Los Angeles County). Such Senators have clearly demonstrated a willingness only to obtain, at total state expense, those parts of the state water projects which are of interest and of benefit to their own areas alone, irrespective of total state need beyond their own areas.

At the Governor's Conference last December, and at all water conferences and legislative committee hearings since that time, our people indicated a clear willingness to vote up to $25,190,000 for Oroville, and to work for upstream development, flood control, and additional projects which the north wants, so long as they work with us in the attainment of a necessary constitutional amendment and thus the settlement of water rights, so that the areas of water deficiency may be reasonably assured of obtaining at least a fair portion of the benefit from projects which they are being asked to finance at tremendous state expense. This week the origin Senators insisted that $1,300,000 more be added to the Administration's urgency bill, over our objections, without any showing of urgency for this addition, and contrary to the Administration's own earlier and consistent representations to the rest of us and the rest of the State. This extra demand was for one limited northern area alone, and of no possible benefit at this time to the rest of the State. The majority of the Assembly has taken the same position on this issue which I have consistently advocated. But, because an impasse was reached in the Senate, we recently agreed, in spite of our strong objections to what we considered to be unreasonable financial demands by origin Senators, to go along even with the added appropriation (in the interest of saving the basic bill—which was designed to get our State moving on the Oroville project—which is a project of no direct benefit to my county, but which is needed in the total state plan—and would be a worthy project if it is not unfairly used as a lever by one area against the rest, and if total reasonable state development is contemplated and executed). We thus proposed to go along with even this demand, if the origin representatives would write into this bill their evidence of good faith in working with us, now and in the future, toward the obtaining of the necessary constitutional amendment (which we had been earlier assured they would support, but upon which grave doubts had this week arisen because of recent legislative indications demonstrated in the Senate handling of this bill). Even this they refused to do. Therefore, my people are left with no protection (none in this bill—none in the legislative assurances surrounding it—and none for proposed future parallel appropriations). Without such protection for the areas of water deficiency, I must oppose this bill, and any other tax money appropriation under parallel circumstances.

I deem it in the interest of simple justice to Southern California and all other water-deficient areas of the state that the bill must be opposed in its present form, and either killed outright (as in the case of the Williams bill earlier this session), or ultimately sent to Free Conference in a final effort to bring back a mutually equitable approach to sound development, commencing now, of water, as a natural resource of this State, in the interest of all the people of California.

An additional reason for my "No" vote was thus to cover this alternative legislative development last mentioned: so that Los Angeles County (and I, as their representative in the Senate), can have our point of view fully represented in such Free Conference.

RICHARD RICHARDS

STATEMENT OF VOTE BY SENATOR BEARD RE ASSEMBLY BILL NO. 100

I have read the statement of vote by Senator Richards regarding Assembly Bill No. 100 and I concur therewith.

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Assembly Bill No. 39.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 10, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 39, "An act making an appropriation for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccination program, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

I am confident that this bill provides the means for preventing major epidemics of infantile paralysis in his State. It appropriates $3,000,000 in state funds for poliomyelitis vaccine and the administration of an immunization program. This sum will provide approximately four million injections of this effective vaccine. These will be given to persons under 40, the age group with the highest incidence of this disease. While not all in that group can receive the recommended three inoculations, the program will induce many more of them to secure the full protection than would otherwise do so.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 39 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

(Senate Resolution No. 34, 1956)

Members of the Committee

Letter of Transmittal

Hon. Harold J. Powers, President of the Senate and Members of the Senate

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 147 of the 1955 General Session and pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 34 of the 1956 Regular Session, your Interim Committee on Correctional Institutions herewith submits its report.

Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT I. McCARTHY, Chairman
JAMES A. COBEY
NELSON S. DILWORTH

Report

Pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 147, adopted May 31, 1955, the Senate Interim Committee on Correctional Institutions was created and the following Senators were appointed members thereof: Robert I. McCarthy, Chairman; James A. Cobey, Nelson S. Dilworth, Fred S. Farr, and Donald L. Grunsky.

Pursuant to Senate Resolution No. 34, adopted April 3, 1956, a subcommittee was created extending the scope of the Senate Interim Committee on Correctional Institutions to include probation and parole, and on April 17, 1956, Senator Fred S. Farr was appointed chairman of said subcommittee.

This committee submits the following report:

The Correctional Industries Revolving Fund was created by Chapter 84, Statutes of 1945, to constitute a permanent revolving fund in the sum of not less than $730,000 to be used to meet the expenses necessary in the purchasing of materials and equipment, salaries, and cost of administration of the work program of the Department of Corrections in the prisons and institutions under its jurisdiction. This fund was made up in the 1945 act by a consolidation of a number of separate revolving funds. Moneys received from the rendering of services or the sale of products are paid to the State Treasurer monthly and credited to the fund.

The Department of Corrections has been developing a well-rounded work program, based on production of commodities for use by state agencies and the various political subdivisions of the State in accordance with numerous statutory sections regulating these programs.

The Correctional Industries Commission was created by Chapter 1137, Statutes of 1947. This commission consists of the Director of Corrections, who acts as chairman, and six members appointed by the Governor. Two members represent organized labor, two represent industry, one represents agriculture, and one represents the general public. The commission is empowered to recommend productive industrial and agricultural enterprises in the prisons and institutions of the department and determine the advisability and suitability of establishing, expanding, diminishing, or discontinuing any industrial or agricultural enterprise involving a gross annual production of more than $25,000 value but less than $350,000 value and authorize or prohibit such activity. No enterprise involving a gross annual production value of more than $25,000 can be established unless and until a hearing concerning the enterprise has been had before the Correctional Industries Commission. Public notice must be given prior to the hearing.

No enterprise subject to the jurisdiction of the Correctional Industries Commission except the manufacture of motor vehicle license plates or similar devices for the State Department of Motor Vehicles, and the production of cotton cloth made from cotton produced and purchased in California can be conducted beyond the maximum gross annual production figure of $350,000.

Each prisoner who is engaged in production work in any state prison or institution under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections as a part of the prison work program, may receive for his work such compensation as the Director of Corrections with the approval of the Department of Finance shall determine. Such compensation shall be in accordance with a graduated schedule based on quantity and quality of work performed and the skill required for its performance. In no event shall such compensation exceed ten cents ($0.10) per hour. Compensation earned is credited to the account of the prisoner. Charges for inmate wages are made to the various factory and farm enterprises on the basis of the labor distribution shown on inmate time reports.

Consolidated financial statements covering the entire operations of the Correctional Industries Revolving Fund are prepared on a quarterly basis and are submitted to the Budgets and Accounts and Audits Division of the Department of Finance. For management purposes, a special quarterly profit and loss statement is prepared showing the net profit after selling and administrative expenses have been allocated to the various enterprises. Both reports are submitted to the Correctional Industries Commission for review and analysis.

Budgetary accounting is maintained on a fiscal year and a cash flow basis. Proprietary accounting is on an accrual basis, comparable with accepted commercial practices; and is on a calendar year basis compatible with the natural processing or growing cycles.

Detailed cost records are maintained in each institution and encompass manufacturing cost accounting as well as farm enterprise accounting methods. The accounting system is flexible and adaptable to many types of industries and to farming without impairing the preparation of consolidated statements.

Correctional Industries is essentially a manufacturing entity, operating much in the same manner as private industry with respect to requirements for buildings, equipment, raw materials, and skilled factory supervisors. It must, however, function within all of the laws, rules and regulations as provided for all other state agencies. Thereby this fund does not have the flexibility of execution of business transactions as found in private industry. Restrictive rules apply to securing personnel, purchasing, operations, and sales; insofar that the lengthy procedures required of all state agencies must be followed.

This program must also operate within a monetary limit of production of $350,000 per year, in accordance with Section 5091, Penal Code. This provides protection against undue competition for any single commercial enterprise; however, as a general rule, creates a more uneconomical operation for the State because of the limited size of each factory and the necessity for wide diversification of products.

The Department of Corrections is authorized to cause the prisoners in the state prisons to be employed in the rendering of services and in the production and manufacture of such articles, materials, and supplies that are needed by the State or any of its political subdivisions. Section 2873 of the Penal Code reads in part as follows:

> "All articles, material, and supplies, herein authorized to be produced or manufactured under Sections 2701 and 2702 shall be purchased from the state prisons of this State by the agencies therein mentioned and at the prices fixed in the manner herein provided, except such articles, materials, and supplies as the state prisons are unable to furnish * * *"

Correctional industries is one of the positive rehabilitative outgrowths of modern penology as developed in the correctional institutions. The program provides an opportunity for realistic training and work experiences that can be carried on by an inmate when he is released from prison. Opportunities exist for training in the metal trades, furniture manufacture, cabinet work, food processing, engineering, tool and die making, sewing, dry cleaning, cotton mill operations, dairying, hog raising, farming, and many other fields in which there is an opportunity for placement.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956, correctional industries operated 27 industrial shops and factories plus 23 farming and ranching enterprises distributed among seven institutions, and employed between 2654 and 2934 inmates at various times throughout the year. This was from 15.3 percent to 19.2 percent of the total prison population. The fluctuation was caused by those industries that have seasonal peaks and low periods of employment such as the canneries and many of the ranch activities.

A breakdown of the industries at the different institutions is as follows:

San Quentin Prison—Navy cleaning contract; furniture; cotton textile mill; tobacco factory; dairy and hog ranch.

California Womens Prison at Corona—Clothing factory.

Chino Prison—Cannery; furniture; slaughterhouse; clothing factory; dairy and hog ranch; field crops.

Tracy Prison—Fabrication shop; steel furniture; mattress and bedding factory; dairy ranch; hog ranch; and field crops.

Soledad Prison—Clothing; jute mill; dairy ranch; hog ranch; field crops.

A breakdown of the number of inmates occupied in industries or otherwise, is as follows:

2,350—Industrial enterprises.
1,600—Camp assignments.
1,100—Hospital; medical; clerical duties.
1,100—Guidance centers.
1,154—Idle people.
960—Not able to work (physical or bad behavior).

In further support of the industries program employers and union officials have been invited to form trade advisory committees. The members are appointed by the Director of Corrections under general policies determined in consultation with the Correctional Industries Commission. Those selected for these trade advisory committees are prominent and successful executives of industry and labor, and they contribute their time to improve the functioning of our correctional industries.

The members of these advisory committees contribute in three ways: first, in practical advice on designs and standards of technical equipment and "knowhow" so that the men leaving the institutions may be capable of adapting themselves to modern equipment and methods; second, through their direct aid and influence, the absorption by industry of paroled and discharged men is accelerated; third, and most important, is the service of these advisers as influence centers in improving the public relations and education that more people may become more aware of the end purposes of the correctional institutions program and its beneficial results, both human and economic.

The purpose of the correctional industries program is to aid in the development of work programs for persons in the custody of the Director of Corrections which will prevent idleness and contribute to their rehabilitation, training, and support with minimum competition with private industry and free labor, and to establish and facilitate better understanding between the department and the general public.

In order to obtain a detailed report on the fiscal operations involved in industrial activities at State Correctional Institutions, the committee retained L. H. Penny & Co., Certified Public Accountants, who made the following recommendations:

(a) Accurate records of inmates' time and wages applicable to the slaughterhouse should be maintained. This procedure would make possible a more effective comparison with a commercial enterprise and provide the director with an index to the inmates' productivity.

(b) It should be noted that more than three times as many hours of inmate labor were charged to the slaughterhouse operation as was estimated as having been actually worked. Further investigation should be undertaken to determine whether this condition exists in other enterprises at the prison.

(c) It appeared from our discussion with certain employees relative to the furniture factory that production and inventory controls recommended by the Audits Division of the Department of Finance had not been completely installed.

(d) In view of the results of the slaughterhouse examination, it seems desirable to get more information as to the operation of the furniture factory relative to inmates' wages, comparisons with commercial industries, etc.

The following action was taken on the above recommendations:

(a) Each institution which has been operating a slaughterhouse has also been operating a hog ranch. In order to arrive at a profit or loss figure for either operation the two enterprises have always been considered on a combined operation basis. Both inmates and supervisors have worked intermittently in both operations. The managers have all been alerted to keep a better allocation of time and a marked improvement in this type of allocation has been observed in the past year.

(b) It is difficult to allocate inmate time too finely in such an operation and it is questionable, if it is advisable, spending too much time and money in determining the accuracy of such a small expenditure, represented by the cost of inmate time, in relationship to other costs.

(c) This was accomplished in 1955 and the report of the Audits Division of the Department of Finance for that year indicated that favorable action has been taken on this recommendation.

(d) Other factory operations at San Quentin have been examined and accurate records of inmates' time and wages have been maintained. The allocation of time and wages in these operations does not create the problem that existed in the hog ranch and slaughterhouse operations because they are enterprises which in accepted trade practice are carried on as separate units.

Report of the Senate Subcommittee on Probation and Parole of the Senate Interim Committee on Correctional Institutions

(Senate Resolution No. 34, 1956)

Members of the Committee

Senator Fred S. Farr, Chairman; Senators Robert I. McCarthy and Nelson S. Dilworth

The Senate Subcommittee on Probation and Parole of the Senate Interim Committee on Correctional Institutions submits the following special report, conclusions and recommendations.

The subcommittee appointed by Senator Robert I. McCarthy, Chairman of the Senate Interim Committee on Correctional Institutions, consisted of Senator Fred S. Farr, Chairman; Senators Nelson S. Dilworth and Robert I. McCarthy.

The committee held a one-day hearing on Friday, May 25, 1956, in Monterey County, the morning session at Salinas and the afternoon session at Monterey. Senators McCarthy and Farr attended the Monterey County meetings and Assemblyman Pattee was invited to sit with the committee.

The matters under consideration by the committee were two, namely:

(1) The need for state assistance to county probation departments.

(2) The need for state assistance to local juvenile forestry and ranch camps.

Among the witnesses appearing before the committee were Roy C. Votaw, Deputy Director of Field Services, California Youth Authority, A. LaMont Smith, Executive Officer, California Board of Corrections, Austin H. McCormick, Professor of Criminology at the University of California and Chairman of the Governor's Special Study Commission on Correctional Facilities and Services, Judge James Jeffery, Judge of the Salinas Municipal Court, Mrs. Jack Patton, President, Monterey and Santa Cruz Counties District P.T.A., John Kelly, Probation Officer of Monterey County, Walter Mansfield, Monterey County Administrator, Miss Gladys Stone, Monterey County Superintendent of Schools, Charles Simpson, Chief of Police of Monterey, Virginia Mitchell, Family Service Agency, Monterey, Mayor George T. Cunningham, Mayor of Seaside, Dr. Freidy Heisler, M.D.

The witnesses, who were invited to appear before the committee because of their competence and interest in the field, were all in agreement that probation services are an integral part of our court system throughout the State of California.

The witnesses emphasized the importance of a well trained staff and a coordinated county probation program, as an important factor in lowering the recidivism rate and speeding up the rehabilitation of both adult and juvenile delinquents.

It appeared from the testimony that many of the persons committed to Department of Corrections and Youth Authority could be cared for in their own communities if local probation programs were strengthened.

Over the years the Legislature has been increasing the duties of local probation officers. The Juvenile Court Law and Adult Probation laws were passed in 1903. Under Juvenile Court Law, the probation department assists the Court in both delinquency and neglect cases. Legal abandonments are also handled by probation departments as well as juvenile cases. Probation departments must also prepare reports and recommendations in step-parent adoptions and child custody cases. In most counties, the probation department arranges for the placement of mentally deficient minors and adults in State Homes. In 1951 the Legislature passed the Reciprocal Support Act which makes it possible through civil proceedings to collect support money from absent fathers, as well as assisting in the collection of money under court orders for restitution. These responsibilities are assumed by probation departments.

In the past probation services were chiefly used by the Superior Courts; however, now the use of the services of probation departments by the lower courts is on the increase.

The scope and the work of probation departments has increased tremendously. Financing the program, however, has been left entirely to the counties except for the boys' camp program which receives partial State aid in the form of State matching funds for operational expenses. Because of the number of other responsibilities delegated to probation departments, contrary to popular belief, less than one-half of the total workload of probation departments relates to delinquency.

The work of a probation department to be effective must be integrated with other county departments, local school districts, police agencies and various state agencies. All of this can only be accomplished with adequate staff, good financing and strong leadership.

There appears to be a tremendous shortage of properly trained people to do probation work, and in particular those with special training are scarce. This is largely due to excessive caseloads and inadequate remuneration, according to the witnesses who testified before the Committee.

In California the number of probation officers varies from county to county. Over one-half of all of the probation officers in the State are in Los Angeles County while one county employs a part-time grave digger as its probation officer. Twenty counties of our State have one man probation departments. The average adult supervision caseload was 205 cases. For juvenile caseloads, the state-wide average was 95 cases. The maximum caseload per probation officer recommended by the National Probation and Parole Association is fifty cases.

Many persons committed to juvenile and adult correctional institutions could have been safely and more rapidly rehabilitated had they been placed under probation supervision. From a cost standpoint, the average annual cost to supervise a person on probation is $125, as compared with from $1,000 to $1,500 per year to keep a man or woman in prison, not to mention the capital outlay estimated to be between $10,000 and $15,000 per prison cell. The cost of keeping juvenile offenders in correctional institutions is even higher, being approximately $2,400 per individual for boys and $3,600 per capita for delinquent girls, not including construction costs.

A great number of adult offenders sent to prison leave behind them dependent children who apply for and receive state aid as needy children, and other dependents are frequently found on local relief rolls, all of which is a further cost to the community. Under properly supervised probation, many of these offenders could remain at home with their families, be regularly employed, and continue to supply the necessary support.

There appears to be a wide variation in the use of probation in California. In 1954, for example, of 200,000 offenders known to the police, there were approximately 17,000 felony defendants convicted, approximately 70 percent by a plea of guilty. 45 percent of those convicted were admitted to probation. However, from county to county in 1954 there was a wide variation in the number of felony offenders admitted to probation, ranging from 10.7 percent in Madera County to 62.7 percent in Butte County. Approximately 45 percent of such felony conviction offenders were in 1954 admitted to probation in Los Angeles County, in Alameda County approximately 50 percent, in Contra Costa County approximately 58 percent and in Monterey County approximately 56 percent. Of the juveniles, in Monterey County, for example, 49.6 percent of the boys and 43.3 percent of the girls were admitted to probation. Also the fluctuation from year to year was noted within one single county in Southern California where one year it would admit a very small percentage of felony convicted defendants to probation, while the following year a very large percentage would be granted probation, depending largely on the rotation system of the court and the attitude of the various judges towards probation. The above statistics clearly indicate a lack of uniformity of procedure among California counties and a lack of uniformity within certain counties from year to year.

It was the considered opinion of qualified witnesses that many boys and girls are needlessly committed to the state institutions because their home county does not operate a 24-hour probation camp or ranch school. Strong statements were made of a need to try our youths first on probation, or if this appears to be unwise, then by placement in such a county "half-way house" such as a ranch or forestry camp properly constructed, equipped and staffed to rehabilitate the youthful offender locally near friends and families.

Comparisons of operational costs for such camps, because of variation in treatment programs and geographical location, is difficult. Generally speaking, the cost is about one-half that of maintenance in a state institution.

The serious problem of detecting and treating at an early stage the critical emotionally disturbed child came to the committee's attention. The failure to recognize and to treat such children has cost the taxpayers enormous sums in the cost of crime, not to mention the loss to society in the form of murder and other serious offenses committed by the emotionally disturbed. More local diagnostic and treatment facilities to render preventative services appeared to be needed in the juvenile court and the school system in many counties in California in order to spot and treat these children as the danger signals appear.

Many of the problems outlined by the witnesses are common in other states. Both New York and Michigan have provided state-wide standards for new probation officers and by means of matching state funds for the salaries of new probation officers have made remarkable improvement in probation services.

Probation is a method of correctional supervision including specific conditions entered into through an agreement between an individual and the court. It is not a form of leniency or escape from punishment, but is a restrictive treatment procedure which offers protection to society and rehabilitation for the offender. It originated in the United States about one hundred years ago, and was established in California some fifty years later. In California, it is now primarily a county-supported function, although operating as an important adjunct of the superior and juvenile courts. The law now provides that the Department of Youth Authority may establish and recommend appropriate standards to the counties.

The committee found that the essence of good probation was the gathering of full data by trained case workers, by probation officers, and by school authorities, with reference to family, school and employment history, as well as that of any previous delinquent conduct. The court on the basis of these facts makes a decision taking into account to an increasing degree the welfare of society and the likelihood of rehabilitation of the individual under probation supervision. The all-important factor is adequate supervision by a properly qualified probation officer.

Summary of Findings and Recommendations

The findings of the committee are concerned with what appeared to be the more vital issues.

I. Personnel

There exists a need for the State to share with the counties the cost of lowering probation officer caseloads in order that the full rehabilitative potential of this treatment procedure can be realized. It is therefore recommended that:

A program for state matching funds be established which will enable counties to employ additional probation officers as required to meet minimum standards for the investigation and supervision of probationers.

It is believed that Senate Bill No. 642 would accomplish the above objectives. See Appendix "A."

II. County Camps for Juveniles

The interests of the individual and the State are best served by custodial care as near to the youth's home and family as possible, restricting commitments to the State to carefully selected cases not responsive to local treatment. It is therefore recommended that:

A state subsidy program be adopted which would provide a portion of the capital outlay necessary for the construction of county camps for juveniles, exclusive of site acquisition and architects' fees.

It is believed that Senate Bill No. 659 would accomplish the above objectives. See Appendix "B."

Senate Resolution No. 56

Relative to passing of Dorman James Dobbas

WHEREAS, On Sunday, December 9, 1956, the State of California suffered a severe loss in the death of Dorman James Dobbas, widely known and highly esteemed resident of Placer County; and

WHEREAS, Dorman James Dobbas, popularly known as "Jim" Dobbas was born in Sacramento on June 11, 1905, attended school in Placer County and spent practically his entire life as a resident of Auburn, California, interesting himself in public affairs and community development at an early age, was a member of the 20-30 Club, Rotary, Auburn Area Chamber of Commerce and Placer County Chamber of Commerce; and

WHEREAS, Jim Dobbas was conspicuous among his fellow citizens for his energy, his diligence and his capacity to get results in all of those community projects which elicited his interest; and

WHEREAS, Jim Dobbas was particularly noted for his activity in the development of Highway 40 and in preparations for the 1960 Winter Olympics; and

WHEREAS, In addition to his fame as a community builder and leader of civic enterprises, his marked capacity for making friends and securing the cooperation of civic and political leaders won for him the respect and high esteem of his community; and

WHEREAS, His death at the age of fifty-one years is deeply deplored, and comes as a severe shock not only to the friends of Jim Dobbas but to all public-spirited people of Northern California; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That it deplores the passing of this fine public-spirited citizen, and desires by this resolution to convey to the family and friends of Jim Dobbas its most profound sympathy in their loss, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate be and he is hereby directed to have prepared suitably engrossed copies of this resolution and forward the same to his wife, Mrs. Dorman James Dobbas, his son, James B. Dobbas, and other bereaved members of the family of the late Dorman James Dobbas.

By Senator Sutton:

Senate Resolution No. 57

Relative to the discontinuance of beacon at Glenn County Willows Airport

WHEREAS, The Senate is informed that the Civil Aeronautics Authority proposes to discontinue Beacon Site 12, San Francisco-Seattle Airway, located at Glenn County Willows Airport, which is the only all-weather airport on the airline within forty-six miles; and

WHEREAS, We are further advised that notice of such proposed action was not given to the County of Glenn, so that no opportunity was afforded the local people and their representatives to voice objections to such action or to submit facts in justification of the need of such beacon; and

WHEREAS, We are informed that the proposal of the CAA to transfer this beacon to the county would be wholly unsatisfactory as the county has no trained personnel to maintain such beacon and because this beacon renders emergency service to aircraft over an area far beyond Glenn County; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Civil Aeronautics Authority is respectfully requested to reconsider their proposed action with respect to this beacon, and that they extend to the local community a reasonable opportunity to present their views on this subject before final action is taken; and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Senate is directed to forward copies of this resolution to the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and to each Senator and Representative from California in the Congress of the United States.

Resolution read, and adopted on a motion by Senator Sutton.

WHEREAS, Judy Busch is now residing in Southern California where she is under contract with 20th Century-Fox, and

WHEREAS, Judy Busch is a natural, unassuming, teenager, receiving no special treatment from her two sisters, Janice and Jill, nor her brother, James, Jr.; and

WHEREAS, Senator James Busch is extremely and rightly proud of his talented daughter and is glad to be known as Judy Busch's father; now, therefore, be it

WHEREAS, The Secretary of State, by law, is the custodian of the public archives of the State; and

WHEREAS, The Secretary of State, under statutory requirements beginning with "An act concerning the public archives" passed January 5, 1850, which was the first law enacted by the First Session of the California Legislature sitting in San Jose in 1849-1850, is made responsible for the preservation of materials deposited in the State Archives; and

WHEREAS, The ravages of usage and time now threaten the total destruction of a large number of the historically valuable records deposited in the State Archives, should their present condition be allowed to obtain; and

WHEREAS, These records include such irreplaceable items as the original enrollment of the Constitution of 1849, the minutes of the 1849 Constitutional Convention Committees, the manuscript sheets of the 1852 State census, the Capitol Commissioners papers, the Indian War papers, the Joaquin Murieta papers, the manuscript returns of the State's first elections in 1849, including the returns from the gold mining camps; the records requiring immediate rehabilitation totalling approximately 15,000 square feet; and

WHEREAS, The perishable quality of these records may be counteracted by application of restorative and preservative processes developed and perfected by the National Archives, Library of Congress, and the State Library of Virginia; and

WHEREAS, The importance of these technical developments has been manifested by the recent introduction of equipment to permit their utilization in the rehabilitation of historically valuable records in the archival agencies of Delaware, Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee as well as in such federal agencies as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the National Archives, and the Library of Congress; and

WHEREAS, Among the States of the Union, California possesses a historical heritage second to none; and

WHEREAS, The records in the State Archives uniquely document a highly significant, instructive, as well as colorful, part of this heritage; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate of the State of California, That the Senate acknowledges the importance of safeguarding the archival records of the State and recommends that appropriate action be taken at this session to provide for the restoration and preservation of these records that the interests of all future generations might be adequately protected and served.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 9
By Harry Lee Senter

A house resolution of condemnation and protest against oppressive usurpation of power by the Supreme Court of the United States, calling upon the several states of the Union and the Congress of the United States to bring to an end this tyrannical usurpation of power.

WHEREAS, The House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Tennessee acknowledges and reaffirms its allegiance to the Constitution and Government of the United States and is ever mindful of its responsibility to defend the Constitution of the United States against every attempt, foreign or domestic, to undermine the dual structure of this Union or to destroy those fundamental principles embodied in the written Constitution of The United States; and

WHEREAS, The founders of this great Nation, fearful of the tyranny that naturally and always follows the unrestricted concentration of governmental power, secured the passage of the "Bill of Rights," consisting of the first 10 amendments to the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, The Ninth and Tenth Amendments to the Constitution expressly and explicitly limit the Federal Government to specific powers delegated to it by the terms of the compact and reserved to the States and their people and all other powers, unless specifically prohibited by it to the States; and

WHEREAS, The House of Representatives of the General Assembly of Tennessee is ever mindful of the admonition that "frequent recurrence to fundamental principles is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessings of Liberty"; and

WHEREAS, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" and also the price of Constitutional government which is the sole guardian of our liberties; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution is a solemn compact between the States, and the Federal Government is the creature born of that compact from sovereign powers inherently residing in the States and their people but delegated solely for the purposes clearly and manifestly set forth in the Constitution, and only those powers specifically enumerated; and that all powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively or to the people; and

WHEREAS, The methods and procedures for amending the Constitution of the United States are distinctly and plainly stated in Article V of that instrument in these words: "The congress, whenever two-thirds of both houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose amendments to this constitution, or, on the application of the legislatures of two-thirds of the several states, shall call a convention for proposing amendments, which, in either case, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several states, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as the one or the other mode of ratification may be proposed by the congress"; and

WHEREAS, The Constitution of the United States may be validly amended only in the manner prescribed by the Constitution itself, and the United States Supreme Court has never had, does not now have, and should never possess, the power and authority to amend the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, neither the judicial power granted the United States Supreme Court in Article III of the Federal Constitution nor such appellate jurisdiction as Congress has conferred, or may confer, can constitute that Court the dominant and ultimate authority with the power of determining without regard for the Constitution what is and is not in the best interest of the Nation; and

WHEREAS, by its decision of May 17, 1954, the Supreme Court of the United States, in seeking to establish itself as the dominant and ultimate policy-setting agency of the Nation, in effect amended the Constitution by interpreting the Fourteenth Amendment in a manner clearly contrary to the well-settled construction of that Amendment; and

WHEREAS, The State of Tennessee in ratifying the Fourteenth Amendment did not intend to delegate to the Federal Government the power to deny to the States the inherent right to operate racially separate schools; and when the Fourteenth Amendment was ratified, there were thirty-six States in the Union, and twenty-three of those states had segregated schools and others had no public schools at all; and the Congress which proposed the Fourteenth Amendment established segregated schools in the District of Columbia; and both State and Federal courts, without exception, beginning with a decision of the Massachusetts' Supreme Court in 1848, and subsequently followed by the courts of Connecticut, New York, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and others, recognized the power of the States to operate a system of separate public schools; and

WHEREAS, The General Assembly of Tennessee relying upon the United States Supreme Court's own interpretation of the Fourteenth Amendment and the numerous and uncontradicted decisions of other Federal and State courts established and developed a segregated public school system; and Tennessee properly assumed that it could rely upon congressional action and earlier court decisions as is demonstrated by the language of the Supreme Court of the United States in Myers v. United States (1927) . . . when Congress, after full consideration and with the acquiescence and long practice of all branches of the government, has established the construction of the Constitution, it may not by its mere subsequent legislation reverse such construction. It is not given powers by itself thus to amend the Constitution"; and

WHEREAS, The House of Representatives the General Assembly of Tennessee, mindful that powers assumed by the Supreme Court in one field and for one purpose today will become precedents for further assumption of power in other fields and for other purposes tomorrow and recognizing, as did the founders of this great nation, that tyranny naturally and always follows naked power; and the Supreme Court of the United States has recently denied to the States the right to have laws of their own to deal with subversion or espionage against the nation; and the States have been denied the right to dismiss individuals from their employment who refuse to answer questions concerning their connections with communism by invoking the Fifth Amendment; and power delegated to the Congress to regulate commerce among the several States has been exploited and twisted into a power to control local enterprises remote from interstate commerce; and the power to levy taxes for the general welfare has been used relentlessly as a power to confiscate the earnings of our people for purposes totally unrelated to the general welfare as we conceive it; and judicial prerogative has finally permitted private property to be taken for uses that plainly are not public uses; and now the power to provide for the common defense is being distorted into a power to meddle in the school-building program of the several States; and the fears of Thomas Jefferson are rapidly becoming realities . . . "The great object of my fear is the Federal Judiciary. That body, like gravity, ever acting, with noiseless foot, and unalarming advance . . . is engulfing insidiously the special governments into the jaws of that which feeds them"; and

WHEREAS, There is implicit in these recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court a most grievous and deplorable disrespect for declared and established law; and

WHEREAS, By reason of this disrespect for declared and established law on the part of the United States Supreme Court, the people's faith and confidence in the judicial ability and temperament and judicial self-restraint of our highest federal judges has been most severely shaken; and

WHEREAS, The House of Representatives the General Assembly of Tennessee recognize its solemn duty to help alert the Nation to the fact that the Supreme Court of the United States, by interpretations and constructions of the Constitution, encroaches upon the reserved powers of the States; and our failure to discharge the solemn duty to alert our people and the Nation would constitute passive acquiescence in dangerous precedents aimed at undermining our democratic form of government:

NOW, Therefore be it resolved by the House of Representatives

SECTION 1. That the States have never granted to the United States Supreme Court, or any other court, the power to amend the Federal Constitution, nor does the Federal Government possess any powers not delegated to it by the Constitution of the United States.

SECTION 2. That the grievous and deplorable disrespect for the declared and established law of the land on the part of the United States Supreme Court constitutes a most dangerous and oppressive usurpation of the power of the Congress and the rights of the States and the people, and a grave threat to constitutional government in these United States.

SECTION 3. That the State of Tennessee does condemn and protest the oppressive usurpation of power by the Supreme Court of the United States.

SECTION 4. That the State of Tennessee does call upon all States and the Congress of the United States to bring to an end this tyrannical usurpation of power by the United States Supreme Court and to prevent now and in the future other and further encroachment upon the reserved powers of the States and the rights of the people, to the end that constitutional government shall ever be preserved.

SECTION 5. That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Governor and Legislature of each of the states, to the presiding officers of each of the Houses of the Congress of the United States, to Tennessee's representatives and senators in the Congress, to the President of the United States, and to the several judges of the Supreme Court of the United States.

SECTION 6. This resolution shall be in full force and effect from and after its adoption.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, March 4, 1957

To the Senate of the State of California
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN: This is to notify you of my return of Senate Bill 1 entitled: "An act making an appropriation for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccination program, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," without my signature and approval and with a statement of my objections thereto.

This bill, with my message relative thereto, I (through my Legislative Secretary) delivered to J. A. Beek, Secretary of the Senate, at 4.45 o'clock p.m. on the fifth day of February, 1957, at which time your honorable body was in recess pursuant to Section 2 of Article IV of the State Constitution, but had not adjourned for the session.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, February 5, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Senate
State of California
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature, Senate Bill No. 1, entitled: "An act making an appropriation for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccination program, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately."

My objections to this bill are as follows:

In my message to the Senate and Assembly on the opening day of this regular session, I recommended that $3,000,000 in state funds be appropriated for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and the administration of an immunization program to provide for injections of this vaccine to persons under 40. Senate Bill No. 1 was introduced in the Senate, and Assembly Bill No. 39 was introduced in the Assembly, to carry out this recommendation. These bills are identical, and each appropriates $3,000,000 to be immediately available from the General Fund for this purpose. Both of these bills were passed by the Legislature and presented to me. In order to avoid unnecessary duplication and the possible unintended results which might arise if both bills were signed, it is evident that only one of these bills should receive my signature and that the other should be returned without my signature. After consultation with the authors of these bills, I have signed Assembly Bill No. 39 and that bill has become a law, and I am returning Senate Bill No. 1 to the house in which it originated with this statement of my objections thereto.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

(e) "Flagged" means incompletely covered by the use of wrappers which are not closed.

Apples of the Bellefleur variety, which are of a size that will not pass through a ring 2¾ inches in diameter, need not be properly matured to meet the requirements of "C" grade when the apples are place packed or loose, but apples of the Bellefleur variety shall be properly matured to meet the requirements of the "C" grades when in combination grades.

As to apples produced in California, enforcing officers as provided in Section 782 shall determine, prior to the harvesting season, that apples of designated varieties in any area, county or district within a county are, or will be, considered to be properly matured on a specified date, which date shall be announced to interested industry members affected. The determination as to maturity shall be based upon known factors of maturity, including soluble solids content of the juice, pressure test, size, color, condition of the flesh or other recognized methods of measuring the maturity of apples. Based upon such known factors of maturity, the director may issue regulations establishing minimum maturity standards.

SEC. 3. Section 827.2 is added to said code, to read:

827.2. Dates of maturity shall be established for areas, counties, or districts within counties, which, because of location, climatic conditions or other factors, are known to produce apples which vary as to the dates of maturity. Such date of maturity shall be based upon an investigation including the testing of the apples in representative orchards in each area and shall be set when such tests generally indicate that the apples in each such area are, or will be, properly matured on such date as defined in Section 827.

SEC. 4. Section 827.3 is added to said code, to read:

827.3. If the enforcing officers find that apples in certain orchards in an area, a county or district within a county, do not meet the minimum standards of maturity as prescribed by the director, the apples in such orchards shall not be harvested until such orchards are released by the enforcing officer.

SEC. 5. Section 827.4 is added to said code, to read:

827.4. The provisions of Sections 827.1 to 827.6, inclusive, shall be effective only in the counties or districts within a county, where the apples are produced.

SEC. 6. Section 827.5 is added to said code, to read:

827.5. The provisions of Sections 827.1 to 827.6, inclusive, shall not be made effective with respect to varieties of apples regulated as to maturity by specific standards elsewhere in this code.

SEC. 7. Section 827.6 is added to said code, to read:

827.6. Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 830, apples being transported to another county or district within a county for grading or packing shall be properly matured before such movement. It is unlawful to transport apples grown in California to another county or district within a county unless an enforcing officer has issued a notice of release for the orchard from which they were harvested. The requirement that each load of such apples be accompanied by a notice of release shall not apply when all districts have been released.

SEC. 8. Section 827.7 is added to said code, to read:

827.7. Apples shipped into California from outside the State shall be properly matured or accompanied by an official certificate stating that such apples, at the time of harvest, met any maturity requirements of the state of origin."

2. Amendments to Law

Assembly Bill 2826 (Chap. 1715) by Assemblyman Stewart was approved by the 1955 Legislature and amended Section 18901 as follows:

"18901. The commission shall adopt, amend and publish a single code of all administrative regulations of state agencies defining building standards, and may include, amend and publish therein portions of said administrative regulations or of applicable building codes by means of reference, index or digest, as the commission may direct."

The adoption of this amendment will give the commission greater latitude in their work of compiling a single code of building standards in that recognized standards may be adopted by reference. Likewise, by printing an "index or digest" of state building standards, regulations affecting the various types of occupancies will be more readily available.

3. Finance

In the past, the work of the commission has been seriously handicapped by lack of funds to carry on their work. Pursuant to the recommendations of the Commission, an item of $10,920.00 was included in the Division of Architecture budget for the 1956/57 Fiscal Year. This item provided $9,420 for employing a code analyst and a stenographer and $1,500 for traveling and miscellaneous expenses. A request for $6,800 for printing was not allowed on the basis that the Division of Administrative Procedure might absorb some printing costs for which it has a small allowance.

4. Activities of the Commission

Four meetings were held during the 1955 and 1956 calendar year as follows:
San Francisco, State Bldg., Civic Center, April 1, 1955
San Francisco, State Bldg., Civic Center, December 9, 1955
Sacramento, Public Works Bldg., May 25, 1956
San Francisco, State Bldg., Civic Center, September 7, 1956

Election of officers was held at the December 9, 1955, meeting of the commission and the following officers were elected:

Chairman, Mr. Ernest C. Hillman, Jr.
Vice Chairman, Mr. A. W. Russell
Secretary, Mr. Joe R. Yockers

The chairman reconfirmed the previous appointment of committee members as follows:

Coding Committee—Joe R. Yockers, Chairman; Ernest C. Hillman, Jr., Walter Rapaport, M.D., A. W. Russell, Walter Zuetell.

Screening Committee—Andrew T. Hass, Chairman; W. C. Jacobsen, Malcolm H. Merrill, M.D., Ernest B. Webb.

The commission, after review by the Screening Committee, approved administrative regulations or amendments thereto for the following state agencies:

Department of Social Welfare
State Fire Marshal
State Board of Funeral Directors
Division of Architecture
Division of Industrial Safety Department of Agriculture
Division of Housing
Department of Public Health
Board of Cosmetology

Until such time as all of the state's building standards are codified, it is impossible for the commission to determine definitely that there is no overlapping or duplication of building standards. Therefore, all approvals are made subject to an understanding and agreement that should overlaps or duplication show up when codification of building regulations is completed, there will be negotiation to resolve and iron out differences.

In order to guard against duplication or overlapping regulations, department heads are requested to submit their proposed standards to the other state agencies for review and comment relative to a provision that duplicates or overlaps an existing regulation.

The amendments to Section 18901 of the Health and Safety Code and the appropriation of funds to employ technical assistance for the compilation of the state's building standards have caused the commission to reconsider its approval of the Coding Committee's report pending further study to determine if attempts should be made to consolidate the standards into a single code or to develop an index or guide to the standards as they now exist. Quite obviously, the index or guide is necessary and when completed it would serve a useful purpose in determining what course should be followed in codifying the state building standards.

As this report is being prepared, a qualified technician to carry on the codification work has not been found. Three persons are now being investigated and the Department of Personnel has been consulted relative to qualification and specifications for the position. This fact has materially retarded the work of the commission.

5. Conclusions and Recommendations

(1) The commission work has brought to light the urgent need for continuous coordination between state agencies in the adoption of administrative regulation to guard against overlapping or duplication of standards and all such agencies have displayed a willingness to cooperate.

(2) The commission has reviewed the different formats and procedures through which the state's building standards are established and fully understand that to consolidate these standards into a single code without authority to amend such standards will be a difficult task. They have discussed and have given consideration to the advisability of preparing a complete code of building standards which could be adopted in whole or in part by state agencies having some responsibility for building construction, but no final conclusions have been reached.

(3) The commission believes that, when a technician has been employed and a reference guide, index and digest can be made of the state's building standards, they will be in a much better position to determine a course for the future. To this end the commission feels that every effort should be made to employ a technician at the earliest possible date. The commission further believes that the first efforts of the technician should be toward the preparation of an index and guide to the State Building Safety Standards.

(4) At this time the commission does not propose any change in the present statutes. However, they call attention to the fact that, when codification work is under way, some amendments may be found necessary. It is the commission's recommendations that provisions be made in the 1957/58 fiscal year budget to cover the cost of the technician and an intermediate stenographer and the incidental expenses in connection therewith, in order that the codification work may continue without interruption.

This report was formally adopted by the commission in regular session February 15, 1957.

"SECTION 1. Section 796.1 of the Agricultural Code is amended to read:

796.1. It shall be unlawful to mix or blend any citrus fruits which fail to conform to the requirements of this chapter with other citrus fruits which conform to such requirements for the purpose of selling, marketing, or transporting the fruit which has thus failed to conform to the requirements of this chapter.

Any packed citrus fruit which has been in storage or after being shipped fails to meet the requirements of the standards for citrus fruits established in this chapter only by reason of brown rot, blue mold, or green mold which has occurred after packing, shall not be held for violation of the provisions of this chapter on account of such deterioration.

Oranges (except tangerines and mandarins), grapefruit, and lemons when packed in containers holding more than 25 pounds shall be regularly packed throughout in standard containers as provided and designated for each such citrus fruit in Section 828.83; provided, however, that packed citrus fruit imported into this State from another state need not be packed in said containers if they are packed in containers conforming to the applicable laws or regulations of the state of origin or of the United States.

All containers of packed citrus fruits when packed in containers holding more than 25 pounds and when loose or packed in a standard container number 58 or 59 which is closed shall bear upon them in plain sight and in plainly legible letters on one outside end: the name of the packer thereof together with a sufficiently explicit address to permit ready location of such packer; in the case of oranges (except tangerines and mandarins), grapefruit, and lemons the number and average diameter of the citrus fruit in the container; in the case of oranges and grapefruit the name of the variety, if known, and when not known, the words "unknown variety" or "seedlings"; provided, however, that in the case of citrus fruit imported from another state the average diameter of the fruit in the container need not be shown and in the case of a standard container number 58 or 59 which is not closed, the marking requirements of this section need not be shown.

Standard container number 58 or 59, containing loose or packed oranges, grapefruit or lemons in addition to being marked with the actual count and average diameter of the fruit in the container as required by this section, may be marked with the corresponding size in terms of the count that such fruits would pack in full-size standard containers as listed in Section 796.3 for oranges, in Section 796.4 for grapefruit and in Section 796.5 for lemons. The number indicating such "count size," if marked on the container, shall be accompanied by the term "size" so as to clearly refer to size, and both shall be in figures and letters no larger in size than the actual count marked on the container. If the "count size" is marked on the container, it must be placed near the statement of contents and the actual count figure must be accompanied by the term "count" so as to clearly refer to the count.

SEC. 2. Section 796.2 of said code is amended to read:

796.2 All oranges (except tangerines and mandarins), grapefruit or lemons intended for shipment out of the State of California, before being so shipped, shall be regularly packed throughout in lidded standard containers, as specified in this code for such fruit, and shall be uniform in size,

The provisions of this section shall not apply to (1) the sale, marketing or transportation for sale or marketing of oranges, grapefruit or lemons for charitable purposes, unemployment relief or for use by the United States Government or its agencies for relief distribution, or (2) the sale, marketing or transportation for sale or marketing of organes, grapefruit or lemons in closed containers intended for sale to the consumer in their unbroken form and the net contents of which do not exceed 25 pounds.

Oranges, grapefruit and lemons intended for shipment out of the State of California in standard container number 58 or 59 need not be regularly packed throughout the container but such container shall be closed.

SEC. 3. Section 796.6 of said code is amended to read:

796.6 The count of oranges, grapefruit and lemons when packed or placed loose without packing in standard container number 58 or 59 and the number marked on the container as required in Section 796.1 shall be one of the numbers tabulated in Column A below for oranges or for grapefruit or for lemons and the average diameter marked on the containers shall be the corresponding measurement tabulated in Column B, below:

The average diameter in inches of the oranges, grapefruit or lemons in the container, as determined by inspection of a representative sample, shall be not less than the corresponding measurement tabulated in Column B for each such fruit.

COMMUNICATIONS

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE
STATE CAPITOL, SACRAMENTO, March 1, 1957

Hon. Harold J. Powers
President of the Senate
Hon. L. H. Lincoln
Speaker of the Assembly

GENTLEMEN: Pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 1573, Statutes of 1951, the Department of Finance submits herewith its report to the Legislature on surplus state owned lands.

On September 24, 1956, the Department of Finance sent instructions to all land-holding state agencies under the subject "Annual Inventory and Report of Excessive State Lands." These instructions read in part as follows:

> "This is to call to your attention Section 11011 of the Government Code, which requires all state agencies to submit to the Department of Finance an annual report on lands that are in excess of foreseeable needs.
> "It is requested that each agency make a careful and thorough review of the state lands under its jurisdiction, and on or before October 30, 1956, inform this department of properties that are in excess of needs. A written statement should be submitted to this office, declaring that either:
> "All land owned by the agency has been checked and the following found surplus;
> or
> "All land owned by the agency has been checked and none found surplus."

In response to the above, 11 parcels comprising approximately 6,100 acres have been submitted by various agencies as being surplus to their foreseeable needs. These properties have an estimated value of $300,000 and are described in detail in the body of this report. It is recommended that legislation to sell, exchange, or otherwise dispose of these parcels be enacted at the 1957 Session. The Department of Finance has caused Senate Bill 624 to be introduced for this purpose.

Since the beginning of the surplus property program established by Chapter 1573, the Department of Finance has sold approximately 1,320 acres of property under specific legislative authority and the property returned to the local tax rolls. The total revenue received by the State as a result of these sales has amounted to $611,000. Supplement "A" to this report describes in detail those properties disposed of during the period 1955-56.

Presently held as surplus by the Department of Finance but not yet sold are approximately 2,340 acres of land representing a total estimated value of approximately $975,000. The current status of these lands is shown in Supplement "B" of this report.

To date this department has relied essentially upon the voluntary submissions of the land-holding agencies themselves. The Department of Finance now plans to move more actively into a second phase of the surplus property program wherein a thorough analysis will be made of all proprietary holdings. Field investigations by our staff will be undertaken and all operating agencies will be asked to explain how apparently unused land fits into present and future planning. A report on the progress of this phase will be made in our next surplus property report.

Yours very truly,

JOHN M. PEIRCE, Director of Finance

Article 1. Authorization of General Obligation Bonds

29150. The district may borrow money, incur a bonded indebtedness in respect thereto, and levy taxes for the payment of principal and interest thereon, in the manner provided in Chapter 7 of this part, but no such bonded debt shall exceed twenty-five (25) percent of the assessed valuation of taxable property within the district.

29151. Before submitting a proposal to incur any bonded indebtedness, the district shall employ such engineers, economists, fiscal experts and others as is necessary to develop general plans, estimates and general specifications pertaining to the projects for which the bond issue is proposed, sufficient in the opinion of the board to enable the board to determine the feasibility of such projects.

29152. Such engineers, economists, fiscal experts and others shall make reports to the district, which shall include:

(a) A general description of the facilities to be acquired or constructed from the proceeds of the proposed bond issue.

(b) The estimated total cost of constructing or acquiring, or both, such facilities.

(c) The estimated period of construction of such facilities.

(d) An estimate of the revenues which may be expected to be derived therefrom.

(e) The amount of bonds which will be required to pay the estimated total cost and to pay interest on the bonds during the estimated period of construction, and for three years thereafter, or less.

29153. After receiving such reports, the board shall determine and declare by resolution whether or not the proposed plan of work is feasible and whether or not the project, as set forth in said reports, is necessary, and if so, shall make an order determining the amount of bonds that should be issued in order to raise the amount of money necessary therefor, and in determining such amount, sufficient shall be included to cover the cost of inspection of works in course of construction. Such determination by the board shall constitute a conclusive determination that the reports then on file with the board are adequate and sufficient to enable the board to make the determination as set forth in such resolution.

29154. After adoption of the report and estimate of the amount of money required to be raised, the board shall call a special election and submit to the qualified voters of the district the proposition of incurring a bonded indebtedness for the acquisition, construction and completion of rapid transit facilities by the district and all other works, property, or structures necessary or convenient therefor and for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this part.

(a) A statement of the general object and purpose of incurring the indebtedness.

(b) Statement of the estimated cost of the proposed work and improvements.

(c) The amount of the principal of the indebtedness to be incurred therefor.

(d) The maximum term, which shall not exceed fifty (50) years, that the bonds proposed to be issued shall run before maturity.

(e) The maximum rate of interest to be paid on said indebtedness, which shall not exceed six (6) percent per annum.

(f) A statement that interest, to be paid upon such bonds during the estimated period of construction of the works of the district and for three years thereafter, or less, shall be a capital charge, and shall be payable out of the principal sum realized from the sale of bonds.

(g) The date on which the special bond election will be held, the hours during the day which the polls will be open, and the manner of voting for and against the incurring of such indebtedness; provided, however, the district shall have no power or authority, within six (6) months after an election at which a proposition submitted to the qualified electors of the district failed to receive the requisite number of votes as provided in Section 29164, to call or order another election for incurring any indebtedness for purposes substantially the same as voted upon at such prior election. If the special bond election is consolidated with any other election, the hours during which the polls shall be kept open in each county shall be the same as those provided for the election with which the election called pursuant to this part is consolidated and reference to that effect in the resolution shall be sufficient without specifying the particular hours.

29156. The provisions of Section 37.5 of Chapter 1239 of the Statutes of 1949, the San Francisco Bay Area Metropolitan Rapid Transit District Act, relating to the repayment of appropriations made to the San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit Commission from the proceeds of the first sale of bonds issued by the district created by that act, shall apply to and be binding upon the San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

29157. Any election submitting the proposition of incurring indebtedness and the issuance of bonds called pursuant to the provisions of this part, may be held separately, or may be consolidated with any other election authorized by law, at which the qualified voters of any county, city and county, or city are entitled to vote. However, in the event any such election called pursuant to this part is consolidated with any other election, as provided by Chapter 4 (commencing at Section 10050), Part 2, Division 11 of the Elections Code, the provisions of this part setting forth the procedure for the calling of the election called pursuant to this part shall be complied with, except that the resolution calling such election need not set forth the election precincts or polling places, or the officers of election which shall be the same as those set forth in the ordinance, order, resolution, notice, or other proceeding calling or providing for, or listing or designating the precincts, polling places, and election officers for the election with which the election called pursuant to this part is consolidated, and shall refer to such election or to the ordinance, order, resolution, notice, or other proceeding calling, providing for or giving notice of such election and which sets forth such precincts, polling places, and election officers. Such reference may be made by giving the number or title or date of adoption of such ordinance, resolution or order or to the date or proposed date of any publication of such notice and the name of the newspaper or proposed newspaper in which the notice has been or will be published or by any other definite description. Whenever a bond election called pursuant to this part is consolidated with a state-wide general election held in the district, references to such general election shall be sufficient for all purposes of this part.

29158. Whenever a special bond election is called pursuant to this part and is not consolidated with any other election the board shall in its resolution calling such special bond election, in addition to all other matters required to be set forth therein:

(a) Specify the precincts or consolidated precincts in each county or portion of a county which are adopted for the purposes of the election and designate the location of the polling places, provided that one or more polling places may be established within the same precinct and separate ballot boxes and separate officers of election provided for each group of electors, which group shall be determined by alphabetical designations and divided into groups as nearly equal in number as practicable.

(b) Specify the names of the officers selected to conduct the election, who shall consist of at least one inspector and two judges in each precinct, but not in excess of six election officers for each polling place.

Whenever the special bond election called pursuant to this part is consolidated in whole or in part with any other election, the precincts, polling places and election officers need not be set forth in the resolution calling the special bond election except only to the extent that any precinct, polling place and election officers established for the special bond election differ or are in addition to those established for the election with which the special bond election called pursuant to this part is consolidated.
